Philadelphia has within herself all the elements of metropolitan greatness, not only in most needs is for her own people to appreci-ate the fact. We do not desire to see en-wroted upon Philadalphia manners the most needs is for her own people to apprecigrafted upon Philadelphia manners the superciliousness of the Boston literati or the snobbish arrogance of the spurious aristoc-racy of New York; but there is a need for more substantial public spirit in the commu-nity. Philadelphia is advancing with giant superciliousness of the Boston literati or the nity. Philadelphia is advancing with giant strides, even in spite of the spathy of many of her citizens. They have a city of which they should only be available to the second they should only be proud, whose interests they should advance, and whose honor they N. E. With this spirit once made generally active among the men and women of Philadelphia, even the sneers of selfsatisfied Gotham will be silenced, and our own citizens will begin to reap a rapid harvest of increasing prosperity, as the

This afternoon, at Richmond, the curtain is to be rung up for the roaring farce of "The Trial of Jefferson Davis." That the proceedings will be a farce is a foregone conclusion. A conviction of the arch-traitor by a jury drawn in the late rebel capital is about probable as an arraignment of the father of lies by his own imps and familiars. Even though there should be a conviction, he time for punishment has gone by, and will be made respectable and receive a legal sanction, and the "personal and profes-sional friends" of the offender will rejoice with Black All-wool Reps. $100. him at the result, and treason will gain heart for fresh crimes should, the temptation and the opportunity offer. If the million of victims of the rebellion, who perished that treason might be done away with, could rise from the graves that are scattered broad-cast from Gettysburg to the Gulf, and Banquo-like point to their wounds, inevitably escape the vengeance of the outraged law; but he cannot escape from history or evade the verdict of posterity. If he has a conscience, the most effectual punishment that could be meted out to him would be to prolong his life and leave him a prey to $20 TO $50 hame and remorse.

Three men who were convicted of the murder of a policeman were hanged at Manchester, England, on Saturday. The Fenian 87 TO 87 organizations in this country and in England are so unwise as to identify themselves with the crime by violently denouncing its punishishment, and the only inference to be drawn from their course is that Fenians justify murder as a portion of their tactics. It is true the crime was committed during an outbreak that does not make the offence any the less CLARK & BIDDLE nurder, and the example was necessary if England would escape the danger of a succession of massacres of more serious importance. Some politicians in this country are endeavoring to make capital out of the hangcoursing upon American magazines, says: ing by claiming the prisoners as American were undoubted subjects of the Queen of England; but the offence would be aggravated if this claim of American citizenship was just. If they were American citizens, they had no right whatever to engage in political intrigues against the British Governregulate the punishment for the crime according to the nationality of the offender. MIN Eldridge (Wis.) suggested that there would be no practical difficulty in admitting Mr. Gol-laday to his seat, because the validity of his cre-dentials would depend upon whether a vacancy existed at the time of his election. Mr. Dawes (Mass.) argued that it would be at least a very awkward dilemma for the House to place itself in. Mr. Kerr (Ind.) in allusion to aremark of Mr. Paine, (Wis.) stated that the Sub-Committee of Elections which had been recently taking testimony in Kentucky had not investigated this case nor taken one con-word of testimony about it. If Mr. Golladay's credentials were not received, then Mr. Blakey, with 703 passengers, at New , Cole, from 'Vera Cruz 10th yana 18th, at Now York yes-Cole, from' Vera Cruz 16th ana 18th, at New York yes-ladar was and it was equally clear that Mr. Gol ana 18th, at New York yes-laday was prima facie cutited to be sworn in.
