Brigham Young Denounces a Whisky Distiller for not Page Bollis "Tithaing"—The Distiller Beards the Prophet and Challenges Him.

On Sunday last, President Young, accompanied by a few friends, went down to Cot tonwood, about twelve miles south of this village, to hold forth and preach the Gospel for the salvation of men. In the performance of this laudable design, he varied his discourse from the salvation of men and the means necessary to attain it, to a contemptible earthly attack on a certain William Howard, Esq., a very fine, intelligent English gentleman, so said, on the State road, about four miles from this city, who makes excellent whisky. We are informed that Mr. Howard, like a good citizen, pays the United States revenue, as "required by States revenue, as "required by law;" but, on account of some religious obtuseness that has worked its way into his head, he hasn't paid up the tithing according to "Gunter." He was at one time a particular friend of the Prophet—so the story goes—and had claims of a financial character against that dignitary that made the latter have recourse to his wits; but the dignitary was equal to the emergency, and bought up the paper of Mr. Howard, then in circulation, and "squelched" him. This trick was twice performed by the President, but Howard couldn't "see it." He carved out a course of his own; and the President, in commenting on it last Sunday, made some remarks that riled Howard, and he got up and openly denounced them as false, and demanded a retraction. Some wrangling ensued, when Brigham ordered that he should be put out. About two hundred said NO! but they were entreated, and Mr. H. was foreibly ejected from the house of God. Brigham then counseled his hearers to go and tear down the house and distillery of Mr. Howard, and not leave a stone upon a stone. They did not do it, however, for which they are to be highly commended by every lover of law and good order. If they had they would have only shown a willingness to take bad advice. Their own better counsels prevailed. We learn that Mr. Howard had sent a letter to Brigham Young, yesterday, demanding a retraction of his personal statements in the Temple, at Cottonwood, or that he will hold him personally responsible.

A Fresh Water Whale.

That our great lake is inhabited by something bigger and of a more amphibious nature than the white-fish or the sturgeon is evident. Those who sail the great deep, and know what is going on above and below the water, tell us so, and wherefore should they lie about so small a thing? During the season, we have frequently heard sailors speak of seeing fish that looked something like a whale off the harbor. Captain McBride, who has crossed Lake Michigan times into the thousands, says he has frequently had his attention called to a whaley sort of a fish that makes much noise and blowing, and, always with a huge puff, that can be heard on a still morning for a mile out, sinks below the surface of the water beforc he can get his boat near enough to see and describe the beast. Capt. Consaul, of the tug Davidson, a wide-awake sailor, says that frequently, very early in the morning or about day-light, when he goes out into the lake, he has seen the monster lying off the mouth of the river, and moving slowly along, as if devour-ing objects that came out of the river. On one occasion, having the wind strongly in his favor, he bore away for the fish, and was enabled to get so near that he plainly could see its back, which seemed formed like that of a whale, with huge fins attached, that looked big enough to destroy a boat at one blow. Upon discovering the tug steaming towards it, the fish or beast, whichever it was, uttered a low moaning sound as if very much frightened, and then blowing a loud blast, it sunk. The captain cruised about the spot for some time, but no trace of the fish was afterwards seen. It is described as being much larger than any sturgeon which has ever been seen in the lakes, some of those who have seen it estimating its length at fully sixteen feet. Its head is large and its jaws capacious.

As another evidence that there are monsters of the deep in the lake, we have the fact of the finding of large-sized fish on the banks, which have evidently been bitten in two by something not of their species—something of the shark species, that is fond of a delectable meal, and likes it on the wing.

"Just the Man for France." In one of Tuckerman's Papers about Paris occurs the following Paris talk concerning the present Napoleon: "Just the man for France," observed a student; "I saw him dismount at a guard-house last week, courteously take a musket from a soldier's hand and shoot a bird on the wing. He knows how to make the army love him." "Just the "Just the man for France," said one of his physicians; the does not know what fear means; riding out daily in an open wagon, mingling here with a promiseuous throng—above precaution, though fully aware of danger. The other morning I was in attendance very early. He came out of his chamber, and for the benefit of light, took a chair within two feet of the window. As we conversed, a man's head suddealy appeared on the other side of the glass. I could not restrain an exclamation, and instinctively sprang aside—the idea of assassination flashing on my mind. The Emperor never started, or even looked surprised, but asked, in his usual tone, "What do you suppose that fellow wants?" It turned out, when the servants were called, that he was a window-cleaner, and ignorant of which apartments were occupied by his Majesty, had set his ladder first against the casement where we were." "He is just the man for France," observed a wealthy lace merchant, wiping the perspiration from his forehead. "See how he has improved the city. What a splendid street the Rue Rivoli, and how fast the Louvre is approaching the Tuileries!" "He is just the man for France," repeated a young officer; "how generously he treats us," and he pointed to an order in his button-hole. "The best ruler we ever had," echoed a pretty woman, daintily arrayed; "how splendid were those fetes, last summer, at St. Gloud; and is not this charming?" "He preserves law and order" said a banker "trad, flowed the state of the st order," said a banker; "trade flourishes." "They are a fickle people, and need the curb," remarked an Englishman. "It's Providence," question between anarchy and despotism, "remarked a journalist. "Everybody is content," said an Abbe, "except atheists and authors." ,"The Faubourg St. Germain," chimed in a fair denizen of the Chausee d'Antin, "is obsolete; the Emperor recognizes merit before birth."

