But the General did not disembark till night, limiting himself to receiving several visitors, among whom is to be especially mentioned the United State admiral.

On the night of the 21st a popular demonstration took place in front of the Hotel in which General Prado had taken up his residence, and he was addressed by several gentlemen, who greeted him in the name of the Chilean nation.

General Prado showed himself very grateful for this cordial reception. "My misfortune of to-day" he said, "interests you more than my prosperity of yesterday. It is very grateful to the exile to find affection in another land. I can offer your kindness to me but a heart. My life also I dedicate to your service, when it is not required for my own country."

required for my own country."
The first act of the new Peruvian Government been the withdrawal of the two iron-clads which remained at the orders of the Government of Chile. Their remaining in these waters was of Units. Their remaining in these waters was already useless, since the truce with Spain seems to be a definitive fact, whether it be so by the tacit consent of the belligerents or by a signed agreement, as many think, although they can bring no proof.

The question of war is now a dead question, to the great delight of our Government. The mani-fes o of the radicals, which, as we stated in our lust review, has not been able to arouse public opinion, could not resuscitate that question. Onr government is at present experiencing another kind of uneasinese, we mean the cholora, against which various measures have been taken.

In Santiago and Valparaiso boards of health are In Santiago and Valparaiso boards of health are sitting for the purpose of adopting precautions against the invasion of the epidemic. However, they can do very little, restricted as they are by want of means, because municipalities in Chile possess scarcely sources enough to supply the most ordinary demands. In this country centralization is practised on a large scale. We have pushed the principle of unity to such a degree of exaggeration that theories of self-government are looked upon here as wild and dangerous Utopian dreams.

Municipal corporations are not empowered to take any resolution for themselves, placed as they are under the jealous guardianship of the State, even in their most insignificant determinations. They are always in pecuniary straits, because the municipal imports amount to a mere trifle, while the receipts from fiscal imports are constantly on the increase. Fortunately, it seems that the cholera is not advancing in the direction of our frontier. The cholera continues to make dreadful havoc in Buenos Ayres, Montevideo, and all the country in that vicinity, and among its victims is the Vice President of the Republic Doctor Marcos

The death of the Vice President has caused a deep feeling of sorrow on both sides the River Plate, and the press and public opinion have been unanimous in doing justice to the virtues and patriotism of the illustrious deceased.

The pestilence is causing fearful desolation at Cordova, where, at the time we write (Jan. 6th); about two hundred victims are daily carried off, while three-fourths of the population of the city have emigrated to the country.
On account of the death of the Vice President, the Council of Ministers have despatched a steamer to bring President Mitre, who was on his post as General-in-Chief of the allied troops in the war against Paraguay.

Peradventure, this accumulation of untoward disasters may decide the allies to put an end to the war. The last news from Buenos Ayres refers to the mediation of the United States as a thing to be hoped for, but not as an accomplished As to the revolution at Santa Fe, the journal we have already quoted from gives the following account of its turn out.

The revolution in Santa Fe has ended in the belligerents coming to an understanding, and the national intervention being withdrawn in accordance with the request of Governor Orons; but many things are not yet completely settled, not-withstanding the arrival at Rosario of the forces under Gen. Paunero. Governor Orons saw that the abuses of power was the cause that impelled the abuses of power was the cause that impelled the people to take up arms against a functionary who, in defiance of law or justice. worked unscrupulously with might and main, to bring about the triumph of the candidate who enjoyed his sympathies. On the 26th ult. a great fire took place in this city. The scene of disaster was the Conception Hill, which rises at the back of the Callé del Cabo (Cabo street), where all the abous of "modes." "monventis." and other exshops of "modes," "nouveautes," and other ex-pensive luxuries are situated. The conflagration did not extend beyond the houses on the abovementioned hill, which, nine in number, were ut-

AMUSEMENTS.

THE CHESTNET.—A new drama by Mr. John Brougham, entitled Dead Sea Fruit, was brought out at this theatre last evening. Of late Mr. Brougham has gone somewhat extensively into the business of producing what are commonly termed "sensation" dramas, a class of plays suptermed "sensation" dramas, a class of plays supposed by authors and managers to have the greatest power of attracting greenbacks from the pockets of the amusement loving public. In his Lettery of Life Mr. Brougham so decidedly overstepped the bounds of propriety and decorum in some of the scenes, that we could not but express our disapprobation. This we did with the more regret because we consider that Mr. Brougham possesses unusual talents, both as an author possesses unusual talents, both as an author and an actor, and worthy of better things than the medley of nonsense and vulgarity which he dignified by the title of the Lettery of Life.

