AMUSEMENTS.

RICHINGS OF ELA TROUPE.—This popular company of artists will inaugurate a brief season at the Academy of Music this evening with Balle's charming opera of The Bohemian Girl. The cast will include Miss Richof Music this evening with Baite's charming opera of The Bohemian Girl. The cast will include Miss Richings and Mrs. Arnold, with Messrs. Castle, Campbell, Wylle and Seguin. In view of the great popularity enjoyed by Miss Richings and her associates, it is hardly necessary to impress upon our readers the fact that an excellent performance may be expected. From the rapid manner in which the tickets have been disposed of, it may be regarded as certain that the house will be crowded to-night.

will be crowded to-night.

THE THEATERS.—At the Walnut this evening Mr.
Thomas J. Hemphill, the business manager, will have a benefit. The operatic comedy of The Grand Duchess of Geroletein will be produced with new scenery, costumes, &c. Apart from the fact that Mr. Hemphill's deserts as an enterprising business man entitle him to a generous recognition from the public, we recommend our readers to attend to witness a performance which, if report be true, promises to be excellent. At the Arch Nobody Daughter will be repeated this evening with Miss Kate Reignolds in three characters. At the with Miss Kate Relgnolds in three characters. At the Chestnut Mrs. D. P. Bowers will appear in Mary Stuart to-night, It will be withdrawn after to-morrow. The American offers an attractive bill in the shape of the usual selection of varieties, with the new ballet of The Red Gnome.

ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE.—The attractions offered at this place of amusement this evening are unusually great. They include the Trip Around the World, the Japs and Arabs, the Richmond Raiders, with songs, dances, burlesques, &c.

Philadelphia Opera House.—A large number of rhilabelevilla Opera House.—A large number of novelties are announced for every night this week at this temple of the dusky Muses, if there are any such divinities. Eph Horn, Frank Moran and a number of other stars in the firmament of Ethiopian ministrelsy will appear in songs, dances, burlesques and general eccentricities. A pleasant evening is assured to those who drop in to this establishment.

MADAME RISTORI, on her return from Richmond, will give one matinee in Philadelphia on Friday, Nov. 8, at the Chestaut Street Theatre, when she will appear for the last time in Philadelphia in her great role of "Elizabeth, Queen of England." Bittz.—Signor Blitz will give an exhibition at Assembly Buildings to-night.

ATTEMPTED STORE ROBBERY .- A man named William Morris was found in the feed store of E. H. Turner, No 1716 Ridge avenue, on Saturday afternoon, crawling along the floor towards the money drawer. He was arrested and sent below by Alderman Fitch.

NEW JUVENILES.

"Parental Training," is the title of an excellent little volume from the pen of the late Rev. Wm. Bacon. It is in the form of nine lectures on the important topic of parental training, a subject little studied and little understood by the great majority of parents. These lectures abound with sensible suggestions which are well calculated to promote habits of order, discipline, obedience and respect in children toward their parents and superiors. Published by the Presbyterian Board of Publication, 1834 Chestnut street. The same society has also published an interesting temperance story for boys, called "Weakness and Strength," by Mrs. Herbert, which is well written, and will contribute its share in warning the young against that sort of self-reliance which lies at the root of most of the failures to regist the temptations of intemperance. The volume has a number of good illustrations.

"Jack of All Trades" is a rattling little story just published by Lee & Shepherd, Boston. It is based upon the supposed adventures of a stolen child, and although filled with every description of fantastic and extravagant points, has that peculiar attractiveness about it which will cause it to be eagerly devoured by every boy or girl who gets hold of it.

Lee & Shepherd have also issued a new book by Oliver Optic. It is called "The Starry Flag," and, like all the works of this popular author, it is devoted to inculcating a sound spirit of American loyalty. Its scenes are laid in Massachusetts waters, and are just of that fresh, breezy character which boys most delight in. For sale by G. W. Pitcher.

