RIGHINGS' OPERA TROUTE.—The comic opera of The Doctor of Alcandara was produced hast night at the Academy of Music. It was given with excellent effect by the company, each member of which acted with effective humor and sang gracefully and well. This evening the opera of Norma will be given. The cast will include Miss Richings, Mrs. Seguin, Mrs. Arnold, Messrs. Bernard, Peakes and Wylle. A capital performance may be expected, and it is to be hoped the house will be crowded.

The Thrates.—The pleasant little comedy of Surf will be repeated at the Arch this evening. It is drawing large audiences nightly and is well worth seeing. Mr. Edwin Forrest will appear to-night at the Wainut in his famous personation of the "Gladiator." Mrs. D. P. Bowers will give another representation of Marie Antoinette at the Chestaut this evening. CRIME.

Execution at Elizabeth, N. J., To-day —Tho tory of the Murderer's Career and Crime-Extraordinary Confes-sion. Sylvester Quiller, a negro, who at the September term of the Criminal Court at Elizabeth was convicted of the murder of George Furman, also colored, and who was sentenced to be hanged, is to be executed in the Union County Jail to-day at 12 o'clock. The incidents of the murder which was committed on the 8th of June last are as follows: Quiller had hired a small house in Westfield about the first of May, agreeing to pay the rent by working for his land-lord one day in every week. This, on account of his dissolute habits, he failed to do, and as he open this time in drinking saloons, his landlord, to secure his rent, provailed upon Quiller to let a part of the house to George Furman, the rent to be paid to the owner. But Quiller and Furman could not agree, and in their quarrels Furman had often threatened to "cut" Quiller, and the latter had ordered him out of the house. Thus matters atood when on the day of the matters stood, when, on the day of the murder, Quiller having been on a fishing excursion, returned home intoxicated, and placed some of Furman's furniture out of doors, and, in company with a friend, commenced carousing. Furman returned, and finding his chairs out of doors, repeated his threats, and Quiller immediately went to a neighbor's and asked for a gun, but, failing to obtain one, went to another house, and saying that he wished to "shoot a sknnk," adding afterward that it was "a two-legged one," obtained the weapon, returned home and deliberately shot Furnan. He then returned the gun to the owner, told him what he had done, repeating his confession to several other persons, but was not arrested until two days afterward. During his confluement he has occu-pled a front cell about half way down the rison corridor, but has been allowed the prison corridor, but has been allowed the freedom of the male department of the prison, and has conversed freely with the prisoners. Last night a cell was fitted up for him on the other side of the corridor, and ont of sight of the scaffold. During his imprisonout of sight of the scatfold. During his imprison-ment he has been very calm, never exhibiting any violent emotion, and yesterday afternoon when our reporter visited him, although he felt deeply his situation, he conversed freely with those who visited him. Under the religious in-struction of the Rev. Mr. Chester, the Chaplain of the prison, and the Rev. Mr. Jackson, the Pag-ter of the Colored Presbyterion Church in Filter for of the Colored Presbyterian Church in Elizabeth, he has become very plous, and expresses the hope that he may "die like a Christian." On Sunday he requested Mr. Ward, the warden of the prison, to allow him to address the prisoners. He gave them very good advice, warning them to avoid liquor, for it was that which had brought him to the foot of the gallows. He said also that he was pained to know that some of his fellow-prisoners were in the practice of using profone language, and he advised them to break away, not only from this vice, but all others. In closing he asked those of the prisoners who wished to become Christians to rise, and nearly with the process. all of them stood. At about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon he was visited by a number of colored friends, and in conversation with them he said: "To-morrow, at this time, I expect my body will be cold and lifeless, but my spirit, I know, will soar on high. I want all the people in this region to take warning by my example, and shun all intoxicating drinks. I want every one, when he raises a glass to his lips, to think of Quiller." After this he asked permission to take a bath, was furnished by Mr. Ward with take a bath, was furnished by Mr. Ward with clean linen and a suit of clothes, and then asked whether he could have a burber sent for who should give him "a decent shave." His request was complied with. In conversation with our reporter he said that it had been reported that he was a native of New York, which was not true, as he was born in Maryland, but reared in New York. His mother was a pious woman connected with the mother was a pious woman, connected with the Baptist Church, and gave him the best of religious instruction. "But," said he, "like other reckless boys, I wandered away, associated with bad companions, and here I am to forfeit my life for the crime of murder." His grandfather was a Frenchman. Quiller has lived in New Jersey about five years. He has no confession to make He feels deeply indebted to the Rev. Messrs. Chester and Jackson, and to a Miss Meeker, of Elizabeth, who have interested themselves in his behalf. If he makes a speech on the scaffold it will be, he says, only to warn others against the vice that has ruined him. He admits that he had a fair trial, but thinks that one of the witnesses knowingly swore falsely against him, and he at one time intended to speak of this, but he has concluded that it would not be right, as he has forgiven all his enemies, and bears no malice toward any one. He is very intelligent in his conversation, and seems well versed in Bible his conversation, and seems well versed in Bible texts. A prayer meeting was held for him last evening, conducted by the Rev. Mr. Chester. The Rev. Mr. Jackson and some members of his congregation were present. Quiller took part in the exercises. The scaffold, which was erected in the prison yesterday afternoon, is similar to the presence at the Tornes in this city. It has been one used at the Tombs in this city. It has been used at the Union County Jail twice already, on the only occasions on which executions have lace there: the first on April 11, 1866, when Grady was executed for the murder of one Collins, and the last on the 26th of April, 1866 at the execution of Glennon for the murder of his wife. Quiller's body is to be delivered to his friends, and they will bury it in a cemetery in Elizabeth. About 200 tickets have been issued

