EXPLOSION AT A GALVANIZING WORKS.—This morning, about 7 o'clock, an explosion took place at the galvanizing works of McCullough & Co., southeast corner of Eleventh and Washington streets, in the Second Ward. Several of the workmen were engaged in galvanizing a worm by dipping it into a trough, or "bath," as it is called, containing the moltrn material, when the worm exploded, blowing the hot metal in all directions. Jno. Gallagher, one of the workmen, residing near Twelfth and Elisworth streets, was severely burned about the head and body. residing near I weilth and Ellsworth streets, was severely burned about the head and body. Last evening, Mr. Livingston, a tailor, No. 640 South street, observed Cooper and another man walking up and down on the pavement in front of the store. After closing up, Mr. Livingston went into the cellar to get some coal, and discovered Cooper lying upon the coal, pretending to be asleep. He had got in through a window on a side alley. Policeman Carmichael was called in, and arrested Cooper. The prisoner was committed for trial. Cooper. The prisoner was committed for trial.

AMUSEMENTS.

Mgs. Lander.—On Friday evening next Mrs. Lander will produce the drama of Mary Stuart on the occasion of her benefit. The play is an adaptation from a translation from Schiller by Mrs. Frances Anne Kemble. The Beston Herald, speaking of Mrs. Lander's performance, say:

"We have in recollection but very few occasions when we have sat through a five act drama and been

when we have sat through a five set drama and been so well entertained as to forget that there was such a thing as weariness; but such was the case on the oc-casion referred to, and so it was with the audience, scarcely one of whom wentbred to absent himself until the curtain fell on the tinal act. Mrs. Lander's idea scarcely one of whom ventured to absent himself until the curtain fellon the sinal act. Mrs. Lander's idea of 'Mary Stnart' is, in our judgment, more original, mere powerful, more natural and more effective than her conception of 'Elizabeth.' It is different entirely, is better adapted to her vocal powers, and is rendered far more remothly. Her argument with 'Burlelgh,' in the first act, upon the justice of her imprisonment and condemnation was rendered with a particular power. The interview with 'Elizabeth' in the park at Fotheringay affords scope for the finest powers of any actress, and there are few, very few, who may attempt it without incurring the danger of ridicule. With Mrs. Lander the plea of 'Mary' for mercy at the feet of her royal ester was made particularly quiet and touching; in the later passage, stung to madness by the cruel words of the 'Queen,' she loses her self control, and, turning upon her captor, tunds her with her ilightimacy and the profanation of the English throne, we had a very effectively rendered scene. In the last act, in the scenes of leave-taking with her maids preparatory to execution, in her confession and her farewell to 'Melville,' she seemed the true woman, with nothing but pure nature actuating her appech, which was calm to 'Melville,' she seemed the true woman, with nothing but pure nature actuating her speech, which was caim but full of quiet resignation, and fairly matched, even if she did not excel the justly leaded Ristort. Her rebuke to 'Leicester' was also aptly managed. Mrs. Lander chose to assume the royal robes of white and to wear the crown in these scenes, a choice which can but be commended; and her stately and dignified wall to down served but as a culminating stroke to hind the to doom, served but as a culminating stroke to bind the sympathics of the audience which she had enlisted sympathics of the audience which she had enlisted from the first, and the curtain went down amid the hearliest applause. Considered as a whole, and as a purely artistic performance, we are not by any means alone in judging 'Mary Stuart' in the hands of this lady a superior personation to that of 'Elizabeth,' and we will not withhold the acknowledgment which is her due, that of her having added one more to her list of successes."

Winter Shopping.—It has been many years since the initial winter month has been ushered in at an zeroic a temperature as characterized the opening of the present month. Persons who delayed making their necessary winter purchases were caught unprepared, and the result has been no disadvantage to Clothing men and Furriers. In the latter department, the leading house in this city—Messrs. A. K. & F. K. Womrath's, No. 417 Arch street—has presented an unusually animated scene for several days. Their large store is daily resorted to by hundreds of our ladies of weal h and fashion for the magnificent Furs, which this house always displays in such profusion and elegance as no other attempts. And yet it is due to the proprietors to say that in all the medium and minor trades of firs their stock is not surpassed, if it is equalled, by any other in the country. Indeed it is no exaggeration to say that the stock now offered by the Mesers. Womrath presents inducements to purchasers in all grades and classes of Furs that are not found in any other, for the simple reason that they are the leading importers of and dealers in these articles in the United States, and have determined, in view of their proposed removal to their new store, to sell their goods at unprecedented low prices. They are selling sets of furs from five dollars to one thousand dollars, having sold several sets at the latter price within the present week. It will not surprise us if they dispose of a million dollars worth of Furs between now and the first of January, 1868. Their assortment surpasses any Fur display that has ever been made in Philadelphia, and embraces in profuse variety muffis, tippets, collars, &c., in Russian Sable, Hudson Bay Sable, Mink Sable, Royal Ermine, Chinchilla; Fiftch, &c., of all the latest styles and superior finish. Their new Simia muff is a special favorite with ladies in mourning, so much so as to have rendered necessary several additional importations. Their assortment o

This brings the line to the eastern base of the Rocky mountains, and it is expected that the track will be laid thirty miles further, to Evans Pass, the highest point on thirty miles further, to Evans Pass, the highest point on the road, by January. The maximum grade from the foot of the mountains to the summit is but eighty feet to the mile, while that of many eastern roads is over one hundred. At present, the profits of the Company are derived only from its local traffic, but this is already much more than sufficient to pay the interest on all the Bonds the Company can issue, if not another mile were built.