The American Sunday School Union has published "The Story of a Chinese Boy." The story is a true one, and narrates the singular career of a little Chinese, or rather half-Chinese boy, for his father was an American, who was among the first arrivals in San Francisco, from the Flowery Land. The narrative is highly interesting, and gives a startling insight into the condition, moral and religious, of the most degraded portion of the Chinese population of California, while it illustrates the amount of good which may be done, in the most unpromising field, by a few earnest men and women, or even by the unaided efforts of a single little boy.

J. P. Skelly & Co., 21 South Seventh street. have just published two juveniles, well adapted for Sunday school libraries. "Brothers and Sisters," by the author of "Lost Lilles," is a quiet, pleasant domestic story, with an excellent moral interweven throughout. "The Bunch of Grapes," is a little story of Cromwell's days, and covers ground always interesting to children. It is a reprint, we believe, of a popular English juve-

"Snow-berries," by Alice Carey, is another new juvenile from the prolific press of Ticknor & Fields. It contains a great collection of Miss Cary's little sketches for children, both in prose and poetry. There is material enough in it to furnish nursery ammunition for a long winter's campaign, and of the most effective kind and calibre. It is needless to say that it is handsomely printed, illustrated and bound. For sale ty G. W. Pitcher.

James S. Claxton, 1214 Chestnut street, has just published "It Isn't Right," a reprint of a most capital book for the sons of working-men and for working-men themselves. The lessons of temperance, prudence, and domestic virtue which it inculcates are of inestimable value, and the book, which has already had a wide circulation in England, will undoubtedly become equally popular and useful in this country.

"Malcolm's Cottage" is a new American story for children, published by James S. Claxton. I is by Mrs. J. McNair Wright, already well known as the author of several excellent books for the young. A sound tone of religious principle runs through the story, and it is admirably adapted to instruct and improve, as well as to amuse its voung readers.

"Queer Little People," just published by Ticknor & Fields, is a charming little juvenile, consisting of about a dozen of Mr. Stowe's contributions to "Our Young Folks." It is beautifully gotten up, plentifully illustrated, handsomely bound, and altogether attractive for the little people. For sale by G. W. Pitcher.

DISASTERS.

FEARFUL BOILER EXPLOSION.

A Large Factory Demolished at Union Hill, N.J.—Two Men Killed and Two Injured.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock Saturday afternoon fearful boiler explosion occurred at Union Hill J., resulting in the total destruction of a large factory, the death of two men, the injury of two others and the killing of two horses. The building, which was situated just back from the Bull's Head road, and some six or seven hundred Bull's Head road, and some six or seven hundred feet south of Mainberg & Heim's hotel and brewery, was known as Cootes's Plano-forte Manufactory, but was occupied jointly by George Fansel as a saw-mill and for making moulding patterns, and by Mr. Meyer as a tannery for dressing sheep-skins. In the building quite a number of men were employed. Fortunately at the time of the catastrophs they were nearly all the time of the catastrophe they were nearly all absent, having gone to their dinners. The building was fifty feet front, seventy-five feet deep, three stories high, and constructed with brick in the most substantial manner. The boiler was situated in a basement room at the southeast corner of the building, and is said to be about 24-horse power.

There were four persons in the engine-room at the time of the explosion, Mr. Fansel, Otto Meyer, Jr., the engineer (name not ascertained) and a laboring man employed by Jacob Hammer, named Chas. Hansherr, who had just entered, having been sent there by his employer for some tools. Mr. Fansel and young Meyer were in conversation when the latter stepped up and looked at the indicator, and turning suddenly around with a countenance indicating great alarm, exclaimed: "Fansel, for God's sake! there is more than two hundred pounds of steam on." than two hundred pounds of steam on," and before any one in the room was able to escape, the boiler exploded with a most terrific noise, which was heard at a great distance noise, which was heard at a great distance, com-pletely demolishing the building, with the exceppictery demoissing the building, with the exception of about two stories, front and rear, and leaving the high brick chimney intact. For a while the air was thick with bricks, stones, pieces of boiler-iron, iron pipes, machinery and timelers, which came raining down in all directions, and in front of the building the ground was completely covered with the debris for from two hundred feet around.

dred to three hundred feet around. dred to three hundred feet around.

