

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

Leypoldt & Holt, New York, have lately published a most amusing little extravaganza by About, the well-known French writer, translated by Mr. Holt, one of the publishers of the American edition. It is somewhat after the order of "The Nose of the Notary," by the same author. A French officer is found frozen stiff in 1813, by a German sergent, who proceeds to desecrate the body upon scientific principles, withdrawing all the water, and then putting the body away carefully, intending to experiment upon it afterwards, in support of his theory of revivification. The doctor dies, and the mummified officer is transmitted to his descendants, and is finally sold for a small sum, as a curiosity. A small piece of his car is accidentally broken off, and afterwards submitted to a microscopic analysis, which leads to a grand scientific experiment, by which the watery particles are restored to the body, and the Frenchman comes to life again. Nearly fifty years have elapsed, and as the gallant Colonel wakes up no older than when he went to sleep, there is a most comical mixing up of all his relations, which leads to a succession of the most delightful adventures. The translation is very free and spirited, and the book will be a most entertaining companion for all lovers of light and humorous romance.

The need of a wider circulation of scientific knowledge among all classes of society is being realized daily with increasing force, and an important contribution to the supply of this want has just been made in a volume, edited by Prof. E. L. Youmans, of New York, and published by D. Appleton & Co. It is a compilation of popular lectures upon various scientific topics, and contains the most distinguished philosophers of modern times. It is called "Culture Demanded by Modern Life," and includes lectures by Sir John Herschel, Faraday, Liebig, Forbes, Lyell, Carpenter, Tyndall, Whewell, and many other scientific men, discussing a great range of physics, botany, zoology and physiology, as well as various questions of economic, political and mental science. The editor contributes two valuable papers on "The Scientific Study of Human Nature," and "Mental Discipline in Education." The work is one of full interest and improvement for the student, and deserves a careful examination and perusal. For sale by D. Appleton.

Ticknor & Fields, Boston, have just issued the fifth volume of their "Dickensiana," containing "Dombey & Son." Few persons who have ever read "Dombey & Son" fail to enjoy a renewal of their acquaintance with Florence Dombey and her attendant, Mr. Toomey and Hansby; Rob, the Grinder, and Susan Nipper; Major Bagstock and Miss Tox; Cousin Feenix and the odious Carker. Ticknor & Fields' "Diamond Edition" enables us to carry all these old friends with us to our summer retreats, without inconvenience, and so to fortify ourselves against many a lazy afternoon or rainy morning by reviving the wonderful creations of the great novelist. By the way, the original illustrations of this volume are all successful hits. For sale by G. W. Pitzer.

A. H. Kline, 824 Walnut street, has a few copies of a fac-simile of Richard's "Short Description of Pennsylvania," originally published by Bradford, in 1802. It is printed on the unique copy in the Philadelphia Library, on the private press of "S. J. Hamilton," the non de presse of a scientific gentleman of this city, and is not only a curious literary relic of the early history of Pennsylvania, but a highly creditable specimen of amateur typography. It is accompanied by an interesting preface by Horatio Gates Jones, Esq., on the subject of the first paper mills in America. Fanciers of rare and curious books should secure one of the few copies which are offered for sale.

Harper & Brothers, New York, have just published Thackeray's "Lectures on English Humorists, and the Four Georges." These lectures, delivered by the famous novelist and satirist in England and in this country, are well known as embodying all the leading characteristics of Thackeray's peculiar genius, and in the form in which they are now presented, they will be very acceptable to a very large class of American readers. For sale by T. B. Peterson & Brothers.

Leypoldt & Holt, New York, have published "Critical and Social Essays," a selection of articles which have appeared in the Nation. They relate to a great variety of subjects, not ephemerally in their character, and the idea of collecting and preserving these capital papers in a permanent book form is an excellent one. For sale by J. B. Lippincott & Co.

"Heart-Breathings, or The Soul's Desire," is the title of a very pretty little volume, just published by J. B. Lippincott & Co. It is a manual of private and family devotion, prepared by S. P. Edwin, and will be highly valued by all who desire to avail themselves of this class of spiritual aids.

