He was ever foremost in acts of charity and benevolence; a close student of literature, and a keen observer of men and manners. To his fart with is loss is treparable. HONORS TO A PHILADELPHIA ACTOR.—Mr. J. S.
Clarke has repeated his well-known character of Major De Boots at the St. James Theatre, London, nightly, for nine successive weeks, and he will continue it until New Year, when unalterable engagements compel the lessed to resume possession of the theatre. But for this intervention Mr. Clarke would undoubtedly be enabled to complete the coming year. It may be interesting to our resume possession of the theatre. But for this intervention of England, Charles Dickens, Bulwer, Wilkie Collins, G. A. Sals. Charles Reade and others have pornocally conveyed in the most gentlemanly menner their high estimate of Mr. Clarke's abilities; while the judgment of the best class of society may be inferred from the following extract from an article expressly contributed to the Court Journal of Nov. 9 by Lord William Lennox.
