THE ORGAN. It is no harmony of human making. Though men have built those pipes nished gold; Their music, out of Nature's heart awaking, Forever new, forever is of old. Man makes not-only finds-all earthly beauty. Man makes not-only independent cartery county, Catching a thread of sunshine here and there, Some shining peble in the path of duty, Some echo of the songs that flood the air. That prelude is a wind among the willows,

Now a wild ocean, beating his great billows Among the hollow caverns of the shore. It is the voice of some vast people, pleading For justice from an ancient shame and wrong,— The tramp of God's avenging armies, treading With shouted thunders of triumphant song.

O coul, that sittest chanting dreary dirges, Couldst thou but rise on some divine desire, As these deep chords upon their swelling surges Bear up the wavering voices of the choir! But ever lurking in the heart, there lingers

There are few scenes of violence that are not familiar to him, and wherever there is a civil war he is drawn to it as by a natural attraction. We believe that he has been a soldier of fortune in South America and in Spain; that he has borne his part among the now extirpated Riff pirates; has served as a Bashi Bazouk in Turkey; and has fought for the cause of slavery and secession in the South. SENATE.-The Gas Inspector bill was under consideration. Mr. McCandless offered an amendment re quiring the accounts of the gas trust to be audited annually by an auditor appointed by the court. Lost-yeas 14, nays 16. The bill then passed to a third reading, and There is no recollection of which the mind is so tenacious as that of music. A melody will be remembered to the close of the long-est career; and this melody will act as a kind of light to illumine scenes and events in the history of a man's life, which would have been otherwise lost in the very darkness of time. It is strange, however, that whilst the mind testifies this tenacity in so remarkable a degree, it makes the most singular errors in the time in which it fancies it first heard the strain it so well remembers. We have heard of a popular composer being asked by an old gentleman who wrote such and such a song. "I am now seventy-two," continued the old gentleman; "and I can recollect my mother inging that very song to me when I was four years old." On being told by the composer that it was his song, and that it had not been written more than 15 years, the old gentleman energetically volunteered to bet a hat that the song was older than he was. In vain the com-poser assured him that it was impossible; he was laid over. House bill appointing three commissioners to song was older than he was. In vain the com-poser assured him that it was impossible; he mittee. The consideration of the border county inbad written the song, and he was only forty-two himself. The old gentleman persisted, bet the hat,—and lost it. bet the hat, —and lost it. Such instances of the mistakes of memory in music are very common. There is an ex-planation given of this by some to the effect that there is a kind of youthfulness attaching itself to a melody which the mind pushes as it were into its own life, and which, being caught hold of by memory, is antedated and relegated to a period long prior to the actual date of its composition. It is possible to con-ceive a tune so full of the very lust and blood of youthfulness as to create a strong sense of years,

Then this recollection of the heart is catght up by the memory of the mind after a while, and slowly made to recede to a time in our life more, congenial, we fancy to the emotions inspired by the melody. Habit works out the rest of the city of Philadelphia shall be extended to the lat day of January, A. D. 1871, and that thereafter the term of said office shall be for three years instead of two years, as now pro-Test of the problem. There is another solution more weird than this. It is in a measure hit off by Celeridge when he says, "If we listen to a symphony of Cimarosa, the present strain seems not only to recall but almost to renew some past movement, another, and yet the same. Each present movement bringing back as it movement, the present strain seems not only to recall but almost to renew some past movement, another, and yet the same. Each present movement bringing back as it movement, the present strain seems not only the present movement bringing back as it three years instead of two years, as now pro-vided by starute. Mr. Walkace raised a point of order, that a bill extending the term of the Receiver of Taxes had been introduced in the early part of the session and defeated, and that the present bill to be in order be-cause it contained new matter. Mr. Lowry said that it was all wrong to ex-Each present movement bringing back as it were and embodying the spirit of some melody that had gone before, anticipates and seems trying to overtake something that is to come." Here is the subtler but truer con-jecture of the cause of this mystery. The meteory back as it contained new matter. Mr. Lowry said that it was all wrong to ex-tend the terms of these elective officers, and Mr. Walkace said the bill would cause more fault to be found with the Legislature than for any other act it had passed. Mr. Randall urged the passage of the section content to the term of the City Treasurer. It metempsychosis would more emphatically settle the question. Let each melody be supsettle the question. Let each merody be sup-posed to express some active emotion of an existence prior to this might be found renewed in the strains of some e found renewed in the strains of some 18 yeas to 7 nays. [The vote was mixed, and not wind and spiritual remembrance awakened of the bill the yeas were 13 and the mays 13, and the mays 13, and by the melody; but some occult sympathy would detect in its expression the renewal of would detect in its expression the renewal of an hitherto unknown time; we should be living over again a portion of a life not rounded by the years we can number; just in the same way that the excavator will bring to light sights and symbols of a time, so might
