The motion was opposed by Charles H. Reed, State's Attorney, and Edward A. Rucker, Esq., of counsel, who contended that operate upon the sentence, while, by an express provision of the statute as well as in veved to the penitentiary under a legal mittihe legal custodian, and no Judge had auhority to step in and transfer that authority to any other officer. Even admitting that s ircuit Court Judge had such authority, a for the Judge issuing the writ can do no more under it than, first to remand the prisoner to | ship, and demanded of they intended tamely his former custodian; second, to discharge the risoner absolutely; and third, to admit to hail. There can be no authority found to warrant the Judge in changing the custody of the prisoner. In this case the mittimus had issued and the sticktively recoils. So much experience here a supersedeces upon a judgment of any court. If sentence had been pronounced but this case the mittimus had issued and the prisoner had been conveyed to the penitentiary, and the sentence had begun to run.

Thow, a supersciteus is issued, and while it prevents the further operation of the sentence is in em, and that unerrin instink wood betray em to me, wich by the way goes to prove that the dislike we hev to em is not the result uv prejudis, but is a part uv our very nachers and one uv its highest and holiest attriboots."

In what civilized society could the example be found of a legislation which would consecrate such this case the mittimus had issued and the prisoner had been conveyed to the penitenin this State, could as well have issued a writ of habeus corpus as myself, power as I have to alter the custody of a prithe county where the offence was committed. The prisoner in this case is now only in cuse provisions of the statute. Now, the que tion as to who shall hold the prisoner is of minor importance, and one over which I at present have no jurisdiction. Should the prisoner complain hereafter that he is not properly treated by his custodian, then it would be the duty of the conservators of public justice to step in and interfere, but that question is not presented by the case at bar, and I am not called upon to decide it.