The drama performed at the Chestnut last evening was, as we understand, written expressly for that theatre, and it is designated "A Story of Philadelphia," although, with the exception of a few local "gags," it would suit almost any other locality fully as well. Dead Sea Fruit is altogether a better play than the Lottery of Life, and it is to be commended for the entire absence of the objectionable features of that drama. The or the objectionable leatures of that drama. The main incident upon which the interest of the play turns—a forged will—cannot be considered entirely novel, but the plot is well developed, and the piece is full of those peculiar Broughamish lite at men and manners which are always appreciated by audiences. A trance medium, a lively little actress, a fond lover, an honest mechanic and his wife, a sturdy Jersey farmer, agentlemanly villain and his accomplice, and a Chestnut street exquisite, are the principal characters; while for exciting incidents, we have the forgery of a will, a whole room-full of people stupefied by chloroform, the explosion of a steam mill, a spiritual scance, and a skating carnival. It will be seen that Dead Sea Fruit is not lacking in the elements of sensation, and as the play has been placed upon the stage in good style, it ought to suit the tastes of those who admire that sort of thing, and we have no doubt that it will take the fancy of the public, and have a long run. main incident upon which the interest of the play fancy of the public, and have a long run.

The new local scenery includes capital views of the Post-office building, and the corner of Third and Chesnut streets. The destruction of the steam-mill is a very good piece of effect, all bough less many they was a rather feeble at though last evening there was a rather feeble explosion for such a destructive result. Doubtless bereafter there will be a more forcible discharge of artillery behind the econes at this portion of the performance, to make the incident as startling as possible. The skating carnival, with which as possible. The skating carnival, with which the play concludes, is very well managed, and it was loudly applauded last evening, although the sudience was somewhat puzzled to know exactly what connection it had with the plot. The different characters in Dead Sea Fruit were very well sustained, and the whole performance passed off smoothly, and with more celat than first representations usually do.

THE WALNUT.—Last evening Mr. J. Wallack, Jr., appeared in the drama Henry Dunbar. This play is a dramatization from Miss Braddon's This play is a dramausation from miss Braddon's movel "The Onteast," and contains all of that writer's customary array of startling incidents in the shape of murder, robbery, and other crimes, with the usual number of cool villains, relentless and keen-scented detectives, confiding maidens, ardent lovers, with plenty of remorse, jealous: pangs of conscience, baffled rage and heavy bank checks. Henry Dunbar is nothing if not intense; and yet taking it all in all, it is an interesting, and indeed exciting play, with an intricate and well-sustained plot, and many very effective situations.

Mr. Wallack's impersonation was in every well-sustained.

Mr. Wallack's impersonation was in every remr. Whiteks important with the spectra good one. The character is difficult, and in the hands of a less expert artist would have been tiresome. But he contrived to deplet with wonderful force and skill all the intense mental anguish, all the terrible suffering which are the natural heritage of finely constituted men who have committed great crimes. And he did this without recourse to those tricks which are so commonly adopted by actors in these parts. He neither ranted, nor bellowed, nor tore his hair.

neither ranted, nor bellowed, nor tore his hair. He was natural and subdued, and he gailed in effectiveness in precisely the proportion that he departed from conventionalism and confined himself to the undemonstrativeness of nature. Mr. Wallack is a very superior actor in parts of this description, and as he is supported at the Walnut by an excellent company which brings the subordinate characters out into fell promisence, he description, and as the instance of the company which brings the subordinate characters out into those theatre goers who can appreciate a first rate performance. This evening Mr. Wallack will appear in the Iron Mask, as "Leon de Bourton," a character in which he has few superiors. THE ARCH.-Lotta will appear this evening as "Little Nell" and the "Marchioness," supported by Craig as "Dlck Swiveller."

THE AMERICAN.-A miscellaneous entertainment will be given at this theatre to-night. Du Chaillu's Lecture. - This evening, Mr.

