CARPETINGS AND OIL CLOTHS.

OFTY BULLETIN.

FINAL MERTING .- The Amorican Union Comunission of Pennsylvania and New Jersey held their final meeting yesterday afternoon, at the office of H. H. Shillingfeid, Esq., No. 125 South Fourth street. The President, Samuel V. Mer-rick, Esq., in the Chair.

rick, Eeq. in the Chair. The work of this Commission began just after the war closed, and was intended to show our erring brethren of the South that while loyally to the Usion work of the South that while loyally to the Union was a marked feature uniformly exhibited by our citizens, yet this feeling was never suffered to cradicate from their hearts a readiness to extend to them a hand of brotherly love whenever the opportunity should be afforded them to do so. The Commission, animated by true Christian The Commission, animated by true Christian benevolence, commenced the work in the State of Georgia, built school-houses and gathered into them eight hundred children of the poorest parentage, and having taken off their rags, in-troduced them to the advantages of education such as our own children at the North have long here forcered with And huw uffur two years of been favored with. And now, after two years of successful labor, they have transferred their work to the citizens of the towns where they have thus been engaged. The following letter, just received from the

been engaged. The following lettor, just received from the lady who has been superintending the work in Atlanta, will show the regrets lett by all present when the day of separation at last came. ATLANTA, March 236, 1668. Mr. Joseph Parker-DEAR SIR: I am servery that isearce know how to write, but will try to tell you of our schools. I wish I could send you asketch of them as they appeared on the days of lesschers looked weary and worm, and as we re-membered the towastion minking t. schotter in the school-room for two years, sympathizing with and sharing each other's loys and sorraws, we wore now about to separate, without a probability of nucking again in the capacity of a school, we all felt sad. * The cleaing examination, in the presence of several of the most prominent men of the city, was very creditable to be children passed out, the silen picewire of the hand and tear dimmed eyes spoke more than language could have done. Next days alds yold me she hard some of the girls say they wanted as much to tell me to thank the tries sup they wanted as much to tell me to thank the tries with the years dist the line how only don't wo they to the sorry they follow. All the line how sorry they were that I was going to leave Atlanta, but when they took my hand they foll as if they were choking, and could not send they foll as if they were choking, and could not send they cold as if they were choking, and could not send they could not send the larger schol-

THIEF CAPTURED DA CAMBRAPH. - A MAN named Richard Murphy was arrested yesterday as he was landing from the boat at Walnut Street Wharf. He had come from Bordentown, where Wharf. He had come from Bordentown, where he is charged with having robbed a man of $700. It is alleged that Murphy and a contederate fell in with another man, who had just sold a prop-erty and received $700 for it. The latter was made drunk, and then the other two robbed him of all his money. They took the train for Philadelphia, but a telegraphic despatch reached here before the fingitives did, and Murphy Philadelphia, but a telegraphic despace rescared here before the fugitives did, and Murphy was captured as above stated. He had a hearing before Alderman Beitler, and was fully identi-fied. He was then sent back to Bordentown. None of the stolen money was recovered.

RETURNED .- An individual who attempted to defraud Messrs. Powers & Weightman, yesterday, by ordering four boxes of morphia, was frustrated in his designs by the delivery to the carman of four empty boxes. During the afternoon the carman returned the empty boxes with the following note: "Powers & Weightman-VERY DEAR SINS-