Gossip about Kings.

The Paris correspondent of the London Star writes: "We have two or three stray kings wandering about in all directions. I stumbled yesterday on his Wurtembergean Majesty and one of his brothers. He is a gentlemanlylooking man, and appeared at the moment I met him intently engaged in the purchase of some of Dobson's unrivalled glass. The aged king of Bayaria arrives here to-night. The old man is eighty-one, but art—in pursuit of which, as well as for love of Lola Montez, he sacrificed a crown-is still his predominant passion, and in spite of the remonstrances of his family, he has undertaken the long jour-ney from Munich to Paris, in order to judge for himself of modern art as represented at the Exhibition. The reigning king, his grandson, remains at Munich until it be Richard Wagner's convenience to accompany him to Paris. "It is a curious fact that the old king is by birth a Frenchman. His father, the Count Palatine of Deux Ponts Birkenfield, was quar-tered at Strasburg, in command of the Regi-ment d'Alsace, when his son was born. Louis XVI. was his god-father, and sent him a berconnette, in which was the colonelcy of a cavalry regiment, a pension of 12,000 francs and a bouquet of diamonds worth 80,000 francs. There is a story that the officers of his father's regiment presented him with a mattress stuffed with moustaches. Whether the future monarch slept on this military couch or not, I cannot take on myself to assert, but it certainly failed to inspire him with warlike ideas; still, we must do Louis the Art Patron the justice to say that when the French invaded Bavaria, in 1813, he raised the whole country against Napoleon, and fought gallantly at the head of his regiment. His reign, too, was productive of immense good to his people. He sup-pressed gambling houses, as well as lotteries, hroughout his kingdom, reduced his budget, diminished the period of military service, increased the salary of schoolmasters, aided the Greeks to recover their independence, made his capital a treasury of art, and, conjointly with the late King of Wurtemberg, inaugu-rated the Zollverein."

CITY BULLETIN.

CAPE ISLAND.-Citizens who cannot spare the time during the week to visit the sea-shore, wil bear in mind the fact that the West Jersey Rail road Company is now running three trains daily to Cape Island, leaving the foot of Market street at 9 A. M., 3 P. M. and 4 P. M. The 4 P. M. is an express train, and makes the run to Cape Island in three houes, leaves Cape Island at 6.30 and 9 A. M. and 5 P. M. The Sunday train, which leaves at 7 o'clock A. M., and returning leaves Cape Island at 5 P. M., has become very popular. Passengers who come up by the early train in the mornings, reach the city in ample time to attend business. time to attend business

ATLANTIC CITY.—The season at this delightful place of resort is now at its height. The number of visitors is large, but the accommodations ber of visitors is large, but the accommodations are ample, and balk, parties and other amusements are of nightly occurrence. To-morrow evening there will be several hops. The can't-get-aways can either take the 2 P. M. express (through in two hours), or the 4.15 P. M. train to-day, and reach Atlantic in time for all the anusements. The Sunday train should not be forgotten. It leaves Vine street wharf every Sunday morning, at 7.30: returning, leaves Atlantic at a quarter of 5 P. M.

FOR CAPE MAY .- On Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week the steamer Samuel M. Felton will leave Chestnut street wharf at 9 A. M. for Cape May, returning on the alternate days. Particulars in regard to fare, &c., will be found in the advertisement in another column. This is a cheap and pleasant mode of reaching the island, and it will doubtless be selected by those who prefer a sail on the water to the heat and dust of railroad travel.

VALUABLE HOTEL PROPERTY AT CAPE MAY OR SALE .- The popular establishment at Cape May, known as the American House Hotel, will be offered at public sale, on the afternoon of to morrow, Saturday. If the property cannot be sold together, it will be divided, and disposed of in separate lots.

Adictinguishing feature of the paper has been the illustrated.

A distinguishing feature of the paper has been the illustrated Fashion Department, under the title of "THE LADIES CLUB," by "JENNIE JUNE," (Mrs. Jennie C. Croly,) a vigorous though pleasing writer, and an undieputed authority on matters appertaining to Fashion. Articles from all those above named, and from several others of like eminence in the walks of light literature, will appear in the new volume for 1868-7, forming A Splendid and Unequaled Array of Talent