Du Chailin, the celebrated African explorer will Du Chailin, the celebrated African explorer will lecture at Concert Hall, upon "The Gorilla and its habits, the Gibbon, Ourang-Outang, Chimpanzee, and their affinity ito man." It is hardly necessary to do more than announce this entertainment. Any eulogy would be superfluous at this time. Mr. Ou Chaillu has travelled through regions never before visited by a white man, and he has become familiar with the pecularities of annimals hitherto nuknown. His discourse could hardly be anything but interesting and we are hardly be anything but interesting, and we are assured by those who have heard it, that is of the most brilliant character.

SELECT READING.—This evening, at Concert Hall, Mr. S. K. Murdoch, the elecutionist, will give a reading from popular authors, in aid of the Edwards Mission School. A pleasant entertainment is expected.

Miss Chara Barron, who was the Florence Nightingale of the War; is delivering lectures in different parts of the country, upon the subject of her experiences in Southern slaughter pens. Her lectures are described as being able, touching and abounding in interest, and it is to be hoped that the gifted and benevolent lecturer will pay a professional visit to Philadelphia during the lecturing season.

OLIVE LOGAN'S LECTURE.-To-morrow, Wed-OLIVE LOGAN'S LECTURE.—To-morrow, Wednesday evening, at Concert Hall, Miss Olive Logan, the well-known actress and author, will deliver her new lecture, entitled "Stage Struck." This discourse has been warmly praised by the New York press, and we doubt not it will find favor with the Philadelphia public. The lecture will he repeated on Friday night and on Saturday afternoon.

ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE.-The excellent burlesque, entitled Anything You Like, will be presented at this Opera House this evening, with local scenery, local hits, humorous situations and general jollity. There will also be the usual minstrel entertainment, with singing, dancing, negro comicalities, &c. The entertainment at this house is of an excellent character.

MUSICAL.

ITALIAN OPERA .- The first of the series of six performances of Max Strakosch's Italian troupe was given last evening, La Traviata being the opera chosen for the opening night. Philadelphians are so familiar with this work and with members of the present company in the parts, that it is quite unnecessary to discourse at any length upon the manner in which each rôle was presented. Mad. La Grange sang delightfully, and created a certain amount of enthusiasm in the audience throughout. At the end of the first act she was called before the curtain. Her execution was remarkable for its spirit, and her acting for its elegance and comprehensiveness. Brignoli sang well, and acted in his customary style. Orlandini was very acceptable as "Germon." with a cast including Mad. La Grange, Miss Phillips, Signori Massimilliani, Orlandini and BURNETT .- Mr. Alfred Burnett, the celebrated humorist and mimic, will give an entertainment at Assembly Buildings this evening. Mr. Burnett possesses extraordinary powers and never fails to keep his audiences in a roar of laughter. He introduces new impersonations every night.

Crime in New Orleans—Robbery and Murder—A Whole Family Brutally Beaten.

From the New Orleans Bee of Feb. 27 1 Late Tuesday night Mr. Jacob Kirstener and family living on Gentilly Road, opposite to the Fair Grounds, were attacked at home and robbed by a body of men who beat and mangled their bodies in a most shocking manner. The family consisted of Mr. Kirstener, his wife, son and daughter, and a niece, Frederica Burke, about 14 years old, who were bruised about the about 14 years old, who were bruised about the head, evidently with an axe or heavy club in such way that it was almost impossible to recognize their features, all presenting a horrible sight according to the reports of the parties who first saw them yesterday morning. Their physician, however, has hopes that they will all recover. 4

The object of the men was robbery, and the reward of their fiendish adventure, so nearly resulting in the murder of a family was the puller. sulting in the murder of a family, was the paltry sum of $75 or $100, all the money there was in the house, but quite enough, it would seem, to the house, but quite enough, it would seem, to convert them into demons. Such creatures must be pre-damred if there is such a thing as retributive justice, and it is hoped they may be detected and punished, though there seems to be no clue to their identity, as they availed themselves of the darkness of night to perpetrate the deed. It may be that when the family recover sufficiently they may be able to make autiliant devices. they may be able to make sufficient develop-ments to enable the police to get hold of the dastardly wretches:

One of the worst sufferers is the youngest child, about eight years of age, whose head, it now appears, was placed between the bedstead and the wall, and the former then pushed so close up as to almost cause suffocation. The child remained in this position until discovered this morning, and has ever since remained senseless. It cannot yet be ascertained whether the neck was broken, and it was deemed almost impossible that it should survive.

The unfortunate wife it was thought would not survive. The keeper of the coffeehouse has since so far recovered as to occasionally throw up his arms, place his hands on his head, and start up in bed. He has not yet spoken.

