CRIME.

A Young Girl Attempts to Murder Her Father, Mother, Brothers and Sisters by Giving Them Strychnine.

From the Chicago Journal of the 20th we ex-tract the following particulars of a fearful tra-gedy, information of which we have already pub-lished in our telegraphic columns: Residing at No. 340 Jhurch street is a family named Stang. The head of the family, Andrew Stang, is an industrious, well-to-do Gorman gar-dencr, and has by hard work and economy amassed a considerable sum of money. His family consists of a wife and five children. Of the latter, Elizabeth, who bears her mother's name, and whose age is sixteen, is the eldest. It is Elizabeth who, dead to all impulses of affec-tion is charged with having attempted to consign her dearest relatives to a premature death. It ap-pears that she bits always been a Source of cease-less anxiety to her parents. From her earliest infancy she has displayed an irreastible inclina-tion to steal anything of the slightest value which came within her reach. As she grew older this evil propensity more fully developed, until at last she reached a point entirely beyond re-straint, and it became necessary to have her ar-rested, which was done, and for a year she was confined in an asylum, in hopes that that courso night work a reform. But this step failed in accomplishing the de-confined in an asylum, in hopes that that course might work a reform. But this step failed in accomplishing the de-sired purpose, for after her release she persisted in her course of depravity, and on every oppor-tunity which presented would steal from any-body with whom she came in contact. Her mother was a constant victim to her rapacity, and only two weeks ago Elizabeth robbed her o. $20, and more recently still of various other sums of money. With the fruits of her dishonesty she would leave the house and not return until it had all been spent. Each time that she came back her parents received her with open arms, hoping her parents received her with open arms, hoping over and over again to reform, by their counsel, the child who to them was all the world, in spite of the dreadful trouble and anxiety she caused them continually. Matters went on thus up to Saturday, when the

them continually. Matters went on thus up to Saturday, when the deed which has shocked the community at large was perpetrated. She happened to be at home. On that day it devolved upon her to cook the dinner. While preparing the coffee, a younger sister, named Kathrina, noticed a white sub-stance floating on its surface, and asked what it was, and was told that it was only some flour. The meal was at last ready, and the whole family, excepting Kathrina, consist-ing of Mr. and Mrs. Stang, Rosa, aged twelve years, and Andrew, four years, sat down to partake of ft. Several of them noticed that the coffee had a peculiarly bi-ter taste, but all drank of it, the father drinking the whole of a large cup full, the mother and Rosa taking about half a cup each, and the little boy drinking quite freely of it. It soon began to do its work, and the mother remarked that she feared they were poisoned, but Mr. Stang only laughed at the idea. He was, how-ever, speedily undeceived, for soon the whole ever, speedly undeceived, for soon the whole family were taken with the most violent vomitfamily were taken with the most violent vomit-ing and retching, and now, thoroughly alarmed, medical assistance was called, Dr. J. Milton Bowers being summoned. He arrived at the house at a few minutes past two o'clock, about half an hour after the meal was caten. A most horrible scene presented itself. Father and mother, daughter and son, were writhing in intense agony; the little boy was apparently in the last agonies of dissolution, the extremities cold and pulseless. Little Kathrina, who alone had not partaken of dissolution, the extremities cold and pulseless. Little Kathrina, who alone had not partaken of the deadly mixture, witnessed the awful scene. She was stricken with terror. The doctor ex-pressed his opinion, from statements made in regard to the peculiar taste of the coffee, that strychnine had been administered to the sufferers. He employed the usual antidotes, and, after hours of labor, finally saved the poisoned patients. Elizabeth, in the meantime, had thrown away the coffee that had not been used, and escaped. The doctor found it necessary to procure a sam-arreating her. It is a difficult matter to form any conclusion as to the metives which induced Elizabeth to commit the horrid crime. She asserts that her parents treated her in a harsh and cruel manner; that her father made her work very hard, com-pelled her to peddle vegetables for years past; that her mother used to swear at her in a horrible memore, call her had names and constantly threamanner, call her bad names and constantly threatend to send her to the Reform School; also that her mother used to beat and abuse her so that owing to the noise the neighbors would gather round the house. On Saturday morning she says her mother beat her in a brutal manner. She denies having put any poison in the coffee and says she believes that her mother did it. #### THE BANK OF THE REPUBLIC ROB-BERY IN NEW YORK.

Additional Facts Relative to the Cap-ture of the Alleged Thiever---How the Police Got their information.

