The Exposition correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial writes: "Now it is too early to go home, and we make our way through the crowd with the serious intention of doing that little bit of shopping. So here we are again at the Palais Royal. The band are playing in the interior of the Palace gardens, and people are walking up and down in crowds, with no other seeming intention than that of keeping step to the music. Now the first thing is to look for a shop where English is They are hard enough to find, and the first discovered we enter, but no welcome English word comes in response to our question, only the shopman suddenly ran, and, stooping down, tapped on his wall and said some very coaxing thing in French, to the effect that we should wait only a moment, and in due course of some lengthy minutes somebody came from somewhere and made out, in bad English to our comprehension, that we could have what we called for by paying a high tariff for the English in the transaction. At the next door no one pretented to speak English; but the French woman talked as volubly as though it was beyond her conception that any beings with two ears could not understand, if she only talked long enough and fast enough. We were so charitable as to believe. however, that there had been, at some former period, an occupant of that box who spoke English, else they would have hardly set the announcement in such beautiful letters on the glass door. All but here is a fresh hope: "Mon spricht here is a fresh hope:

Deutsch" is inscribed on the door-post. We enter, the result of which is another telegraphic rap on the wall, and a no doubt very polite invitation to make ourselves comfortable a moment. Time flies; there is no way of beating a retreat until we are confronted with the individual who does German, to the effect that the articles called for are at some place a mile or so across the river. Heretofore we have been served to cards from all the previous establishments. It is possible we might want something in the line of our German friend; will we take a card? Meanwhile the gas is lit and pouring a full flood of light over all those charming windows, brilliant with flowers, sparking with diamonds and precious stones. There, at least, we can see the price, if we do not wish Let us look—they are all ours while we hold them in our vision. It is quite impossible to stop over the petty purchase of a brooch while one owns stomachers and diadems of diamonds, with bracelets, rings and all such thrown in. My friend does not receive as much impression of these things as myself. She says only, on looking at these wonderful costly necklaces of precious stones, with happy satisfaction: "Such-and-such a one will suit my complexion. I have -0,000 francs toward it;" while the figures stand-0,000,000! before the half-owned article. But to have any monetary considerations before such princely displays is altogether beneath the subject. I never do. Besides, how those precious flowers with diamond-tipped stamens and pistils tremble while I only speak, and gleam back iant beams of spirit-thought when think of the twelve gates of precious stones in the city where they shall gleam in diadems for wearers as large as themselves. Strange that one could see anything else at such a moment. But there is a coaxing face peering out of the window. She sees, doubtless, that I appreciate the value of diamonds. "Do you speak English?" "A ver-ry lee-tle," she replies, and makes further creditable attempts for a French woman, but does not succeed in uttering one more intelligible word. We took a card, and with weary feet and eyes, turned toward home. It was half-past ten, and we were just half way around the inner circle of shops in the

The Eye of Milwaukee Upon Us.

Palais Royal. Where is the Yankee who was to do Paris in two days.

A Milwaukee paper amusingly says, when Chicago is an applicant for any great favor from the public, from Congress, or legislatures, her newspapers publish a map. This map always represents that city as the centre of the continent. When she wanted Congress to build a canal to drain the filth of the Chicago river into the Mississippi, the newspapers published a very elaborate map. That map looked like a spider's web. Hundreds of railways, canals, steamboat lines, and turnpikes radiated in every direction except towards Milwaukee. In that direction the map was as blank as Olney's map of Central Africa-no sign of human habitation relieved the desert wastes between.
When all the boards of trade in the United States went to Chicago to drink champagne in the city, the newspapers unanimously published a map. It was like the canal map in claboration and exclusiveness. Chicago proposes an air line raifway to St. which they can run four hundred miles in cleven hours. The locomotives will carry an immense broom-enormous in its dimensions-by which all the down trains will sweep the entire surplus productions of a belt of country two hundred miles in width right in the city. And here all the Chicago newspapers publish a map showing how the thing can be done.

All this looks well on paper—to the people of Chicago-but the Chicago river still flows into Lake Michigan; and still the trade of the northwest flows to Milwaukee. We want the next enterprise that shall call out the great Chicago maps.

Abating a Nuisance.

The Mayor of Utica has prohibited the spitting of tobacco juice on the sidewalks. This sounds very nicely; but will not the Mayor find the practical enforcement of his prohibition a difficult matter? The ordinance was passed for the benefit of the ladies, whose "trains" are soiled by the offensive expectoration. But are the ladies expected to be the informers? Fancy a man inadvertently violating the Mayor's pronunciamiento, and a lady catching him in the street; and stepping to the nearest policeman with, "Please, Mr. Officer, arrest that man!" "For what, omicer, arrest that man!" "For what, ma'am?" "Why, he just sp—I mean—he just violated the Mayor's order about tobacco. I saw him do it—the wretch!" "You must swear to it, ma'am, before the justice," says the officer. And the lady does—that is—does she's wear to the offence in a public court room, and have the offender duly mulcted?

Why does not the Mayor of Utica command the ladies of that city to wear short dresses? It is piggish to spit on a sidewalk, but what is it to sweep the dirty streets with a long dress?

