. ... News trom feumo. [Correspondence of the London Weekly Register.] DESCRIPTION OF THE NEW GARDINALS.

ROME, March 14.—One may say without exaggeration that last night, from the Ave Maria till near midnight, half Rome was in the streets. In the Consistory of the earlier part of the day, the eight new cardinals had been nominated-six to the rank of cardinal priests, two to that of cardinal deacons. new cardinals are, to a man, Italians; their reputation is, for the most part, local; and, with the exception of Cardinal Bonaparte, they have worked their way up to this dignity laboriously enough in the Church or in the State. It cannot be said that any one of them, except Cardinal Bonaparte, is young for the dignity. The Archbishop of Viterbo is fifty-seven, Cardinal Barili is sixty-six, Cardinal Beradi is fifty-eight, and Cardinal Beradi is fifty-eight, and Cardinal Ferrieri the same age. By a curious coincidence, the Cardinal Gonella and these two latter cardinals were all born in September, and Cardinal Ferrieri exactly fourteen days before the Cardinal Berardi. The two new cardinal deacons—Cardinals Borromeo-Arese and Capalti—are neither of them young at labor—the former having attained the position of Maggior Domo some years since, after service in the lower grades of dignity in the Pontifical household—the latter having for years worked hard as Secretary to Propaganda, and in connection with other congregations. Cardinal Barili was formerly Nuncio at the Court of Spain; the Archbishop of Viterbo at that of Brussels, and Cardinal Ferrieri is still Nuncio at Lisbon, at which city he will receive the hat from the hands of Monsignor Stonor, who has been ap-pointed to this distinguished and remunerative

Cardinal Bonaparte is in his fortieth year, and is the eldest surviving child of the late Prince Charles Bonaparte, President of the Republican Assembly under the Triumvirate, and of his wife Tenaide Bonaparte, only child of Joseph, titular King of Naples, and then of Spain, by the sister of the wife of Bernadotte— Mdlle. Clary of Marseilles. Cardinal Bonaparte is, therefore, doubly a Bonaparte, and represents, strangely enough, through his mother, the house of Bonaparte, as Joseph was the eldest of the brothers. He is also a near blood relation of the present royal family of Sweden. Prince Charles Bonaparte, son of Lucien, was a learned man, but a man of extravagant habits, and of mean and treacherous character in his political life, as may be guessed from his connection with the Roman Republic. His wife was, however, a woman of sterling goodness and of great strength of mind, devoting herself unflinchingly to the training of her children and to the poor, and as remarkable for her simple and fervent service of God as for clear common sense. Her two elder boys, Joseph and Lucien, between whose births was a gap of over four years, were her constant companions; and no greater proof can be wanted of the real greatness of this woman than the simple fact that these two young men, in the flower of manhood, at the same time of the troubles in Rome, when their father's house was a rendezvous for all the political scoundrels of Europe, and for men openly hostile to Christian morality, kept their faith and their purity of manners and the harder-kept perfectly of political judgmen perfectly unspoiled by the contamina tion about them. In those days the young stmplicity perfectly Joseph and his brother were as conspicuous for their devotion to the Pope as their father was conspicuous by his political degradation; they obstinately refused to have hand or part in their father's schemes; openly manifested their sympathy for the Holy Father; and when, later on, new troubles came, it was Joseph Bonaparte who, first of the higher nobles, spoke out in behalf of the rights of the Pope to their allegiance. In consequence, he was the object of bitter hatred to the revolutionaries, and it will be remembered that in 1849 a bomb was thrown into his carriage in Carnival time. He managed, by careful economy, to buy back the property which his father had lost by his extravagance, and, till the day of his death, two years back, he was remarkable for his piety, for his exceeding charity, and unflinching loyalty. When he died he left large legacies to the poor of Rome and it is literally true that the poor of Rome, and it is literally true that the poor of the city followed him to his grave with tears and prayers.

