	DID WILLIAM SHAKSPEARE WRITE SHAKSPEARE'S PLAYS?	——like tapsters that bid welcome To knaves and all approachers:—Timon, 1v; 3.
	To the Editor of the Econing Bulletin:—Though this question has been asked by more than one writer, and with some apparent seriousness, there is yet little danger that any such heretical doubt will over take root so, as to, become formidable.	That cedar-tops and hills seem burnish'd gold, 858 But when, from under this terrestrial ball, He fires the proud tops of the eastern pines, —Richard 2d, 111, 2.
	Or, it there were any such danger, there may be found in Shakspeare's Poems parallel passages, similar expressions, associated ideas, cognate and analogous to other passages in Shakspeare's Plays , enough to settle the question;—and settle	Musing the morning is so much o'er-worn: 866 And for the morning now is something worn, —M. 	To estimate the value of such evidence, we must bear in mind that several editions of Shakspeare's Poems* (many copies of which are yet extant), were carefully printed, with the poet's name to the dedication, during his lifetime, in fact, almost at the outset of his career.