the Police Got their information. It would appear that the means by which the detectives were put upon the track of the alleged robbers of the Bank of the Republic were not so extraordinary nor so mysterious as certain of the detectives concerned would have the public to believe. The facts in the case which relate to the arrest of Edwin Weed are as follows: A money broker in this city was called upon on Saturday afternoon by Weed, who had been previously in the habit of paying him occasional business visits. Weed stated that he desired to burrow $1,600, and when asked what collateral he was to give he mentioned Missouri bonds. The broker told him mentioned Missouri bonds. The broker told him that he would give him the check for the amount at his brother's office on Monday, at which place at a certain hour be could bring the collateral. The broker's brother-in-law happening into the office shortly after Weed's departure, the former spoke of the loss desired by Weed, when the brother-in-law called his attention to the fact that the Bank of the Republic had a few days before The Bank of the Republic had a few days before lost certain Missouri bonds, and that in all pro-bability the bonds held by Weed were the identical bonds that had been stolen; and in this belief he was all the more strengthened by the revelation, as it is alleged, that Weed's name had occupied a promialleged, that Weed's name had occupied a promi-nent niche of notoriety in the Lord bond-rob-bery rovelations. The broker, who had not be-fore given a thought to these circumstances, on being thus reminded of the character of the per-son with whom he had to deal and the discretion that was necessary to be observed in keeping his brother-in-law's suspicion from all but official event the following day (Sunday) paid a yielt to brother-in-law's suspicion from all but official ears, the following day (Sunday) paid a visit to Inspector Leonard, of the Metropolitan Police, at the latter's residence, and made him acquainted with the fact of Weed's visit to his place, and the kind of collateral that had been promised. He, moreover, informed the in-apector that he was not desirous of appearing in the case, and had called upon him merely as a personal acquaintance. In order that he mixet do apector into the solution of the support of the second acquaintance, in order that he might do as he saw fit in the matter. As the broker was unwilling to go to Police Headquarters and thus make himself known in the capture that was to ensue, and as Inspector Leonard had other police occupations to engage his attention just at the time Weed was to call for the check and deposit the security bonds. The latter hurled to the Central office the following morning, and accossing the first detective he met in the soliding, he communicated to him the fact of Weed's proposed visit. &c., and then accom-panied him to within a short distance of the bro-ker's office. Of course the detective in question, with Weed as it were placed under his very nose, had no alternative but to arrest him the moment he called in the office and it had been ascertained to a certainty that the bonds the suspected man he called in the office and it had been ascertained to a certainty that the bonds the suspected man deposited as collateral were of the number of the bonds stolen from the bank. Weed once arrested and readily confessing that he had received the bonds from Miles Murray, with whom he was to have an appointment on Sixth street and Second avenue "the very morning of the arrest, the apprehension of Murray was a very tame affair. —N. will give their annual ball this evening at the Academy of Music. The former reunions of this Company have always been of the most pleasant and agreeable character, and judging from the gentlemen having charge of the enter-tainment for this evening, it will equal, if not ex-cel, their former efforts.

LARCENY AND ASSAULT AND BATTERY .--- Ann O'Neill was before Ald. Beitler, this morning, npon the charge of having stolen $6 from a woman who resides in the same house with her, No. 314 New Market street, and Edward O'Neill, her husband, a lame man, was charged with having struck the complainant in the case on the head with his crutch. Both were held for trial.

MURDEROUS ASSAULT .--- Barney Gorman, alias Pussy Gorman, was before Alderman Morrow, yesterday, upon the charge of assault and battery. It is alleged that he went to Donnelly's tavern, in the neighborhood of Ninth and Christian streets, and beat the proprietor in an outrageous manner, causing serious injuries. He was committed to answer.

CORRECTION.-In our report of the election by City Councils of City Directors of the North Pennsylvania Railroad, published last week, we fell into the error of saying that O. H. Howard was elected. The name of the gentleman who was elected was O. Howard Wilson.

CAUGHT IN THE ACT .--- A German named John Welfinger was arrested this morning at one o'clock, while in the act of stealing iron from the depot of the North Pennsylvanis Railroad Company, at Berks street. He was held in $800 ball to answer, by Ald. Heins.

PRESS CLUB. -The stated meeting of the Press Club of Philadelphia will be held this afternoon at the rooms. No. 515 Chestnut street. The new constitution and by-laws will be considered, and other important business transacted.

STATE DEMOCRATICCONVENTION .--- Luke Keegan was elected to the State Democratic Conventionfrom the Fourth Legislative District, and not Edward Helmbold, as was stated yesterday.

MORE CONTRIBUTIONS .- Chief Ruggles has re ceived $5 from Hez, and $2 cash, for the relief of the Simons' family, who were severe sufferers by the fire in Cox street on Chistmas night.

ACCIDENT.-George Campbell fell on the ice at Seventh and Spruce streets, this morning, and had a leg broken. He was taken to the Hospital.

AMUSEMENTS.

MR. MURDOCH'S READING .- Mr. Jas. E. Murdoch gave a reading at Concert Hall, last eve-ning, to an immense audience. Mr. Murdoch is, at any time, sure to have a full house when he at any time, sure to have a full house when he appears upon the platform. His pure and ele-vated patriousm, the noble and unselfash work performed by him during the war, and his earnest and hearty advocacy of the cause of the Union have given him a hold upon the hearts of the people such as no other man in his posi-tion can hope to obtain. If these did not suf-fice to attract the public to his entertainments, his eminent talent would. Mr. Murdoch is the new burlesque entitled The Arrival of Dickens, will be given this evening. It is filled with laughable situations, local hits, humorous dia-logue, and the characters are personated by the most popular members of the company. Lew Simmons will represent Charles Dickens. Mr. J. L. Carneross will sing several favorite ballads, and there will be singing, dancing, and the usual miscellany.

SIGNOR BLITZ.—The Signor has taken Commis-sioner's Hall, West Philadelphia, for this week only. Those who desire to visit this great magi-cian before his permanent retirement must do so at once.

Bryant thus eulogizes the roadiness and courage of our brave old Continentals, and certainly their de-scendants, our gallant army of the Union, have proven themselves not deficient in the qualities inherited from their forefathers-ready to die to maintain the Union for, which their fathers bled, they left as as a sacred trust their families and their children. These children now demand an education and a home. To give them these The Washington Library Company has estab-lished The Riverside Institute. Let a thankful public appreciate this benevolent act-aid and sustain this institution by all means in their power.

PERHAPS the best pun recorded was that in-FERHAFS the DESt pun recorded was that in-scribed on a tea-chest, viz.: "Tu doces." These por-sons are the singular of the verb doce, to each, and when literally translated, become, "Thou tag chest." We would like to teach our readers to buy their coal of Mr. W. W. Alter, Ninth street, below Girard avenue, and at the corner of Sixth and Spring Garden streets.