Fansel, Meyer and the engineer were blown out of the front of the building. The engineer was scalded in a dreadful manner and being conveyed to St. Mary's Hospital, died, there during the night. Young Meyer was very badly scalded about the face, head and arms, but may recover.

Mr. Fansel was scalded, but his injuries are comparative light and he was sold for he out the paratively light, and he was able to be out yes-terday. Charles Hansherr was buried in the ruins near where the front of the boller stood, and his mutilated remains were not recovered until noon yesterday, it not having been known until in the forenoon that any one was missing. Abent one-third of the front end of the boller ascended perpendicularly to a great height, joining the boiler-room, killing two horses and setting fire to the building, which, together with the debris of the large building, was totally consumed. Two lengths of the rear end of the boiler, about 7 feet, took a northeasterly direction. tion, and passing within 10 feet of a gentleman with four children in a wagon, on the Bull's Head road, landed in the gutter, 60 feet in front of the hotel, and over 700 feet from the factory. Two other large pieces of boiler iron struck in front of the hotel, rebounded across the road into Denning Duer's woods, one of them cutting down a tree; a piece of iron pipe, some ten feet in length and two feet in circumference, landed near the hotel, and another piece, about half the size, was found a short distance off. Two dwelling houses near were slightly damaged by flying missiles, and one of them, belonging to Mr. Fansel, was scorched in front, and the other caught fire in the gable, but Engine Company No. 1, and Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, of Union Hill, were able to prevent any material damage and saved them from destruction. The engineer was a fiew man and had been employed there only three or four days, and no one in the neighborhood seemed to know him. Hansherr was a single man, about 30 years of age.

The loss will probably amount to $30,000, upon which there was no insurance, the policy having run out during the fore-part of the week, and the Mutual, of Jersey City, were to have insured it Saturday afternoon for $20,000. Mr. Fansel purchased the property two weeks since from Mr. Coates for $23,000, while it is said to have been worth a great day, more the Mr. Mayork Lorent worth a great deal more. Mr. Meyer's loss was from $7,000 to $10,000 on stock and machinery. It was insured for $5,000.

The case will be fully investigated, as it is said that the engineer was not competent for the posi-

TERRIBLE RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Fifteen Persons Wounded and One Killed. [From the Wilmington (Del.) Commercial, of Saturday.]
A terrible accident occurred on the Junction and Breakwater Railroad last night, which resulted in the death of at least one man and pro-bably others. A construction train, loaded with rails and material, went down from Milford to the end of the road yesterday afternoon. All the cars were unloaded but one, and the train started back at about dusk, having the car loaded with ralls ahead, and quite a number of laborers, with rails ahead, and quite a number of laborers, mostly colored, on the empty cars.

As they were coming along pretty rapidly some of the rails slipped off. It is supposed from the manner in which they were thrown that one end of the rails slipped off, and these striking the ground the rails were shot back amongst the man. In some manner anythow quite a number. men. In some manner, anyhow, quite a number of rails were thrown amongst the laborers, knocking a number of them off the cars, -killing one instantly, cutting both legs off another, breaking the thigh of another, and in all, severely injuring from twelve to fifteen men, several of them, it is thought, very seriously. Our informant left the scene of the disaster immediately after the accident and we could gather no fuller details. The train was entirely in charge and under control of the Junction and Breakwater Railroad Company.

CRIME.

A Willful Murder at Sea. [From the Portland (Me.) Press, Oct. 24.]

