The Irish question comes up in the British House of Commons next week.

There were several shocks of earthquakes felt at Antigua during last month.

Antonelli, the distinguished Cardinal, Prime Minister to the Pope of Rome, is seriously ill.

The South Carolina Convention has adopted a section making education compulsory.

A revolution in Portugal is immunent. An effigy of the Queen was burned in Lisbon on Tuck day night.

Adoption of the several shocks of earthquakes felt at the several shocks of earthquakes felt at the name of Kemble is itself a coronet, and has been worn on brows so pure and lordly that it would be ill-exchanged for any Bedford or Stafford of her peers. One word more and we dismiss this subject.

Mrs. Kemble has always herself been noted for the extreme punctiliousness with which she performs her public duties. Any person that has ever so little penetration can perceive that these readings are the result of the most accomposer.