A White Woman Runs Away with a

Black Blacksmith.

(From the Charleston Courier, Nov. 11.)

A shocking case of elopement, and the first affair of the kind we have known in this city, occurred last Thursday night. The guilty parties are the wife of a white grocer, residing in Cal-houn street, and a black man in the neighbor-hood who kept a small wheelwright shop, and who went by the name of Sergeant Major Overton. The latter is said to be a member of the Thirtyfifth Massachusetts regiment of colored troops. On being mustered out of service he set up as a wheelwright in a small shed on Middle street, and for some time past, it is reported, has been tak-ing his meals in the same house with the grocer and his wife. From report it appears that the parties had become very familiar, several love letters which had passed between them having been discovered since their departure. The cor-respondence shows that he had been urging his inamorata for some time past to fly away with him, promising that she should never want for anything that could contribute to her present or future happiness. Last Thursday the grocer went up to Summerville for the purpose of col-lecting some rent due him, leaving, as usual, an old colored woman, employed as cook, to keep company with his wife. The latter, however, told the cook that she would not be wanted that night, and might go home. During the night the wife appears to have packed up every por-table article of value about the house, and with her black lover left the city on the four o'clock train of the South Carolina Railroad on Friday morning. The parties carried with thom some $800 in specie, $300 in greenbacks, a gold watch valued at $200, some other articles of jewelry and the clothing of the deserted husband. On the grocer's return from Summerville, about three o'clock on Friday afternoon, as soon as in-formed of what had occurred, he telegraphed to various quarters, including Augusta, Columbia various quariers, including Augusta, Columbia and Wilmington. The parties were arrested at Wilmington on Friday night, having changed cars for that place at Kingsville, S. C., and were expected to arrive here yesterday. DDITIONAL PARTICULARS-ARREST OF THE

PARTIES.
[From the Wilmington (N. C.) Journal, Nov. 12.] On Sunday night last officer R. F. Gray, of the Charleston detective force, arrived here from that city in search of a white woman named Mrs.