Information has been received of a sad affair which took place on board of one of Williams & which took piace on board of one of Williams & Clidden's line of packet ships, the Fearless, commanded by Capt. John H. Rhew, of Hallowell, onher late passage from Boston to San Francisco. The ship was of Cape Horn, where for several days she was in great peril bylone of the most terrible gales ever experienced in June—the dead of winter. During this gale it seems that the third mater insulted his superior officer, the second mate, by some offenofficer, the second mate, by some offen-sive language, on account of which the latter kicked the former. After the second mate had kicked the former. After the second mate had retired to his berth (they occupied the same cabin), the third mate, resolved on revenge, proceeded to their room below, unlocked his chest, took therefrom his loaded revolver, and approaching his victim's bunk, fired twice at him. Both balls took effect, but were not so immediately fatal but that the wounded man was able to spring upon his assassin and raise the cry of murder. When Captain Drew and others with him reached the scene, the murderer had his victim under him upon the murderer had his victim under him upon the murderer had his victim under him upon the floor and was endeavoring to break his head open with the butt of his pistol, which, on seeing the Captain approaching, he instantly turned and blew the second mate's brains out with a fresh discharge. The murderer was immediately resn discharge. The murderer was immediately seized, put in irons and kept in confinement for the rest of the voyage, till the ship arrived in San Francisco, which was upon the 9th of September last, when he was delivered up to the United States authorities. of september has, when as the distribution of the United States authorities. The event was a most painful one to Captain Drew and all on board. It took place at a time when the ship needed the help of the entire orew in a fearful storm; four sailors were already on the sick list, and this affair deprived her of two more men. With great difficulty the ship survived the hurricane, and reached her destination as above stated. We know not the name of the murdered man or of his assassin. the name of the murdered man or of his assassin. The first had been in the same ship with Captain Drew his two previous voyages around the world, and was a good officer. The murderer belonged near Salem, Mass., where, we understand, he sustained a good reputation.

Melancholy Suicide in Trenton, N. J.

[From the Trenton State Gazette, Oct. 26.]

The neighborhood of Hanover street was startled yesterday by the announcement that George R. Runyon, formerly clerk at the Trenton House, and more recently at the store of Sager & Co., had committed suicide. The circumstances of this sad affair we learn to be these:— Mr. Runyon has been rather in a melancholy mood for some time, growing out of do-mestic difficulties, and perhaps the want of steady employment. Yesterday morning he was sitting in the bar-room of the National Hotel, in Hanover street, where he boarded, reading a news paper at ten o'clock. He got up, and in walking about the floor made the remark that he "was going to hell and had already purchased his ticket," but no one seemed to regard the remark with any seriousness. A short time after he sent a colored waiter to a drug store for two ounces a colored water to a drug store for two ounces of laudanum. It was procured, labelled and handed to Mr. Runyon, who was sitting near the stove. He unrolled the paper containing the bottle, examined it and rubbed off the label. This was seen by the colored man, who was engaged in working about the room. He placed the bottle on the stove and in a few minutes picked it up and drank about one-half of it. Still the colored man thought but little about it and wet he looked drank about one-hair of it. Still the colored man thought but little about it, and yet he looked at him with surprise, but concluded that he had probably taken but little. Mr. Runyon walked about the room a little while, and then sat down and soon fell asleep. The colored man tried to get him to go to bed, and with the ald of another person got him to go they supposing him to be person got him to go, they supposing him to be under the influence of liquor, as he had been drinking rather freely for some days.

The colored man went up to his room, and, observing some frothing about the month, came down stairs and told the barkeeper that there was something the matter with George. A physician who stops at the house was called up stairs. He raised his head, and found the unfortunate man in a during stair. in a dying state. He simply gave one gasp, and died about half-past two o'clock. Mr. Runyon was about twenty-six years of age, of very respectable family. His brother was formerly Mayor of Princeton, where the family reside. A coroner's inquest was held, when the above facts were brought out. The remains were taken to Princeton last evening.

