A Metancholy Komanice—The Bones of Two Persons Found in a Rox in the Street.

A strange incident took place in New Orleans a few days since. A man, far advanced in years, had been employed to carry a box to a certain quarter in the city; but, previous to his reaching his destination, he fell dead in the street. The subordies ordered the had attended the German Reform Church. The last note of the first bell had hardly ceased when she left her procuring a large knife, he placed hims the street or the procuring a large knife, he placed hims the street or the procuring a large knife, he placed hims the street or the procuring a large knife, he placed him shells of the procuring a large knife, he placed him she first bell had hardly ceased when she left her apply home, tripping gaily along, little regarding the uncertainties of life. On seeing her, the maddened brute made a rule of the first bell had hardly ceased in years, had been employed to carry a box to a certain quarter in the city; but, previous to his reaching her and the sum of the procuring a large knife, he placed him she in the street in wait for her coming, knowing that she attended the German Reform Church. The last note of the first bell had hardly ceased when she left her apply home, tripping gaily along, little regarding the uncertainties of life. On seeing her, the maddened to the made a rule of the first bell had hardly ceased w as a nation any more than the United States did by treating with them for the exchange of prisoners; that the British law was unable to prevent, and did not protect blockade running; that the Alabama could not be stopped until it was actually proved that she was intended for the Confederates, and that san old country could not move in such matiers as promptly as a young nation [laughter]; and that there was in England a great lack of knowledge of the character of the Governments of the several States. The large comb and other interesting articles were found in the southeastern dinner where the principal dish was a roast dinner where the pr portion of the great chamber, where the black mould was itself overlaid by a cake of if Thou canst bless under the gospel what is estimated at $10,000. alagmite, which was attached to the wall of Thou didst curse under the law, bless this stalagmite, which was attached to the wall of the cavern. This was the first and at present the only example of such a cake formed immediately on the black deposit itself. The interest attaching to it lies in the fact that the lodgment of the black mould had closed before the formation of the black mould had closed before the formation at him for some time very earnestly, and at length said. "Weel Thave been looking for of the stalagmite lying on it had begun, hence length said: "Weel, I have been looking for some teem at the leens of your face." "And of the stalagmite lying on it had begun, hence the geological and archeological evidence are concurrent. The overlying mould has continued to yield a large number of bones of various mammals and birds, some of them belonging to extinct species. The most interesting objects found during the year were several portions of the human skeleton—including vertebree, parts of the lower laws continued to yield a large number of bones of God had na changed your heart, you would have been a most tremendous rogue." Mr. Hill laughed heartily, and said: "Well, you have just hit the nail on the head."

Let clergymen bewere how they alternated teresting objects found during the year were several portions of the human skeleton—including vertebree, parts of the lower jaws containing teeth, several loose teeth, and a skull. The skull was found about six inches below the surface, adjacent to the limestone rock, and immediately within the northern external entrance of the cavern. The other human remains are a tooth and a portion of an upper jaw containing four teeth. These, the most interesting remains of man's osseous system which the cavern has yet yielded, were found on the 2d of January, 1867. The black band below the stalagmite floor has yielded bones and teeth of various enimals, and traces of the presence of man. The animals represented are the ox, deer (more than one species, horse, badger, bear, fox, rhinoceros, flake's, ceres and implements of flint, bone tools and homes partially burnt. A total of the specimens of flints have been found. No inconsiderable number of these are more or less perfect lanceolate implements. It appears utterly impossible to suppose that they were introduced into the cavern by other than human agency, or that they had been moved from the spot where they were primarily lodged: and the conclusion is drawn that Kent's Cavern has not only been identified as the home of one of our early ancestors, but the vestibule as the particular apartment in which he enjoyed the pleasures of his own firesid,—where he cooked and ate his meals, and where he chipped flint nodules and split and scraped bones into implements for war, for the chase, and for domestic use.
