A Duel Between Two Rivals. A correspondent of the Louisian Courier, writing from Welby, Kentucky, gives the following particulars of a fatal occurrence in Lattleton Wells and Sandford B. Roberts were both young men of unexceptionable were both young men of unexceptionable character, and occupying enviable positions in our society. Wells was about twenty-two years old, and Roberts was probably two years his senior. The former was our Deputy Postmaster, while the latter was clerk in the store of Roth & Strother. For some time both had been paying marked attention to an amable and beautiful young lady of the neighborhood, whose name I withhold for obvious reasons, and until within a month past were generous rivals, their relations toward each other being upon the most friendly footing. Some three or four weeks ago Wells visited the young lady, and made a formal proposal for her hand. His proposition was respectfully but firmly declined, and upon his pressing her for her reason for her declination, she indiscreetly informed him that she had already accepted a similar proposal from young Roberts. Wells left the house, mounted his horse, and returned to the village. He first went to the Post Office and armed himself with a pistol, and then sought his successful rival at the store. Here an altercation ensued, which would have had a bloody termination had not bystanders interfered and put an end to the difficulty. From that time until Saturday they were as strangers to each other. On that day they both attended a pic-nic, Roberts being accompany panied by his fiancec. As soon as Wells saw them together he seemed to be imbued with the very spirit of insanity. Approaching them, he grossly insulted Roberts, in the presence of the whole assembly. The insulted man sprang to his feet, and started toward his insulter, evidently to resent the insult when gentlemen present prevented insult, when gentlemen present prevented a collision. Roberts and his fair companion, at the carnest solicitation of the latter, immediately left the ground and repaired to her home, where she, fearing a difficulty between the parties, endeavored to persuade him to spend the night. In that she failed, but succeeded in extracting a promise from him that he would not return to the pic-nic ground. Reaching the village, and brooding over the gross outrage that had been put upon him, he went to his room and penned a challenge to mortal combat, which he intrusted to a friend to be delivered into the hands of Wells. This mission was accomplished that night. Next morning a friend of the challenged party called upon the friend of Roberts to arrange the preliminaries. This was soon accom plished. The arrangement was that the fight was to come off in a meadow about one mile east of the town, at daylight, on Monday, the weapons to be Colt's revolvers. At the appointed time the principals and seconds were on the chosen ground. The principals were placed ten feet apart, with instruction to fire between the words "one" and "three" and then advance, firing as they advanced, such being the terms insisted on by the challengee and not rejected by the challenger. At the word both parties fired, and so accurate was their aim, that Wells fell dead, pierced through the brain by his adversary's ball. Roberts received his opponent's bullet in the centre of the breast, passing through his body and lodging under the skin, just to the left of the spine. At the moment I write he is not dead, though sinking so rapidly that the physicians say he cannot live possibly more than an hour.

The Treatment of Confederate Prisoners—A Letter from One of Them. [From the Ohio State Journal]

[We preserve the phrascology, correcting only bad spelling and some lapses in syntax.]
WORTHINGTON, July 21:—Editor Journal: From time to time there have been articles printed in periodicals (conservative in views) reflecting disgrace upon the National authorities, for the inhuman treatment that rebel prisoners received at their hands, and I thought it not improper to give my testimony in their defence. I was a soldier under the command of Stonewall Jackson, and was captured by General Hunter on the 14th of June, 1864, and arrived at Camp Chase July 3d, and was immediately transferred to what was known as the new camp, and there received the best meal that I had eaten for two years. And to satisfy the curiosity of some, I will state the rations that we received:-Four of us received one four pound loaf of bread per day; one pound of beans or hominy; beef and pork alternately; potatoes and rice alternately, also; and can prove by U. S. officers that whole loaves of bread and large pieces of meat, and that of good quality, were thrown into the canal through which the water was forced twice a day, to carry off the filth which collected. And there was a loud complaint on account of non-suffrage of delicacies being sold within the camp limits, which were needed for the sick, which is untrue; for I have seen as high as seven stands from which delicacies were sold at one time. Some one might ask of what account were these stands when the prisoners had nothing with which to buy. They received means from sympathizing friends throughout the North. About the first of November the small pox broke out, and I can say to the credit of the authorities, that every exertion was put forth to stop the rayages of the disease; and to show the effort put forth
I would say that I have seen as high as three pounds of soap lying about the barracks loose; and kettles and wash house of sufficient capacity to accommodate twenty-five men at one time; and with all conveniences orders had to be issued for a squad of men to scrub such as would not accept of such offers of cleanliness; and in regard to clothing I would say that I have made many suits of clothes (for I am a tailor by trade) out of U. S. blankets that were afterward colored and exchanged and taken home by the soldiers. And in conclusion, I would say that we received better treatment from the Federal than we did from our own officers.