The wounded man was taken into custody, and it is probable a warrant will be issued for Constable Preston's arrest.

MAIL REPORTS FROM THE ROMAN WAR FIELDS.

Fatal Explosion in a French Mine. The new steamship France, Captain Grace, of the National Steam Navigation Company's line, which left Liverpool on the 18th and Queenstown on the 14th of October, arrived yesterday evening, bringing files in detail of cable despatches dated to her day of salling from Ireland.

The English Parliament will meet on the 9th of November, for a short session, for the purpose of voting supplies for the Abyssinian expedition. The London money market continued depressed on the 14th of October, owing to the uncertainty that the suspension of Messrs. Colin & Campbell may affect smaller houses. The representatives may affect smaller houses. The representatives of Overend, Gurney & Co. issued a circular in Logica in which they say they shall pay a further dividend of three shillings in addition to the twelve shillings in the twelve s the twelve shillings in the pound previously paid to their creditors, thus reducing their liabilities to £168,000. The Fenian alarm panic in England had not subsided; in fact, it had been considerably intensified, owing to a statement made by a constable to the effect that he saw large parties of men drilling at a late hour, not far from Manchester. In Oldham there are said to be between four and five hundred members of the Brotherhood, and drilling to a somewhat extensive scale has been carried on nightly. In Warrington the militia and volunteer armories were closely guarded night and day. Many "suspects" were closely watched. Four additional arrests were made in Manchester.

A dreadful accident, involving a loss of twentyfour lives, occurred in a mine near St. Ettenno, in France, caused by fire-damp.

Reports of the Fighting in the Pa-pal Territory—A Garibaldian Chief Killed—Invasion of Nerola—No Mis-sion to Biarritz. By the steamship France, at this port, we have the following telegrams, reporting the military operations in the Papal territory, against and in defence of Rome:

A telegram from Rome, dated on the 11th of October, says: The official Giornale di Roma of roday says: At Torre Algins, Monte Alfino and Pecrone numerous Garibaldian bands have again concentrated, and are still increasing in numbers, and receiving large quantities of arms. A band of one thousand have again invaded Nerola, where they have levied supplies of provisions.

The Pontifical troops are marching against

A telegram dated in Rome on the 12th of Octoper reports: Yesterday, while the garrison of Subraco was absent scouring the country, a band of insurgents came down from the mountains and occupied the town, the gendarmes withdrawing to the castle. The garrison on its return attacked the insurgents and repulsed them.

The official accounts state that thirty Gariballians entered Subraco yesterday by surprise, durng the absence of the garrison on reconnoissance The Pontifical troops, on their return in the evening, retook possession of the town after an encounter with the invaders, in which the latter lost fifteen prisoners and three killed, including amongst the latter the Garibaldian chief Milanies. The Pontifical troops only suffered a loss of two wounded.

The Observatore Romano of to-day says it is au-horized to contradict the statement that Mgr. Franchie was intrusted with a mission to Biarritz nd to give a denial, therefore, at the same time to the reports of conversations at that place and to conclusions arrived at by some journals in onnection with the alleged mission Arrests continue to be made in Rome.

The Republican State Committee of Massachusett have issued an appeal to the Republican voters of that State for loyalty to the party, and the dangers to which the country would be exposed in the event of the spread of the Demo-cratic raction, the address says:

The Republican State Committee.