A Case of Professional "Etiquette." The "old school" physicians in Lowell do not, apparently, extend the hand of professional courtesy in a very cordial manner to their brethren, the homeopaths, if we may judge of their general tone by that of the physician to the Health Board in that town. In a list of the causes of death in the mouth of June, presented by this medical officer of the board, there was one case whose early demise he had noted as the result of "homoeopathic

This is a new disease, assuredly, to be officially reported by a professional man in public document.

We shall presently hear, perhaps, of "allopathic quackery' as another cause of death, in Lowell or elsewhere.

CITY BULLETIN.

Assault in a BEER SALOON. Last night about Il o'clock three men entered a lager beer saloon at Sixteenth and Filbert streets, and after drinking refused to foot the bill. This led to words with the proprietor. The latter finally ran out of the place. William Pollock, who was in a of the place. William Pollock, who was in a back room, went into the bar-room to ascertain the cause of the disturbance and was immediately attacked. One of the assailants had a crutch and used it pretty freely upon Pollock, who was badly injured about the head. The police were called in and arrested two of those engaged in the assault. The third one escaped. The prisoners gave their names as William Harrington and George Smith, and after a hearing this morning before Alderman Jones, were committed in de fault of $1,500 bail to answer at court.

CAPE ISLAND .- Citizens who cannot spare the time during the week to visit the sea-shore, will bear in mind the fact that the West Jersey Railroad Company is now funning three trains daily to Cape Island, leaving the foot of Market street at 9 A. M., 3 P. M. and 4 P. M. The 4 P. M. train is an express train, and makes the run to Cape Island in three hours, returning, leaves Cape Island at 6.30 and 9 A. M., and 5 P. M. The Sunday train, which leaves at 7 o'clock A. M., and returning leaves Cape Island at 5 P. M., has become very popular. Passengers who come up by the early train in the mornings, reach the city in ample time to attend to business.

ATLANTIC CITY.-The season at this delightfu place of resort has been fairly inaugurated. The number of visitors is large, but the accommoda tions are ample, and balls, parties and other amusements are of nightly occurrence. To-mor-row evening there will be several hops. The can't-get-aways can either take the 2 P. M. ex-press (through in two hours), or the 4.15 P. M. train to-day, and reach Atlantic in time for all the anusements. The Sunday train should not be forgotten. It leaves Vine street wharf every Sunday morning at 7.30; returning, leaves At-lantic at a quarter of 5 P. M.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL AT CAPE ISLAND .- The Columbia House, at Cape Island, has always been the fashionable resort, and already over five hundred guests are assembled under its hospitable roof. To-morrow evening in honor of the roof. To-morrow evening, in honor of the guests, a grand promenade concert and soirce dansante will be given. It will be a fashionable and brilliant affair, and one of the great features of the season. Hassler's double Orchestra and Military Bands, assisted by the Congress Hall Band, will furnish the music. Three trains and the steamer Sue will leave for the Island during Assaulting Women.-John Ferguson was before Alderman Fitch this morning, charged with forcible entry and assault and battery. It seems that he was at the "Bon Ton" a public ouse on Eleventh street, below Girard Avenue, set evening, and behaved disorderly. Sarah McFadden, the proprietress, ordered him out, but instead of leaving, he forced his way into a room and assaulted Mrs. McFadden, Josephine Gibson nd Annie Williams. Ferguson was held in $800 bail for trial.

Sallor Robbed.-This morning, before Ald. Tittermary, Joseph Griner and Annie Johnson were charged with larceny. It seems that Griner enticed a sailor into a house in Pine alley last night. While there, the sailor gave Annie a twenty dollar bill to be changed, but she neelected to return with the funds. The accused were committed.

Another Arrest.-Edward Conway, who i alleged to have been one of the parties who collected money and represented that it was for the Franklin Engine Company some time since; was errested, last night, at Eighth and Arch streets, He was taken before Recorder Enen, and was held in $1,000 bail to answer at Court.

POCKET PICKING .- George W. Kockersperger Benj. Wells and Edward Penck were arrested last evening, upon the charge of having stolen a watch from the pocket of a man on a Girard avenue passenger railway car. The watch was not recovered, and is supposed to have been taken by another of the party who, escaped. The accused were committed.

AN OWNER WANTED .- A pocket-book contain ing a sum of money, which was found by a little girl at Washington Retreat, during the late plevic is awaiting a claimant at the Sixth Ward Police Station.

THE Riverside Institute of Burlington county N. J., chartered as an asylum for the gratuitous educa tion of Soldiers' and Sailors' orphans, bids fair at the present time to be one of the most successful charities of the kind ever established. The Washington Library Company, whose plan for raising funds for the support of this Home has already been published in our columns, are meeting with the greatest success and even more than was anticipated by the most sanguine of its supporters. Stock at one dollar per share is issued, and every purchaser of the same receives a one steel-plate engraving, worth fifty per cent. more than the cost of his stock. Each share of stock also guarantees to the holder some present in the great distribution of presents in September next. At that time $300,000 worth of presents will be distributed, and every shareholder will receive something, as ther are no blanks. For your money you not only receive more than its value, but also assist in rearing one of the noblest works ever undertaken.