The frequent appalling accidents resulting from the use of steam have deservedly attracted public attention to the best protective safe-guards against these disasters. And we can imagine no more beneficent invention, or one more worthy of the widest adoption, than some appliance which shall effectually meet and obviate the risks that now seem inseparable from the use of steampower. Such an instrumentality seems at last to have been successfully devised, and is entitled a Steam-locked Automatic Safety Valve. In company with a few wellknown citizens, we yesterday, by invitation, visited the large machine works of Messrs. Merrick and Sons, at Fifth street and Washington avenue, for the purpose of witnessing the practical operations of the "Valve" in question. The specimen which the Messrs. Merrick have now attached to their own boilers is adjusted to a sixtypounds pressure; i. e., the instant that maximum of pressure is obtained this Steam-locked Automatic Valve opens and allows the steam to escope. When we entered the area where The test was to take place the most intense curiosity prevailed as to whether the instrument would vindicate its claims at the point of pressure named. The steam gauge was noted with great interest. The hand upon the dial marked 54 (fifty-four), and the doors of the furnace being closed the pressure rapidly rose. Fiftynine and a half was indicated. Still the "Valve" was quiet and unmoved. Thirty seconds laterthe gauge marks sixty exactly, and at the same instant there is a shrill blast from the "Valve!" The Steam-locked Antomatic Safety Valve has acquitted itself nobly, and curiosity is on tiptoe to see and hear about its distinguishing peculiarities.

It is an ingenious invention: one of the most important mechanical contrivances of the age we believe. To describe it properly would require the experienced pen of an engineer. We can only say, in general terms, that the invention appears to meet a great public want in a satisfactory way. The "Valve" differs totally from all others in use. It is locked-up, and selfacting, and so arranged that its action is independent of the agency of an engineer. The latter may forget himself, fall asleep, or be unwoidably kept from his post, yet the pressure in the boilers cannot possibly rise above the limit for which the "Valve" is adjusted. The instrument consists of a combination of two valves, one small, the other large. The small one, to which the weight is attached, is so arranged that in opening it brings into play the large one, which opens a capacious orifice for the steam to escape rapidly, thereby reducing the pressure instantaneously. The form of the appliance is compact, and it can be readily attached to the boilers of either stationary, locometive, or marine engines. The prejudice entertained by some persons against spring valves is in this entirely overcome. The action of the Locked Automatic Safety Valve does not depend upon the spring at all, but is wholly operated by the current of steam which presses upon one valve, that in turn brings the other into use. Each instrument. moreover. is supplied with an arrangement whereby the pressure in a boiler can be reduced by hand at any moment with the utmost despatch. Wherever it has been subjected to a practical test the result has been so entirely satisfactory that its general introduction can only be a question of time, and for the greater sufety which it secures, if it had no other merits, we should feel authorized to recommend its adoption by the railroad companies through out the country, and all other parties who are obliged to use steam power in their business. The Northern Central Railway Company have adopted it at their extensive shops at Baltimore and on their road, with the best results, and the practical experiments at Messrs. Merricks' toundry establish the value of the Steam-locked Automatic Safety Valve beyond a doubt. The patentees of the article are Messrs. Taylor & coale; the sole agents for their sale in th United States, Messra. Potter & Jones, of this city, and their manufacturers, Messrs. Merrick &

Attempted Suicide of One of the Han-lons. IFrom the Harrieburg Telegraph of the 3d j Thomas Hanlon, one of the gymnasts, who are known all over the country, came to this city from the west, yesterday. He was accompanied by three small boys, pupils of the Hanlons, and, with them stopped at the State Capital Hotel. He subsequently left there to take passage on a train for New York. About two o'clock this morning the boys were found at the depot, and Hanlon was discovered in Market square. where Hanlon was discovered in Market square, where he gave every evidence that his mind was de-

Senator Wade on Protection.

Scintor Wade on Protection. Mr. Wade has addressed the following letter to the Secretary of the American Industrial League: WASHINGTON, Feb. 27, 1868.— John Williams, J.-g.:—Dear Sir—I am in receipt of your letter and the address, &c. You are right in supposing me in hearly sympathy with the object of your League. The subject is by far the most import-ant that can occupy the thoughts of a states-man, and, indeed, all others, and I shall be glad to co-operate in every way possible. At present, in these exciting times, I have so much on hand that it is impossible for me to devote much time that it is impossible for me to devote much time to any one subject; but you have my best wishes for your success, and whenever I can find an opwith a will. With great respect. B. F. WADE.
