DISASTERS. Accident on the Pacific Railroad—A frightful Catastrophe.

[From the St. Louis Democrat, March 9th.] A frightful accident occurred on the Pacific railroad, three miles above Jefferson City, about 11% o'clock Friday night, by which a portion of the train was precipitated down an embankment into the river and the engineer and fireman lost their lives. We are indebted to a brakeman on the train for particulars. It appears that the Western express train, James Leigh, conductor, due at Jefferson City at 10.46, was fifteen minutes behind time and leav-

James Leigh, conductor, due at Jefferson City at 10.46, was fifteen minutes behind time and leaving Jefferson City had run about three miles when the whistle sounded "down brakes," and the conductor and brakesman Palmer, and — Fuller instantly attempted to check the train. The entire five brakes were put on, when the whistle again sounded, but nothing more could be done, the brakes all being set. Palmer looked ahead, and at the third whistle leaped off, thus saving his life, as in an instant after the platform on which he stood was crushed to atoms. He saw the engine and tender going over the bank to the river, the express-car following. The coupling connecting the remaining cars fortunately broke; the baggage-car plunged into the bluff on the opposite side of the road; the smoking-car was driven upon it, and the other passenger-cars were brought to a stand the body as follows:

the basying his life, as in an instant after the platform on which he stood was crushed to atoms. He saw the engine and tender going over the bank to the river, the express-car following. The coupling connecting the remaining cars fortunately broke; the baggage-car plunged into the bluff on the opposite side of the road; the smoking-car was driven upon it, and the other passenger-cars were brought to a stand upon the track. The engineer, Mr. Geo. Brown, was whirled down the bank with the engine, and also the fireman, Michael Collopy. Brown was buried in the river under the engine, one leg and arm protruding, and was of course instantly killed. Collopy was shockingly mangled; and expired soon after, without surgical operation, as was incorrectly, reighted. The express car landed on the edge of the river, about their escape by the breaking of a coupling alone is providential. The cause of the accident was doubtless the washing down of a boulder from the bluff, loosened by the rain, and the whistles of the engineer indicate that he saw it as he came round the curve; but the wet raits caused the wheels to silde so that the brakes were ineffective, and the engineer probably struck the rock at about an eighteen-mile speed. Mr. express car landed on the edge of the river, about 25 feet down the bank. By most miraculous good fortune no other persons were seriously injured, but their escape by the breaking of a coupling alone is providential. The cause of the accident was doubtless the washing down of a boulder from the bluff, loosened by the rain, and the whistles of the engineer indicate that he saw it as he came round the curve; but the wet rails caused the wheels to silde so that the brakes were ineffective, and the engine probably struck the rock at about an eighteen-mile speed. Mr. Brown had an insurance of $5,000 just obtained in an accident company for one month, which will be of great benefit to his wife and children. Our informant states that a similar essualty was barely escaped at the same place, and to the same engineer, about two months since.