The girl Frederica answered one or two questions. She said that it was a justic was a start of the sta tions. She said that it was a white man who insticted the blow, and that the club would be found under the bed. It proved to be as she stated, but another one was also found in the yard, going to show that there were at least two men present.

An action to recover dumages for the loss of 113 barrels of refined oil. In October, 1863, the plaintiff shipped 168 barrels of oil from Pittsburgh to Leech & Co., Philadelphia, and, on the 3d of November, Leech & Co. shipped the oil for plaintiffs to New York by rail. The defendants placed it upon the barge Young James, on which there was a quantity of benzine. The benzine communicated fire to the plaintiff's stock and 113 barrels were destroyed.

The defence set up that the oil was carried at the risk of the owners, and there was a stipula-tion to that effect in the bill of lading. On trial. SUPREME COURT—JUSTICES Strong, Read. Agnew and Sharswood.—The Philadelphia list was resumed this morning.

QUARTER SESSIONS—Judge Peirce.—Thomas

CITY BULLETIN.

STRAM TUG ON FIRE.-This morning about five o'clock the steam tug S. Flanagan, Iving in the Delaware at a dock above South street, was discovered to be on fire. The flames were first seen issuing from the engine room, and no doubt originated accidentally. The wood work on deck was badly damaged, and the engine was somewhat injured. The machinery escaped serious damage, in consequence of some of the steam pipes bursting, and the flames in the engine room being extinguished by the escaping steam. The loss by the fire is estimated at $3,000, and is not insured. The boat is owned by Somers & Cooley, of the American Dredging Company, and is commanded by Captain Boyce. The engineer and another man were asleep at the time of the fire, and made a narrow escape from suffocation. The tug Jacob Sinex, lying alongside, was slightly damaged by fire.

ALLEGED HORSE THIEF.-A man named Ulysses G. Blaker was arrested yesterday, at Eighth and Poplar streets, upon the charge of the larceny of a horse belonging to Lewis Smith, of Montgomery county. Blaker was employed on the farm of Mr. Smith. The horse was sold to one of the passenger railway companies in the city. Blaker was taken before Alderman Massey, and was held to await a requisition from the proper authorities.

CHARGED WITH BURGLARY .-- A lad named John McCabe was arrested yesterday upon the charge of having been concerned in the robbing of the dry goods store of Mrs. O'Gorman at Thirteenth and Carpenter etreets. Another boy attempted to sell some of the stolen goods, and upon being questioned said that they had been given to him by McCabe. The latter had a hearing before Ald. Mink and was held in $1,000 bail for trial.

PRESS CLUB.-The regular meeting of the Press Club of Philadelphia, for essays and general debate, will be held to-morrow afternoon at four o'clock, at the rooms No. 515 Chestnut street. A constitution and by-laws for the government of the Association were reported by a committee, and were acted upon by the meeting.

Cold.—The weather last night was extremely cold and the mercury in the thermometer made quite a descent. The wind was from the west, and was very sharp and cutting. This morning at 7 o'clock, the thermometer in West Philadelphia marked four degrees above zero. In the centre of the city it ranged from five to eight degrees according, to the location. FATAL ACCIDENT.-A man who was engaged in painting at the round-house of the Pennsylvania painting at the round-house of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in West Philadelphia, was crushed in a shocking manner yesterday afternoon, by being caught between a car which was standing on a track and a locomotive which was backed in. The injured man was conveyed to his home on Archaelean where he died.

It is just as sensible to shovel Cayenne pepper and pour cans of turpentine on a burning building as to use the limments composed of such fiery ingredients on the human system. Instead of cooling the inflammation they create a terrible smart and surface pain which is greater than the original complaint. The practice of easing one complaint by creating pain in another place is of daily occurrence. The body is of more importance than a house. We leave others to judge the proper punishment to be administered. Dr. Wolforr removes pain of any name or nature, free of cost, for everybody, with PAIN PAINT, without smart. It leave no color, and is so harmless that puny, sickly infants are painted over their whole body every day. The application is delightful to the senses, it invigorates the feeble and gives strength and tone to the whole system. It reduces inflammation one hundred times faster than ice; breaks up the hottest fever in ten minntes. No other person dare operate with their own remedy in public, for they would fail. The PAIN PAINT never fails of relieving any pain in less than five minutes. Other dealers are in a race against Pain Paint, for they are losing their customers.