The mother of this rare pair of princely brothers died in 1854, too soon to save some of her younger children from the effect of their father's example. Lucien Bonaparte becme a priest in due course, and was made chamberlain and then domestic prelate of the Pope. He lived with his brother till the death of the latter, at the palace of the family in the Piazzi di Venezia, passing a simple, unobtrusive life, avoiding studiously honors and dignities and the respect of men. Any one who followed the traces of the martyrs through the Christian year in Rome would be sure to come often enough on Monsig-nor Bonaparte, for it seemed to be his delight to follow these traces in lone and out-of-the-way churches and cemeteries hallowed by the memories of the martyrs. At other times one might come upon him making the round of the seven churches in the humblest fashion. It was impossible not to be struck by this man; amongst the clergy of Rome are many men of singular fervor of piety, but the one ambition of this manseemed to be to surpass them all in fervor. Rather tall and very slight of build, with a refined and striking face, which, when once you knew who he was, recalled the wellknown portrait of Napoleon as First Consul —slightly lame, and walking with a stick, this man had a singularity about his appearance which arrested the eye instinctively. Always simply, often carelessly dressed, there was yet something about him which suggested that he must be more than he seemed to be. But the great feature about him was his recollectedness. In a country where the eye does much that in other countries is done by the lips, where thought is rapid and vagrant, the recollected-ness of this man, from the time he entered a church till he left it, moved one to remorse. From the door to the altar and back again he seemed to have no sight but for God; and his fervor over his prayers shamed every one who knelt near him. I can only say that long before I knew who he was, and others will bear me out in it, the devoutness of this priest struck me exceedingly, and I could not help saying in my heart—this is a veritable man of God. It helped to strengthen this feeling that Monsignor Bonaparte was apparently never to be met with except at the tombs of the martyrs, or in lone out-of-the-way places with sacred memories. For the last two years he would seem to have been living in France as quietly as he lived here; and one may truly believe that his new dignity is a true cross for him. His election has, however, been a fair compliment to the Emperor. of the French, and has prevented his putting forward the more dubious, claims of Monsignor Darboy. By the Emperor's wish and at his expense, Cardinal Bonaparte gave his public reception last night at the French Embassy. Cardinal Capalti gave his reception at Propaganda, and the other cardinals in some palace or other about the city. As these public receptions are open to all-comers in evening dress, and are rare oc-casions, it may be imagined how the Yankee element, which is now so large here, revelled in them. But during the evening the various palaces seem beset with visitors of a more pretentious kind, and the military bands outside in temporary orchestras regaled the staring crowds. There was also a fair show of illumination at the palaces, and in differ-ent parts of the city connected with one or other of the new cardinals.

OUTRAGEOUS ASSAULT. -Before Alderman Senix this morning an individual named George Pointer was charged with assault and battery. Yesterday a young German girl, who had but re-cently arrived in this country, got into a Union Passenger Railway car and rode to Richmond. At the terminus of the road she inquired of Pointer the way to Cumberland street. He offered to show her and took her to York street, near Gunner's Eun, where he assaulted her in a brutal manner. She got away from her assail-ant, but he followed her and repeated the assault. She wandered about until she found a policeman who was a German. To him she related the story of her wrongs, and described the villain who had taken advantage of her unprotected condition The officer soon afterward arrested Pointer in the fault of $2,000 bail to answer at court. Assault with a Black-Jack .- Wm. Feeny and James Hayes were arrested at Front and Walnut streets yesterday on the charge of assault and battery. Wm. Norman and three other men were standing on the corner yesterday afternoon engaged in conversation. Feeny and Hayes came up. Feeny attempted to scrape up an acquaiut-ance with Norman's party, but was told to mind his own business. He then drew out a black-jack and struck one of the men on the head, felling him to the sidewalk. He returned afterwards and flourished a pistol and a billy, but was arrested, with Hayes, his companion. The accused were taken before Alderman Beitler and were held in $1,000 ball for trial.

neighborhood, and this morning he was fully identified by the girl. He was committed in de-

ANOTHER APRIL SNOW STORM .- The weather yesterday was very remarkable. In the morning the sun shone brightly and the atmosphere was warm and pleasant. The wind was from the south. About two o'clock the wind changed to the north, and the sky became obscured by clouds. The wind got high and overcoats were not uncomfortable. Between four and five oclock snow commenced to fail. The flakes were hard and somewhat resembled hail. The snow continued to come down thick and fast un-til nearly midnight. This morning the housetops were covered to the depth of nearly three inches.

