CITY NOTICES.

THE OVERSTRUNG PIANO SYSTEM-ITS TRIUMPH AT THE PARIS EXPOSITION .- For several months past the two insignificant Parls musical journals, Le France Musicale and Gazette Musicale, both in the interest of the principal piano manufacturers of Paris and that of Messrs, Chickering of Boston-all adherents of the old system of parallel strings-have persistently attacked the overstrung system in pianos which in its new application, was first employed by Messrs. Steinway & Son, of this city, and has since been adopted by a number of prominent makers in Berlin, Leipsic, Vienna and other cities of Germany, Holland and Switzerland.

The articles in these papers have invariably been translated and reproduced here by the equally disinterested Watson's Art Journal (we believe that is its present name), the well known local mouth-piece of Messrs. Chickering, and have been by the latter dis seminated broadcast over the country. In its issue of July 6th, the Art Journal has an article, filling three pages, in relation to the late award of piano prizes at the Paris Exposition, glorifying as usual the house of Chickering, and attacking Messrs. Steinway in the most malicious manner. But while passing over its tissues of glaring falsehood without comment, we quote the following editorial opinion from this shining light of musical journalism; - 1.

"While all the sterling and acknowledged authorities of the Parisian press give their well considered verdicts in favor of the Chickering planes, condemning the overstrung principle in the Steinway Grands, as producing positive confusion of vibration, proclaiming t not only bad, but showing that it was old, and that it had been tested by the best European Makers, and abandoned as worthless, still the admitted excellence of each instrument, the superior qualities conceded and elaborately illustrated in the articles published, was evidence incontrovertible, that the Pianos of the American firm, and of the German firm halling from America, had no superiors, if any equals of European manufacture. We feel profound contentment at the result of this international competition because we think the judgment was entirely just, That Chickering's pianos should receive the superior award to Stellaway's was reasonably expected, where both were to be submitted to the critical examination and test of refined and competent judges."

There is but one little drawback to the "profound omeniment" of the Art Journal, and that is there is not a grain of truth in it. The International Jury, whom it admits to be "refined and competent judges, have distinctly classified the Steinway piano first and Fire the Chickering, and thereby awarded to Messrs. Steinway the first gold medal of merit, and the second to Chickering, notwithstanding the most strenuous excrtions, by nearly all the adherents of the old system in Paris, to have the names arranged alphabetically, which the Supreme Jury as well as the Imperial Com mission refused to do; and the names remained in order of merit, as the official report of the Jury will show. We repeat that the securing of a ribbon-the lowest grade of the Legion of Honor-by Mr. Chickering, brough influential friends, from the French Govern ment, is an entirely personal and outside matter, without the slightest connection with the awards at the Ecmaltion, not being recommended by or known to the Jury; and however it may be used as an "advertising dodge," to make people believe the contrary, it will never make the Chickering second medal in order of erit conal to the Steinway first -- so distinctly classified

e regarded as the true standard of excellence. The twaddle of the Art Journal, respecting the erstrung system, is simply ridiculous, and, in fact, isulting to New York piano-makers, who exclusively

y the International Jury, whose decision alone mus

Besides the Messrs. Steinway, all our eminent manuacturers, such as Weber, Decker Brothers, Steck, Kranich, Bach & Co., Hazleton, Knabe, Raven & Bacon, and many others, have, for a number of years, applied the overstrung system in their grand and square nanos, each of these skillful makers, in his own way and peculiarity, bringing his instruments to great per-ction, and establishing a high reputation for them Instead of being "abandoned as worthless," it is simply a patent fact that the Messrs. Chickering, of Boston, are to-day the only makers left in the United States who still adhere to the old European system of parallel strings in grand pianos, just as they were the ery last to adopt overstringing in square pianos, still clinging to the old system of stringing-to the old detached name-board and the English action, after every New York maker, without a single exception, had been making overstrung square planes for several years. At the Paris Exposition, the most persistent efforts vere made by the adherents of the old system of conraction to defeat the success of the overstrang ianos; and, now that the latter has become triumphm, they will endeavor to write the new system to leath. We predict an inundation of reckless newsaper attacks in the small French musical journals, letrs from European manufacturers, interested artists and writers, skilfully prepared for the purpose, and arblished to throw discredit upon the victorious overrung pianos and their successful makers. All these as a matter of course, will be reproduced in the Chickring organ here, and 'disseminated over the country ov their agents. Notwithstanding the bitter and persistent opposition of the powerful combination of all the adherents of the old system, the triumph of the planes with overstrung instruction, at the Parls Exposition, has been grand in the extreme, far greater than could have been an icipated by its most ardent friends.

A cable telegram to this office brings the gratifying ntelligence that, of eleven exhibitors with overstrung pianos, two received gold medals (the first and third prizes), and eight received silver medals, while of bout four hundred with the old plan of stringing, only three received gold medals, and twenty-two silver medals, or a proportion in favor of the overstrung system of about twenty to one.

This stubborn and incontrovertible fact effectually cfutes all past and future slanders and attacks made upon the overstrung system, by interested European or American makers and their partisans. It must certainly be a matter of the greatest gratification to our New York piano-makers that the new overstrung system of construction, which all of them use in their grand and square pianos, has, by the skill of our various eminent manufacturers, given the unquestioned supremacy in piano-making to New York, and has met with such unqualified endorsement at the great plano tournament in Paris .- New York Review. From among the newspaper Parislan corres pondonce we select the following: "The invention of the American Combination Buttonhole and Overcaming Sewing Machine, Company, of Philadelphia, now at the Exposition, Paris, attracts great attention. It is daily examined by thousands, and all unite in the opinion that it well deserves the medal of honor it is sure to receive. There is nothing more worthy, more beautiful or more ingenious at the great World's Fair." Three days after the date of the above correspondence the medal was awarded. This great machine may be seen in operation daily, at the salesrooms, corner of Eleventh and Chestnut streets. It is the only perfect Seeing Machine offered to the public.

CONGRESSMAN SCHENCE, of Ohio, introduced a resolution into Congress to bestow a vote of thanks on Petroleum V. Nasby for the good he has done the country in general, and, we suppose, Mr. Schenck in particular. We hope Congress, when it passes the vote, will also pass one of thanks to Chas. Stokes & Co., the eminent Clothiers under the Continental, on account of the number of good habits they have spread through the country.