tempt to interfere with, even were interference desirable. But the party is a branch of that national organization which, in order to be successful, must have a common platform, and the various branches of which must act in good faith with each other for a common end. A new Presidential election is before us. The administration of the Gavernment in all its parts will devalve upon one Government in all its parts will devolve upon one or the other of the two great parties. The Executive and Legislative Departments, after March 4, 1869, must be in harmony, and the country must be represented abroad and at home by men who are on one side or the other of the great Na-tional question of the day. So far as the support of the Republican nominations is concerned, this is no time for discord or indifference. Under the lesson taught by the losses which we have encountered in Ohio and Pennsylvania, the South calls upon us to stand firm. The black and white Unionists alike ask us for a full Republican vote. New York sends word to us that her divisions are healed, and promises to us that her divisions are healed, and promises to us that her divisions are healed, and promises to the property which shall be the healed of the section. us a victory which shall be the herald of greater success in 1868. West of Ohio our friends are unshaken; and California already well-nigh recovers the ground lost at her State election. We call upon the Republicans of Massachusetts to be united in support of their nominations, and give to them a majority which shall teach and give to them a majority which shall teach the Democratic reactionists that they must look elsewhere than to the old Bay State for active sympathy and support. Our candidates are entitled to confidence, and are worthy of the cordial and unanimous vote of the whole party.

And in no way can the patriotic citizen so well exhibit his purpose to stand by the party of the country, and close up justly and finally all questions growing out of the war, as by giving them an enthusiastic and overwhelming support. TENNESSEE.

result as indicated. There was very little doubt of Governor Brownlow's election after he declared himself a candidate, and the result of the ballot yesterday has been accepted as a foregone conclusion. The Governor's competitors were among the ables Governor's competitors were among the ablest and strongest politicians of the State, in whom the people have repeatedly expressed their highest confidence by election to posts of honor and trust. Two of them have recently been reclected to Congress, and have a full term of two years to serve in the lower House. To be preferred to such distinguished competitors is an extraordinary honor, while the high tribute so recently paid to the unsuccessful rivals by the loyal people of the State robs their failure of its ordinary sting. Various influences united to ordinary sting. Various influences united to make the Senator elect an all but invincible candidate. The fierce warfare waged by the sedi-tionists, backed by the President, for more than two years against the State Government, through-out which Gov. Brownlow never failed to show the highest order of sagacity, patriotism and moral the highest order of sagacity, patriotism and moral courage; his promptness in crushing out the incipient treason of the Conservative ringleaders in the memorable two weeks' struggle for the Constitutional Amendment in the Legislature; his proclamation ngainst the conspiracies of the Conservative Central Committee, which gave him the soubriquet of "Old Proc." among "certain lewd fellows of the baser sort;" and finally his unprecedented majority of over 50,000 in the late State election, all contributed to induce the late State election, all contributed to induce the Legislature to hand him over the Senaforship as his crowning honor.

NEW JERSEY MATTERS.

ave now placed their respective tickets in the field, and are working with a will to secure success. In Camden the Republicans have a strong nomination for the Assembly, and unless there is an abandonment by some of the members of that party of the principles for which they have so long fought, and under which they have won somany glorious victories, he will be triumphantly elected. Mr. Custis has been tried, and not a breath of suspicion can be raised against him. Yet the Johnsonites are trying to raise objections against his election, by endeavoring to make it appear that he is committed to negro suffrage, and to force that issue upon the party. These efforts, however, cannot succeed in injuring him, because his record for the past two years is too unsullied to be impaired nomination for the Assembly, and unless there is the past two years is too unsullied to be impaired by manufactured slanders. The contest is progressing warmly, and each party will do all it can. The Democrats work with desperation, and are apparently sure of success, while the Repub-licans are laboring with unusual zeal and deter-

The English artisan or peasant of the same class either gulps down a fierce dram at a gin shop or besots himself at an ale house. Bulwer, in his England and the English, written a third of a century ago, relates that one day in Normandy he overheard a peasant excusing himself for not accepting the convivial invitation of a comrade by saying: "I have promised to take my wife and children to the guinguette, dear souls!" A week later he had crossed the Channel, and was riding in Dorchester, when he heard a laborer calling out to a great hulk-ing lad, swinging on a gate-post: "Bill, thee look to the old sow; I be just agoing to the Blue Lion to get rid of my missus and the brats-rot om!