and his little son were missing, and it was also discovered in their flight they had taken with them a goodly portion of the personal property of Finck. After some inquiries it was found that they had taken the train to this place. from the chief of the Charleston described from the chief of the chief of the Charleston described from the chief of the chief orce, describing the parties and requesting their orrest, at the same time offering a reward of $50 in gold for their apprehension. The matter was placed in the hands of Captain L.W. Hannon, of the police force of this city, who, on the arrival of the Southern train on Friday night, searched the cars and found the parties answering the description given and made their arrest, at the same time selzing their baggage, which was very considerable. The parties were lodged in the guard-house and the fact of their apprehension telegraphed to Charleston. Officer Gray was despatched from that city to take them into custody. Yesterday an inventory of the articles in the possession of these parties was taken. Among the articles found were three gold watches (one of which the negro had on his person), $12 61 in silver coin, $191 in gold coin, a large amount of jewelry, silverware, clothing, &c. These were all delivered to officer Gray—Captain Hannon, in accordance with directions, retaining his reward. Under charge of the officer the parties left here last night for Charleston, where the property will be turned over to the husband. Mrs. Finck is a fine look-ing woman, apparently about thirty years of age, with an expression of cool determination and unrufiled self-posession about her countenance. She viewed her condition in nance. She viewed her condition in the coolest sort of manner, and while in the guard-house walked the passage with her kritting in hand, plying her work as indifferently as if she were at home under the most ordinary circumstances. She brought with her a proof of the affection and confidence of her husband, in the shape of his will, in which he bequeathes to the shape of his will, in which he bequeathes to her at his death all his property, real and personal. The negro, William Overton, is quite genteel in appearance, and was formerly, we learn, from Newbern, and during the war was a sergeant in the Thirty-Seventh Regiment United States colored troops. His little son, about nine years of age, is a robust, innocent-looking child. The supposition of the husband is that his wife was induced to flee from his protection with a view to remaining forever under that of the negro, who seems to have gained no that of the negro, whe seems to have gained no with the following anecdote, by way of accounting for the uncertain movements, or rather tack of movement, on the part of A. Johnson, late of Tennessee:

Andrew has the power te do a deal of mischief, but he locks the nerve. Obetinate as a mule in his opinions, he is as unstable as water in his actions. No amount of public condemnation will change his views; no victories, endorsements, or encouragement will induce him to act if his ends could be accomplished by long talks, something would be done. True, he removed Stanton. Sheridan and Sickle; but in the first instance he compiled with the law he pronounced unconstitutional, and shielded himself under Gen. Grant. In the next, he was careful to say that he removed three commanders for personal disrespect to himself, and by attempting to replace Sheridan by Thomas, tried to save himself from a charge of electricing the laws of Congress. The secret of all this may be found in the man's lack of pluck. For example, during the Buell Commission, Andrew, then military covernor of Tennessee, charged General Buell with being a traitor, for that Buell had attempted to evacuate Nashville, and was prevented only by the active interference of aid Andrew. This Ruell pronounced false, and yet the Judge Advocate of the Commission was a never get the vociferous and patriotic Andrew inta court to face Don Carlos. And when, at last, the witness, Andrew aforssaid, sent in his deposition, Gen. Buell, in a published defence, pronounced it false, and its doponent a perjured scoundfel. Of the perjury we may have doubts, but of the lack of pluck there is no question. A hittle circumstance occurred in Cincinnati highly illustrative of this fact. While the Commission was in severion Johnson passed one night at the Burnett House, on his way to Washington. The night of his arrival he was serennded, and the his pice and its deposition, and the proportion of traitors. The crowd gave the demunciation of traitors. The crowd gave the demunciation of traitors. The crowd gave he proposition of the of movement, on the part of A. Johnson, late of

Wendell Phillips—What is to Follow Impeachment, [From the Anti-Slavery Standard.]

The question of impeaching President Johnson has been suffered to fall somewhat out of sight. Men argue it as if its whole value were the evidence it would give of national self-respect, or the example it would set to future times; or, at most, as relieving us from the pernicious influence of a traitor in the White House.

Doubtless for all the reasons the act would Doubtless for all the reasons the act would be of great moment. But there is one result of the Precident's impeachment and conviction which has not been considered. When once Andrew Johnson stands recorded by the verdict of the Senate, guilty of high crimes and misdemeanors, in attempting to defy the laws and betray the nation, the next step must be to treat all his recent illegal acts as void, annul his pardons and resume the property he has suffered robels illegally to get property he has suffered rebels illegally to get possession of. When once his last year is stamped as treasonable and a usurpation, all his acts, grants made in furtherance of his treason are to be set aside. The plot having been once judicially proved, the robbery certified as of record, then the stolen property is returned to the owner. This principle is plain enough. If Johnson has been acting illegally, why of course his acts are illegal, and hence void. The law provides appropriate methods of setting them aside. In the circumstances, Congress should follow the Senate's verdict by an act reciting the facts, and declaring what acts and classes of acts recently done by the President are void, and leaving the Courts to settle, on special uit, whether any others are also void

There are several prominent rebels who must not be allowed to escape; no traitor's pardon must avail them. The courts should try, convict and punish them, in spite of their Confederate's ham pardons.

