The Continential Congress in 1775, passed a "declaratory resolution" in the form of a petition to the King, in which they solemnly denied any intention of casting off their allegiance, but that was not held to be binding under the altered circumstances of 1776. The lawlessness of this Amnesty Proclama-tion consists in the fact that the President  $\hbar \omega_0$ no power to issue it. The power to issue a proclamation extending "to presons who may have participated in the existing rebellion, pardon and annesty," was granted to the President by an act passed 1 dity 17, 1862. But on December 3, 1866, the power was withdrawn by the repeal of the bill. The prodamation is therefore in direct violation of law, and cannot be construed otherwise by any force of sophistry. Hamill's judges claimed the race on the plea that Brown intentionally fouled their man, while Brown's judges as vociferonsly claimed for a verdict, alleging that Hamill forced a collision by stopping in Brown's course. The following extract from the evidence will show how differently the judges in the stake-boat looked at the affair: Mr. Elliott, judge for Brown, says Hamill was ahead, he turned first, and was lying broadside to the track, apparently waiting for Brown to come up and foul him. Brown's boat struck Hamill about five feet from the stern on the port Hamill about five feet from the stern on the port side. Mr. Munn, Judge for Hamill, said Hamill was three lengths ahead. They were turning from east to west, when Hamill turning the stake boat, Brown gave some tremendous pulls, which sent him into Hamil's boat, before the latter could get out of his way. It was evidently a fonl on the part of Brown. Other witnesses were ex-amined with the same result. How they saw it, seemed to depend upon whicher they were Brown or Hamil' men. Roberts and the judges then proceeded to the balcony and called attention. When all became quiet, and Roberts was about to speak, a volce at his side Roberts was about to speak, a volce at his side broke in on the quistness, with these words: "Gentlemen, as a friend of Mr. Brown, I say do not give up your money. We shall appeal." Cheers and groans were both given in response.