First-Class in Church. The folly of arbitrary distinctions of birth and rank finds an odd illustration in the following recent letter to the London Times. The writer signs himself simply "A Younger Son":

"An incident which occurred to me not many years ago may throw some light on the principles which guide the Chapel Royal officials in their distribution of seats. "On entering the chapel doors one Sunday morning I was stopped by the vergier, who said there was no place for me. "I had never attended service in it in my life, for I was of a new creation, but I knew that sons of peers had certainly privileges of entry; so with a little pardonable pride of manner I said, 'I am the son of a peer.' "The eldest son" asked the vergier, just as if he were a young lady in her second season. "No," said I, ruefully, 'I am younger.' "Then you cannot have a seat until the second lesson," replied the discriminating vergier. "It is out of my power to say whether the offer of a two-shilling piece would have raised me in the estimation of the simple-minded vergier to the level of an eldest son, for I did not try him, but walked away, musing as I went on the advantages and disadvantages attending the position in this world of an elder and a younger son."

Possibly it was thought that the chances of an eldest son going to what Mr. Mantalini called the "demillion bow-wow," are so much greater than the odds special "means of grace" to set against them.

CITY BULLETIN.

THE BARRONAGE.—The preparations for the Tenth General Singers'fest, which is to commence in this city to-morrow, have been made upon the most extensive scale, and the affair will no doubt be the grandest ever given. The National Guard will, which has been selected for the duty of the Singers while in this city, has been decorated in the most elaborate style. No expense has been spared in fitting up the hall, and it now presents a magnificent appearance. In front of the hall there are two flag-staves, from which float the flags of the United States and North Germany, and then there are flags of various other nations tastefully arranged in festoons. In front of the windows are five large transparencies, representing the Goddess of Music, Orpheus, Apollo, Columbia and Germania. Beneath is the German inscription of welcome to the singing brothers, and the coat of arms of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, United States, Germany, New York City and Switzerland.

The second-floor has been decorated in magnificent style. Surrounding the front of the stage there is a large gilded lyre, and in the back ground, on each side, there are large-sized portraits of Mozart and Beethoven. Stars and shudders are plentifully displayed around the hall, and some of them have the names of the different musical societies inscribed upon them. The chandeliers and walls hang the portraits of Wagner, Handel, Meyerbeer, Gluck, Von Weber, Schubert, Abt, Mendelssohn, Bach and Haydn. They are said to be the best paintings of these distinguished composers ever produced. Upon ribbons, suspended from the tops of the portraits, are inscribed the names of the celebrated compositions of these authors. The hall is tastefully decorated with artificial roses, and ribbons extend from the brackets to all portions of the room. From the ceiling there are suspended at intervals of feet containing flowers. The ceiling is decorated with red, white and blue bunting, the blue portion having silver stars upon it. The entire decoration of the hall has been gotten up in the most artistic manner.

The festival will commence to-morrow evening, and the programme of the opening ceremonies is as follows: The singers, on their arrival at the different depots, will be received by the Reception Committee, who will conduct them to their respective quarters. At 8 o'clock P. M., the Honorary Committee, the Philadelphia societies, and also the guests who may have arrived at this time, will meet at headquarters, National Guards Hall.

At seven o'clock march to the Camden and Amboy Railroad depot, where the New York and other societies will arrive. Their arrival will be announced by fireworks and firing of cannon.

The procession will then form and march, with music and illumination, through Walnut street to Independence Square.

The Honorary committee will proceed directly from headquarters to Independence Square, and there occupy the platform.

On arrival of the procession his Honor the Mayor of the city will be introduced by the President of the festival.

The reception chorus, "Saengergruss," by A. Schuster, will be sung by the Philadelphia societies.

His Honor the Mayor of the city, and the orator of the festival, Dr. G. Kellner, will welcome the guests.

Hereafter—March through Fifth street directly to headquarters, where the flags will be deposited.

The programme for the remainder of the festival is as follows: Sunday, July 14—Recreation. Monday, July 15—Rehearsal and Concert at Academy of Music, in the evening. Tuesday, July 16—Prize Concert at Academy of Music, in the evening.

Wednesday, July 17—Gigantic Picnic at Washington Depot and Engel & Wolf's Farm. Thursday, July 18—Close of Festival.

THE SOUTH STREET DISTURBANCE.—The case of Lazarus Jacobs, Reuben Jacobs, Nathan Myers and Reuben Cohen, whose arrest at Second and South streets, a few days ago, was noticed in the BULLETIN, seems to have been the result of a misunderstanding. The defendants were not engaged in the assault upon the individual who made the complaint. The charge arose out of the conduct of some boys, who threw fire-crackers into a push cart in which the complainant was sleeping, on the Fourth of July.

ACCIDENT AT GERMANTOWN.—Henry McVaugh, an employe of the R. & O. N. R. R. Co., while engaged upon an addition to the depot at Germantown, fell from a ladder yesterday, and was badly injured about the head.