Then, again, lands have been wrung most unjustly from the freedmen; large estates have been surrendered to rebels by virtue of pre-tended pardons. Rallways, with all their rolling stock, and munitions of war have been granted to companies of rebels. All these grants should be declared void. Congress should direct the agents of the Treasury to resume all such forfeited lands and hold them as of the title asserted by the nation prior to Lincoln's death. Instead of colored men, as in North Carolina, being forced off these lands, and punished in re sisting such force, they are to be reinstated, compensated, and the rebel claimants fined and imprisoned. Such rebels are to be treated as bettors and accomplices of Johnson in his On Sunday night last officer R. F. ment of Johnson as a necessary preliminary step to our reaching the most dangerous of all rebels, those who fight us now from behind the shelter of a sham pardon. We claim it as a step necessary to guarding for the negro his rights in the land which traiters forfeited and he helped to conquer. Inscribing "Impeachment, Revocation of Pardons, Preemption of Surrendered Lands," on our flag, we shall show the South what we mean. All she needs is to know, of a certainty, mean. All she needs is to know, of it certainty, heyond mistake, what the North demands. That point once fixed, our trouble is ended so far as Southern resistance is concerned. WENDELL PHILLIPS.

A Prilliant Display Witnessed at Vas-

Vassar College Observatory.
Vassar College, Poughkeepsie, November 14 1 A. M.—The observations began at 10.20 P. M.
The light of the moon makes it impossible to see faint meteors, but the number of brilliant ones is unusually large. In the hour from 11.20 to 12.20, about six were seen as bright as Sirius, with long trains. Most of these were seen in the with long trains. Most of these were seen in the neighborhood of the Great Bear and Leo. Ahout 10 o'clock two very bright ones passed directly across the Great Bear. Between 12 and 1 o'clock five were seen to pass among the stars of Orlon with long trains, one in the constellation Cygnus; and one brighter than Sirius, without train, was seen near the northern horizon, while one near Cestor, left a train which remained a minone near Castor left a train which remained a minute, and another in Cassiopea was accompanied by a very broad train. TROY, November 13 .- No meteors .- N. Y.

The Observations at Washington. Up to 2.15 o'clock this morning about 35 meteors appeared, shooting principally from east to west. They were of various degrees of brilliancy, and of from one to three seconds' duration.

The first shot across the heavens about 12 o'clock and lasted about a second. Several minutes elapsed before another one appeared.

Between 1 and 2 o'clock the flight was thickest, as many as four and five appearing in as many minutes. Some of them were of a dark reddish color, while a few burst in a ball of light. About 1½ o'clock we observed one of a beautiful blue color, which continued for about three seconds

Commodore Sands and his entire force of assistants, together with four men from the Coast Survey Department, witched the meteors from the United States Naval Observatory in this city, and were in telegraphic communication with Richmond for the purpose of watching the paral-lax. At about 2 o'clock these gentlemen were of opinion that the stars would be thickest to-morrow night.

None Seen in New York. The exhibition of celestial fireworks, announced to take place last night, did not come off—at least within the limits of our balliwick. Our neighbors at Washington and Poughkeepsie had a more propitious sky.

They were favored with the sight of a few shooting stars. At three o'clock this morning the moon was in some danger of being adum-brated by clouds, but not a star was to be seen, shooting or otherwise. - N. Y. Tribune.

Watching for the Meteors in Dudley Observatory. DUDLEY OBSERVATORY, ALBANY, Nov. 14, 1867, 1.15 o'clock, A. M.—Up to this hour the meteors are not recurring with any frequency. No more have been seen than are usually visible any clear night during the fall of the year. Ten of a light reddish hue of the brightness of a star of the second magnitude, however, were observed, having their flight through the constellations Gemini and Canis Majoris, emanating from the direction of the constellation Leo. The following is a copy of the letter of Lord Stanley, forwarded to his honor Mayor Norcross, of Boston, relative to the death of Sir Frederick Bruce. It was read and appropriately acted upon at a recent meeting of the City Council: Foreign Office, London, Oct. 12, 1867.—Sir. I have received your despatch of the 23d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and which was the death of the 25d ultimo, and the second unit to the council was the death of the 25d ultimo, and the council was the death of the 25d ultimo, and the council was the death of the 25d ultimo, and the council was the death of the 25d ultimo, and the council was the counc confirming the melancholy news which you had death of Sir Frederick Bruce.

