McMullin to the polls, in a body, and voted without being on the list of-waters, and without being on the list of-waters, and without being or examination. A single specimen of this sort serves to give the public an insight into the relations which exist between sworn officers of the law in the Fourth Ward and the professional criminals of the same locality. In the same election division, 238 men voted whose names were not on the Assessor's list. The law requires that when a man's name is not upon the Assessor's sist, he shall swear or affirm that he is a cityzen of the United States, that he has resided in the State for one year, and that he has resided in the Division in which he offers to vote for ten days. He must also produce a voter who must swear or affirm that he has known the voter to have resided in the Division for

Not a single voter was sworn, or voucher produced in this Division during the paper of the importance of an annual Mesvoucher produced in this Division during the day. Inspector Nicholson swears that he made frequent attempts to ascertain the qualifications of voters, but in vain. The judge, one Philip Madden, who cannot write his own name, but signs the election papers with a mark, over-ruled all such attempts by the easy decision that it was "all right," and in easy decision that it was "all right," and in nance of the prerogatives of the Executive; and in least of the prerogatives of the Executive; and the least of the Prerogatives of the Executive; and the Postson of the Prerogatives of the Executive; and the Postson of the Prerogatives of the Executive; and the Postson of the Prerogatives of the Executive; and the Postson of the Prerogatives of the Executive; and the Postson of the Prerogatives of the Executive; and the Postson of the Prerogatives of the Executive; and the Postson of the Executive; and the Postson of the Postson of the Executive; and the Postson of t official list of voters was seized by this ac- waged wicked war upon the nation, complished and competent judge, who sat and who are only aggressive and defiupon it all day, to prevent the Inspector ant because those who conquered them are magnanimous and forbearing. Our Committee, being organized long after the other relief committees and bearing the American name, has raised the expectations of the people very high. The English Committee, which has just, now closed its operations for the lack of inuds, had spent nearly £30,000 before the American Gommittee had been formed; besides the declarations of freedom of the Americans, during the late civil war, led the people to expect many things from us, and now when we go among them numble to meet the demands, we feel tied in the highest degree.

THE CONTESTED ELECTION CASE.
The contested election case, now before the Court of Common Pleas, is one of the most important cases ever tried in that Court. Already, in the very opening of the ordience, a revelation of rascality has been made which must convince honest men of all parties that the ballot-box has become the merest toy in the hands of Democratic politicians, under whose manipulations it is made to produce just such majorities as they see fit. Elections, conducted as the one now contested was, are the merest farce, shd the whole community, irrespective of party, is interested in breaking up the outrageous abuses which have been boldly engrafted upon our elective system by bad and unprincipled men.

It is already in evidence that six or seven professional thieves were taken by Alderman professional thieve orchestra. The overture to the Magic Flute, the one selected for this occasion, is considered by the best 114ps QUARTER SESSIONS-Judge Browster.-This worning William Meeser, charged with libel, in publishing an article alleged to be defamatory of District Attorney Mann, was called for trial.

Mr. I. N. Brown, for the defendant, moved to quash the bill of indictment, on the ground, first, that the binding over was to the present term, instead of the next, and secondly, because the defendant had no opportunity to challenge the array of grand-jurors.

Judge Brewster overruled the motion as the ma-Judge Brewster overruled the motion, as the magistrate had the right to bind over to the present or the next term, and the defendant had an opportunity to challenge the array had he so wished.

Cross-examined—I propose to prove by Mr. Hill that he wrote the articles, that he had no knowledge of the antecedents of District Attorney Mann, and therefore did not refer to him in the use of the term "Hon. William Bilman"; the story or remance was written in the interior the story or romance was written in the interior delphis: I did not know what the story was to be: I saw the manuscript, but did not read it.

Mr. Dwight contended that this was not a ground for a continuance, as the facts set forth would be no defence.

Mr. Benj. H. Brewster, for the Commonwealth, also opposed the continuance. He took occasion to say that the attack upon Mr. Mann required some notice to be taken of it by the court, even had Mr. Mann been disposed to treat it with disobliged to do it by the speaker, as an act of justice to himself and the public. Mr. Mann is not using his official position to oppress the defendant, but while this proceeding is pending, he occupies the position of a citizen desirous of vindicating himself and the public admission of pressure as to the public administering of justice. Now as to the materiality of this witness. The testimony must be pertinent to the issue. No lawyer will Mast be pertinent to the issue. that Mr. Mann was not the person alluded to? If this be true, it is due to the defendant that he should have an opportunity to show that the libel was not directed to Mr. Mann. He would consent that Monday next should be fixed for the trial, but not a day later.

The defence asked for more time.

Judge Brewster finally fixed Tuesday next, remarking that he had not read the article complained of, but enough had been developed in the argument to satisfy him that it was proper that this case should be tried speedily. If the charges made against the prosecuting officer of this county were true, it was eminently proper that the defendant should have an opportunity to prove them; if they were not true, it was wise to give the District Attorney an opportunity to establish it. The case was then continued until Tuesday. FINANCIAL and COMMERCIAL
