FACTS AND FANCIES.
Chicago is planting elm trees fifty feet high...
Utah expects an immigration of 15,000 European converts to Mormonism this year...
Cooperated associations would seem to be the line of the barrel-makers...
A female Kuk-Klux Klan has been organized in Georgia...
The Petticoat is suggested as a title for the literary ladies' club...
The Pope's illness is due to epilepsy and varicose veins in his legs...
France smoked last year forty-two million five-cent cigars...
Baldwin measures forty-four and a half inches about his chest...
Heads of human bones mark the scene of the Orissa famine...
The Missouri Republican styles impeachment "the divorce case at Washington"...
The women of Topeka, Kansas, though allowed to vote, have had a caucus and nominated candidates for city officers...
It is estimated that the machinery of Great Britain does the work of four hundred million men...
The local of a Helena (Arkansas) paper denotes a girl...
Buttermilk. It probably occurred to him that that would be a good way to get up an item...
The New York Commercial Advertiser ventures the assertion that nine men out of ten were called duty duty, also wear their hair parted in the middle...
Gallivan's Messenger prints the notice of the birth of a son to J. Smith, in Paris, with a description of the Chicago papers copy. Thousands will rejoice at the news...
They say that Mrs. Tennyson is responsible for the appearance in print of the late laureate's drive. They say she stole the rhymes out of Mr. T's scraps...
The temperance men in England are agitating the question of a law compelling all liquor sold to be taken home and shared fairly with the family...
A Toronto clergyman is infringing upon Sylvanus Cobb's patent by announcing his sermons under the titles of "The City by Midnight," "The Secret Sect," or "The Voice of Blood," etc...
A French paper announces the approaching marriage of M. Gustave Dore with Miss Milson, the prima donna. It is added that they are both rich, and that it will consequently be a good match. But we don't believe the story...
Miss Josephine Lapham, of Woodstock, Ohio, and a cousin of the Rev. Olympia Stone, of Antioch College, Lexington, Virginia, and of the lamentable fact that those efforts are sanctioned by such men as Rev. J. W. Beecher, Professor Hitchcock, Horace Greeley and Gerrit Smith, we deem it our duty to print the following extracts of a letter from a resident of Antioch College, Lexington, Va., in the spirit of rebellion, proscription and mobocratic violence in that institution...
LEXINGTON, Va., March 17.—Residing in Lexington, and having seen more or less of the students and professors of Washington College daily, since Lee assumed the presidency of that institution, I feel it my duty to give the people a few facts, which will, I trust, show the philanthropists of the North the animus of the institution to which they are contributing. The professors are, without a single exception, thoroughly rebel in sentiment, and act accordingly. I have heard one of them assert that he would be finally rather live under military rule than see the school reconstructed under the laws of the present Congress. No student can remain in the college who is not a rebel; not, I suppose, from any law of the institution to that effect; but from the universal sentiment of those connected with the school...
The Scotch, Conn., gold digger, who has been at work for several months, has just abandoned his Spanish treasure and vanished, whether under the influence of Franklin's spirit or not, is unknown. His tools are seen as a cave he dug full of water. His bills are left to rot unrepaid; but, as he paid double prices, the losses will be only half their face...
John Joel, a resident of London, Canada, enjoyed a quiet smoke on Sunday evening, a volume of songs by Lord Vernes, an eminent judge of the northern kingdom, which are chiefly inspired by his lordship's zeal against the new theories abroad in the scientific world. Mr. Darwin's theory of the origin of species, by natural selection is made thus to explain itself. A deer with a neck that was longer by half than the rest of its family (try not to laugh) by stretching and stretching became a giraffe. Which nobody can deny...
A very long pig with a very long nose, sends forth a proboscis quite down to his toes. And he puts by the name of an elephant goose. Which nobody can deny...
An ape with a pliable thumb and big brain. When the gift of the gab had managed to gain, As a Lord of Creation established his reign. Which nobody can deny...
Artemus Ward says: "In the Crimea of eighteen hundred and one, my friend, the editor of the federal doodle and go dig his haters, and he acted me to edit for him during his absence. Accordingly I ground up his haters and sent out copy stuff from the exchanges for one week. I went up to the next town on a little jaunt, to rest my mental efforts. (This is sarcasm.) So I went over to the rail road office and asked the superintendent for a pass. 'You an editor?' he asked, evidently on the point of sending me back. 'No, sir,' said I. 'Don't look no more!' 'Just about' said he; 'but our road can't pass you!' 'Can't, say?' 'No, sir, it can't.' 'Then, see, I lookin' him full in the face with one eye open, it cross so slow, it can't pass anybody. Moshim' he had him that. It's the slowest road road in the West. With a mortified air he told me to get out of his office. I platted him and went.

