Corrections of Shakespeare."

Dr. Karl Elze, a German Shakesperian scholar, has lately been trying his hand at correcting some of the corrupt passages in King John, with what success we leave the readers of the poet to decide. For the lines "Here's a stay "Here's a stay That shakes the rotten carcass of old Death

Out of his rags." he proposes to read:

"Here's a bray," etc. "The grappling vigor and rough frown of war Is cold in amity and painted peace," e would substitute:

"Is scolding amity and painted peace." Another of his corrections is of the pas-"For I do see the cruel pangs of death

Right in thine eye," which he would change to:

"For I do see the cruel pangs of death Frithing thine eye." This is hardly satisfactory, we think, hough as much so perhaps as the older emendations of the word "right" into "fright," "fight" and "bright." The correctiation, &c. some of them have been allocations that on tially published. It appears from these communications that on the 22d of May a circular was transmitted to the several district commanders for their guidance, signed by Secretary Stanton and addressed to the several district commanders for their guidance, signed by Secretary Stanton and addressed to while a body of voted in such a way as to carry the impression that he believed there was a legal State government in those States, because they were no longer States. Mr. Farnsworth suggested that this discussion as to the status of the rebel State governments was unnecessary on the question of the mere re-ception of a respectful communication. It was a fact that there was a State there so-called, and a de facto Legislature, which might meet and pass laws until it was set aside.
