THE FINE ARTS.
PAINTING IN THE ACADEMY.
The collection of paintings in the Artists' Fund Society's Rooms, No. 123 Chestnut street, has just had added to it a new one by Mr. D. R. Knight, of this city. The subject is Paul preaching in the Areopagus, and the work was a commission from the Philadelphia Conference Missionary Society, who propose having it engraved for the new certificates of their missionaries. The painting is a large and elaborate one, and Mr. Knight, without treating the subject theatrically, has made a highly interesting and truly artistic work. The principal figure, St. Paul, is standing on Mars Hill, with the right arm raised, preaching to an assemblage of Greeks, among whom are philosophers, epicureans and stoics, soldiers and civilians, men and women. The various expressions of doubt in the new doctrine are well portrayed in the faces of the auditors; while in the right of the picture is a group among whom may be recognized the dramatists, the orators, the classical figure, face and drapery, and the rapt expression of the latter, as she listens to the strange preacher, are well worthy of attention. In the foreground, at the left, is the altar "To the Unknown God," with a lamb prepared for the sacrifice. Beyond the assemblage, a statue of a warrior and the heathen temples of Athens indicate the period and the locality of the scene. The grouping, the drawing, the coloring and the careful attention to detail in all parts of the picture are well worthy of praise. The pose of the figure, and the earnest dignity of his manner will also be acknowledged to be excellent. Mr. Knight deserves great credit for his extremely good representation of a scene on which many artists have exercised their talents and rarely with such success as his. The picture will remain on exhibition for a short time, and ought to be visited by all who take an interest in art.

REV. A. WILLETTS, D. D., WILL PREACH in the evening of his valuable services as conductor of their concerts, is announced for Saturday, April 18th, in the Academy of Music. This active body of amateur singers will doubtless crowd the vast auditorium, for they promise to produce Mendelssohn's Walpurgis Night, Hiller's Lullaby and Beethoven's choral Fantasia.

THE COMMEMORATIVE CONCERT TO ASTOR R. Taylor, endorsed by his friends and admirers, is announced for Monday night, in Concert Hall. He is so well known and popular among all classes, that he may expect to draw his seats all taken long before the date of the Concert. He has secured the assistance of some eminent artists, and also the superior vocalists of St. Stephen's Church Choir.

CARL SCENTZ'S performance of Haydn's famous (and really grand) Wm. Symphony, on Thursday afternoon, was something to cherish in the memory. Such music will and must live forever. On next Thursday it will be repeated (as it should be) until the people know every note of it, when it must be laid aside. Mr. Wm. Still is to play a violin Solo also. The season rapidly draws to a close.
