THE DAILY EVENING BULLETIN.—PHILADELPHIA, SATURDAY, AUGUST 31, 1867.

MIDSUMMER. BY R. W. EMERSON. Around the lovely valley rise The purple hills of Paradise. Oh, softly on you banks of haze Her rosy face fair summer lays.

Becalmed along the azure sky, The argosies of cloudland lie, Whose shores, with many a shining tift, Far off their pearl-white peaks uplif Through all the long midsummer day ie meadow sides are sweet with hay I seek the coolest sheltered seat, Just where the field and forest meet,-Where grow the pine trees tall and blan The ancient oaks austere and grand, nd fringy roots and pebbles fret he ripples of the rivulet. I watch the mowers as they go Through the tall grass a white-sleeved row; With even strokes their scythos they swing, In tune with merry whetstone's ring; Behind the nimble youngsters run And toss the thick swaths in the sun The cattle graze, while warm, and still, Slopes the broad pasture, basks the hill And bright, when summer breezes break,

And green wheat crinkles like a lake. The butterfly and humble bee Come to the pleasant woods with mey Quickly before me runs the quail, The chickens skulk behind the rail, ligh up the lone wood-pigeon site nd the woodpecker pecks and flits Sweet woodland music sinks and swells, he brooklet rings its tinkling bells, he swarming insects drone and hum, The partridge beats his throbbing dru mirnel leave among the boughs

And chatters in his leafy house, The oriole flashes by, and, look! Into the mirror of the brook, Where the vain blue-bird trims his coat, wo tiny feathers fall and float. As silently, as tenderly.

The dawn of peace descends to me. Oh, this is peace! I have no need riend to talk, or book to read A dear Companion here abide lose to my thrilling heart He hides e holy silence in His voice; lic and listen, and rejoice.