CITY BULLETIN.
DEATH OF MAJOR FLOWERFIELD.—Major Armstrong, F. Flowerfield, a well known citizen of the Third Ward, died very suddenly last evening. He had been on a hunting excursion for a week past on the coast of New Jersey, in company with several friends. The party had just landed at Manhattan beach, and Major was engaged in a pleasant conversation with two of the party, when he suddenly fell dead. The deceased was in his usual apparent good health up to the moment of his sudden demise. Every effort was made by his friends to restore him to vitality in the body, but he could not be recalled to life.
Major Flowerfield was well known throughout the city as an active business man and politician, and was a member of the city council. He was a member of the old American party, and as such was elected to City Council, upon the going into effect of consolidation in 1854. He subsequently served a term as Recorder of the city, and filled the duties of the office with great satisfaction. At the time of the nomination of Mr. McMichael for Mayor, Major Flowerfield was also a candidate for the nomination.
ANOTHER HANDSOME IMPROVEMENT.—The old mansion house at the corner of Walnut street and Washington Square, formerly occupied by Josiah Randall, and the adjoining dwelling on Walnut street, have entirely disappeared. The property was purchased by the Philadelphia Saving Fund Society, and a magnificent building for the use of the society is to be put up. The new structure will have a front of 32 feet on Walnut street, and 130 feet on Seventh street. The principal front will be in the Italian style of architecture. It will have two ranges in height from the basement, with arched openings, and a massive rusticated door-piece. Quincy granite will be used in the construction of all the exterior of the first floor, besides the marble floor, will be of large size, with a ceiling of tall room, will have rooms for the officers, the vault, and a retiring room for depositors; and the second floor, the managers' office, president's room, &c., &c. The building will cost $130,000, and is to be completed next summer.
ROBBERY AND RECOVERY OF STOLEN PROPERTY.—Last evening the stable of Colton & Clarke, on Sanson street, near Fifteenth, was broken into. The thieves hitched up a horse, and packing into a wagon an awning valued at two or three hundred dollars, drove off. Intelligence of the robbery was left at the Sixth District Police Station, and this morning Policeman McKnight found the horse and wagon at Nineteenth and Spruce streets. The awning, horse, and driving lines were gone.
A GOOD MOVE.—An ordinance of the city provides that vehicles shall be kept a certain distance apart when being driven along the streets. This is intended to prevent danger to pedestrians, but the law has, as a general thing, been rather indifferently enforced. The Mayor, having received some communications upon the subject, called the attention of the Commissioners of Police to the matter, and desired them to notify their officers that the provisions of the ordinance must be rigidly enforced.
LARCENY OF RAILROAD IRON.—A man named George Calkins, residing in Dutch Row, in Richmond, was arrested upon the charge on the 10th inst. of having stolen from the Pennsylvania Railroad. The iron was taken at Fennery's Lane Station. Calkins was one of the men who jumped from the wagon at Coopersville, a few days ago, when a policeman appeared in view. He was taken before Alderman Senk, and was held in $1,600 bail to answer at Court.
CARELESS SHOOTING.—This morning, about nine o'clock, a colored man, residing on Rodman street, fired a pistol out of the back window of his house. The ball passed across Lombard street, and entered the window of a house. It passed in close proximity to the head of a woman and buried itself in a stove.
LARCENY OF HORSE.—A man named William Zellwies was arrested this morning at Fifth and Moore streets, upon the charge of the larceny of a lot of garden hose from the residence of Mrs. Scott, on Moyamensing avenue. The hose was found in his possession. He was committed by Alderman Mulik.

DISASTERS.
Sad Drowning Case.
On Thursday afternoon of last week an unknown man came to this place from a vessel lying in the Delaware River. He was somewhat deranged, provided quarters for him, and desired to go to Philadelphia, and he was put on the road to the city on Friday morning. He was apparently about forty years of age, tall, and stout in proportion. He was dressed in a dark, mixed-cotton coat, brown cassimere pants, a black vest, and a black cap. He had a beard and whiskers, and was clean-shaven. He had a few dollars in his pocket, and was accompanied by a woman, whose name he would not give. He was taken to the city on Friday morning, and was committed by Alderman Mulik.
