the Senate, on the subject of the removal of Mr. Stanton, will be found in to-day's paper. More than half, of the message is devoted to a narrative of the circumstances attending Mr. Stanton's removal, and the remainder is given up to a statement of the reasons for his removal. These reasons are stated to have been two. The general reason was a loss of to be an absolutely poor man, for taxation Your patronage solicites. mutual confidence. ciled. This admission of his obstinate purpose of resistance seems to be made inadvertently, but is a very important one. Mr. Johnson compliments the members of the Cabinet who left the Cabinet, in order to make a case against Mr. Stanton whose sense of responsibility kept him in his very unpleasant position. The difference of opinion on the reconstruction measures constitutes "the general grounds" Mr. Wallace, himself, proceeds to settle this doubt, for, after getting; through with the financial question, he crosses Mason & Dixon's line with his argument; and what a change of tane follows this step southward ! He immediately proceeds to show that the best interests of the South, and the country at large, require the subjection of the laboring classes and the elevation of the rulug class.
