CABTLE AND COTTAGE. There stands a castle by the sea, With an ancient keep and turrets three, And in it dwells a lady rare, Rich and lovely with golden hair, By the wild waves plashing wearly. In it dwells a baron bold,

In it dwells a baron bold, Gallant and young, with stores of gold, Store of all that men can crave To cheer his pathway to the grave, By the wild waves plashing (wearily. The lady bright is kind and good, The paragor of womanhood: And her wedded lord is leal and sure, Beloved alike of rich and poor, By the wild waves plashing wearily. There dwells a lisher on the strand

In a little cot with a road of land, With his bonny wife, and girls and boys, That climb to his knees with a pleasant ? By the wild waves plashing cheerily. And the lady of the castle sighs, When she meets the fisher wife's gladdening And wishes that Heaven to bless her life Had made her mother as well as wife,

By the wild waves plashing cheerily. The lord of the castle, riding home O'er the flard sease and where the breakers h Oft sees the fisher, his labor done, Sit with his wife in the glint o' the sun, By the wild waves plashing cheerily.

Sit with his wife, and his boys and girls, Dandling the youngest with golden curls, And turns his envious eyes aside And well nigh weeps for all his pride, . . By the wild waves plashing wearily.

"I'd give," quoth he, "my rank and state, My wealth, that poor men call so great, Could but I have that fisherman's joys. His happy home, and his girls and boys, By the wild waves plashing cheerily." —All the Year Round.