I have already, in reply to your telegram, directed you to convey to the Government of the United States the acknowledgments of Her Majesty's Government for the expressions of sympathy with which the United States Lega tion in this country was instructed to communicate to Her Majesty's Government the intelligence of this sad event; but I am glad to avail myself of the opportunity afforded me, in acknowledging the receipt of your despatch, to repeat my in-struction, and desire you to make known to Mr. Seward, and, if you have an opportunity of do-ing so, directly to the President, the high value set by Her Majesty's Government on the friendly feelings which they have shown on this occasion and on the general concern manifested by the public in the United States for the severe loss which Her Majesty has sustained by the death of her able and faithful servant. Her Majesty's Government are glad to recognize in the feelings which this event has called forth the regard felt by the Government and people of the United States, not only for the person and character of the deceased Minister, but also for the country which he so ably represented, and whose policy and wishes he so effective. sented, and whose policy and wishes he so effec-ually carried out in cultivating the friendship and good will of those among whom he was commissioned by Her Majesty to dwell. But not only to the Government and people of the United States generally are the acknowledg-ments of Her Majesty's Government due. They have their special thanks to render of which they desire you to be their organ, to Mr. Gilpin, the gentleman who so considerately accom-panied Sir Frederick Bruce from Narragansett to Boston, and to the numerous gentlemen at Boston whose kindness toward the deceased during the short period which intervened between his arrival at Boston and his death, and whose attendance at the funeral ceremonies with which his remains were honored before their de-parture from the United States, entitle them to their warmest acknowledgments. To Mr. Sumner, to the Governor of Massachusetts, sumner, to the Governor of Massachusetts, and to the Mayor of Boston, and other distinguished persons in that city—to the physicians, clergy and others who did honor to the remains of the Queen's late Minister, Her Majesty's Government are sincerely grateful, and you will make known to them in such a manner as you may deem most becoming and best calculated to assure them how deeply it is felt. I am, &c., [Signed] | Signed |

The Recovery of the Hampton Family

The Recovery of the Hampton Family Jewelry.

(From the Knoxville (Tenn.) Herald, Nov. 10.)

Yesterday morning a young and rather verdant looking man entered the jewelry-store of Messrs. Smith & Lyons and offered for sale a gold curbchain. After some questioning the chain was purchased by the proprietors of the store at regular prices. The man then produced a ladles diamond pin and ear-rings to match, for which he offered to take the sum of $12. This was also purchased Leaving the store he was gone a few minutes. Leaving the store he was gone a few minutes when he returned, and producing a gold chain with a diamond in the slide, he offered it also for sale. One of the firm, Mr. James. A. Lyons, suspecting the property was stolen, went out to find the Mayor, while the other partner kept the need to press any further measure of confiscation. Carrying out the policy of the war, convicting traitors and confiscating their estates, holding such lands as were taken possession of during the war—these sources will suffice to give the negroes a homestead, or to sell them such at a cheap rate. They will not, as row, be forced on their knees, to tempt wealthy rebels to sell them land, the true basis of independence. We shall not see, as to-day in Virginia, men turned into the streets, houseless, in punishment for heir honest votes. The negro will be able to delay the heart of the many of the many small stream, in York District, South Carolina. He admitted that he knew by the name who the probable owners were, but could not give any very good reason why he had come all the way to Knoxville, from South Carolina, to dispose of it. The jewelry is mostly old style, but is very valuable, parties versed in the prices of such articles estimating it as being worth $6,000 to $3,000. Mayor Luttrell sent a telegram to the Hampton family, at Columbia, South Carolina, informing them of the arrest, and recovery of the jewelry, and a despatch has been received from Wade Hampton, claiming the property as his, and re-