A Collection of Wonders.

(From PIndependance Belge.)
A marvelous collection of objets d'arl and gems is now on private exhibition in Paris. Connoisseurs opine that so large a number of unique and magnificent valuables have never been gathered together in any country, and a Prince, whose taste is as proverbial as his wealth, recently declared that he never even suspected the existence of such marvels. It would be impossible to enumerate the elements of one-fourth of the collection, but we can mention a few of the wonders without attempting to give a satisfac-tory description of any. Firsts come a little basket carved out of a single emerald, which is as large as a good sized apricot. There are portions of the apricot which have been cut through, and other parts have been sculpted en relief. It is said that the work on this little basket required an outlay of time equal in duration to the lives of several men. Then the comoisseurs are shown a vase made of a singular turquoise in the form of a goblet about thirty centimetres in height, and surrounded by a garland of gems. Experienced appraisers who were called upon to estimate the value of this wondrous vuse, failed to agree as to the figure, but all admitted that it exceeded 14,000,000 francs. A small boat carved out of jade, and tenanted by two tiny figures—a man and a monkey—made of gems a cage made of gold and gems, containing birds and a clock of like materials; a drinking cup, cut from a single opal, are next in the order of exhibition. We can only make a general mention of caskets filled with unset precious stones, worth from half a million to a million francs, of forty snuff-boxes of the most magnificent description, and of quantities of bracelets, rings, and ear-rings, set with rubies, turquoises, emeralds, sapphires and diamonds of every color, for an enumeration of all these curiosities would require more space than could be given

The most significant feature of the exhibition, however, is the simplicity which characterizes the actions of the exhibitor. The gentleman who does the honors of the place allows the visitors to admire, touch and vitiare all the valuables displayed, and then throws the entire collection into a broken chest and a wretched bureau drawer, .turns the key in a rusted lock, and sallies forth to the restaurant, pending the hour fixed upon by some sovereigns who have promised to view the collection. Thus far, no bargain of any magnitude has been made on account of the immense prices that are asked.

A NEWLY-MARRIED MAN COMPELLED TO KNEEL ON HIS LATE WIFE'S GRAVE AND ASK HER FORGIVENESS.—A jailor at Donaldsonville, Louisiana, who had buried his first wife in the early part of May, married again in three or four weeks afterward. This so shocked the moral sense of the community that a public meeting was called, and a procession formed and marched to his residence and took him out. After being marched out of his doorway to the tune of the Dead March, with lighted candles on each side of him, the procession formed, music in front, the latter consisting of old cans, horns, tin pans, and a large bell carried on the shoulders of two of the party, which was tolled con-tinually, while cries of mirth and jollity tended to enliven the scene. After traversing the principal streets and thoroughly arousing everybody in town who was not engaged in it, they proceeded to the final act, it now being near the hour of midnight. After forming properly the procession moved to the graveyard, where the joke was finished by his kneeling down at the grave and asking pardon of his late wife's spirit, after which the party proceeded to a saloon, and taking a drink at his expense, he was permitted to rejoin his new-made wife-this being the third marriage bond he has entered into.

Since the close of 1866 much enterprise has been displayed at this celebrated sea-shore resort. New and magnificent cottages have been erected; the Hotels have been remodeled; a fine park, with a well made one-mile drive, has been inagurated; and in all the essentials of a popular summer resort, a spirit of improvement is largely manifested.

The geographical position of Cape Island is in itself a popular feature, when properly understood: Situated at the extreme southern portion of the State, and occupying a neck of land at 64 confluence of the Delaware lay with the Atlantic Ocean, it becomes entirely survounded by salt water, hence favored by continual brevze from the sea.

The bluff turnishes a beautiful view of the Ocean, Dalaware Bay, and picturesque back country, taking in Cape Healogen distinctly at a distance of sixteen miles. The beach is acknowledged to surpass any other point upon the Atlantic coast, being of a smooth, compact sand which declines so gently to the surf that even a child can bathe with security.

Added to these attractions is the fact that the effect of the Culif Stream upon this point renders the water comparatively warm—a point not to be overlooked by persons seeking health from ocean bathing.

The distance from Philadelphia to Cape Island is 85 miles by rall, and about the same distance by steame down the Bay, and by either route the facilities for travel promise to be of the most satisfactory character. The Island has Hotel and Boarding house accommodations for about ten thousand persons. The leading Hotels are Compress Hall, with J. F. Cake as proprietor; columbia House, with George J. Bolton as proprietor, and United States with West & Miller as proprietor, and under the management of gentlemen who have well-established reputations as hotel base.
