It is only necessary to glance at the aquatic performances of servants in the early morn-ing to see how little regard they have to the use or the abuse of their water privileges. "Wash-paves" are kept running at a full head for an hour or more, drawing hogsheads where quarts are consumed, and depriving manufacturing establishments and house-keepers, who live on high ground, of needful supplies. How to cure this evil has long been a problem and various plans have been devised. Ninth st. for the cost of the subject is that the members of the board to be the subject is the subject is correct, of course "nobody" the subject is the subject is the subject is constant. informs us that the members of the Board are of opinion that they will have to build still another reservoir or place meters on every house unless the people cease wasting water as they are now doing. About 56,060,000 gallons of water are brought into the city in the stores down work, where the stores down work, and the stores down work, and the stores down work, and the store of it did once. Where water-meters are in use in New York a charge of one-and-a-half cents per 200 gallons is made to the consumer. This is precisely the cost to the city for introducing the water, and there is a manifest fairness in requiring the consumer to pay for pecket for what he wastes. The habit of can prudently assigns them all to October wasting water is not confined to this side of the Atlantic. In the great French Exposition there are several contrivances that have been devised to correct this evil. Among them is an invention patented in England.

"The water is distributed through very small pipes of gutta percha or glass, with a bore no larger than that of a pipe-stem. The small bore mater-pipe enters a vessel of earthenware, or of the cheapest glass, which is closed at the top, and it enters by a three-way trap. The water passes through the pipe very slowly, a mere ooze, com-pressing the air until its tension equals the pres-sure of the water, when no more enters. With the pressure of about 100 feet the air is compressed to one-fourth its usual bulk, and a galle bottle contains three quarts of water and one of air, the pressure of which forces out the water, the tap is turned, as fast as it would do if when the tap is taking, as has has it would do if the apply-pipe were of the size of the tap, getting gradually clower as the closed bottle is emptied, and then ceasing altogether, as the three-way trap prevents the water flowing in and out of the vessel at the same time. For a washstand a gallon vessel will suffice, even for a

The adventures o a portion of the construction party read more a portion of the construction party read information of the construc Gate, in July, 1866. On the 4th of the October following, the vessel was cut through by the ice, when near the coast of Asia, and the crew were compelled to abandon her. Like so many Robinson Crusoes, all hands set to work and gother stores, the Company's materials and most of her sails and rigging to the shore, which was about four and a half miles distant. They then constructed The question of a sufficient supply of pure water for the use of the city has lately had feet in dimensions, roofed it with poles and where df those periodical agitations which are earth, and banked it outside with clods of three men at the place. Capt. Scammon calculated that there were seventy-five days' rations for the party, and they were so fortu dred and fifty deer. The meat and skins afterward sixty more deer were killed, and geese were procurable in great quantities. Many were shot, and some killed with clubs. Fish were also plentiful, so the party had no 20 degrees below zero. They had a very good

But there is a singular and amusing discrepancy in the dates assigned to arusing discrepancy in the dates assigned to them by the various journals. The Ledger, with commendable enterprise, dates its de-spatches from London and Paris at twelve an can prudently assigns them all to October 26th. The Press and Inquirer date the Italian news on Saturday evening, but give a despatch, professedly from London last night, regarding a forlorn vessel which chanced to run ashore in the Thames. Of course all cannot be correct, but there is reason to believe that the North American alone gives the true dates to all the despatches.