MOYAMENSING HOSE COMPANY .- The annual ball of this company will come off this evening at the Academy of Music. The building is to be decorated in the most elaborate manner, and the most extensive and complete arrangements have been made for the greatest enjoyment of the participants. The music will be under the direction of Messrs. Carl Sentz and Theodore Hermann, and the supper rooms under the charge of Mr. Adolph Broskauer, a well known caterer. The members of the Legislature are expected to arrive from Harrisburg in a special train and attend the ball.

A SUNDAY FIGHT.-Last evening about six o'clock two men who had imbibed a little too much egg-nog, got into a quarrel at Sixth and Queen streets. Friends of both parties interfered, and finally a general row was the result. Stones and braily a general row was the result. Stones and bricks were thrown about pretty freely, and several of the participants were injured by the flying missiles. The Seventeenth District police quelled the disturbance. Three of the rioters were arrested. They gave their names as Wm. Anderson, Owen Hamilton and John McCarnell The prisoners had a hearing before Alderman Rousell, and wore held in $800 hell for trial. Bonsall, and were held in $800 bail for trial.

House Robbery.—The house of Mr. E. Arnold. at Berks and Mervine streets, was entered a few nights ago through a back second-story window. which was reached by means of a ladder. From which was reached by means of a indeer. From a bureau drawer a lady's gold enameled watch, marked "C. K. A." on the outside, and "Presented to Clara by her brother Frank, Feb. 1, 1868," on the inside, a plain gold ring marked "Emma," another ring inscribed "C. Y.," a diamond set, and several other articles of jewelry were taken. A lot of silver table and tee apoons were taken. A lot of silver table and tea spoons and butter knives were also stolen. The silver-ware is all marked E. A."

ROBBERY IN CHURCH.-Last evening, about ix o'clock, two men went into a church at Twenty-second and Mt. Vernon streets, and asked permission to warm themselves by the stove. The sexton granted the request, but while his back was turned, the fellows appropriated a new off. The sexton pursued the thieves, and one was captured at Twenty-third and Spring Garden streets. His name is James Donnelly. He was committed by Ald. Pancoast. The other man escaped with the stolen coat.

COMMERCIAL EXCHANGE.—The fourteenth annual report of the Commercial Exchange of Philadelphia has just been issued. It is handcomely printed and contains much valuable in-formation in regard to the trade of Philadelphia, and a great amount of interesting statistical mat-ter relating to commercial matters in various parts of the world. The report was prepared by Mr. George G. Pierie, the Assistant Secretary of ATTEMPTED ROBBERY.—A man named Frank Riley, alias Laughlin, was arrested on Saturday, upon the charge of attempting to rob the money drawer of a tavern at Third and Catharine streets. A gong in the drawer prevented the robbery. Riley, it is alleged, was also concerned in the assault upon a Mr. Palmer, who assisted a policeman to make an arrest at Fourth and Queen streets some days since. He was committed by Ald. Tittermary.

DISHONEST DOMESTIC .- Mary Sweed, who had been engaged as a domestic in the house of Saml. Fox, at Sixteenth and Cherry streets, was arrested on Saturday night and taken before Alderman Pancoast upon the charge of having stolen several articles of wearing apparel belonging to her employer. She was held for a further hearing. She has been in custody before on the charge of larceny.

THE CHURCH OF THE ANNUNCIATION .- Yesterday the services at the Church of the Annunciation, on Tenth street below Dickerson, were peculiarly impressive. The choir, under the lead-crship of Professor Lagrasse, sung Mercadente's celebrated Mass in an excellent manner. The solo parts were rendered by Miss Annie Sellers, and Messrs. F. Brennan, T. Carroll and E.

ROBBERY.—The window of the store of H. C. Vezey, merchant tailor, No. 234 South Tenth treet, was broken into last evening, about nine o'clock, and goods valued at about $50 were abstracted. This is the second time this store has been robbed within a week. One of the parties concerned in the first robbery is under arrest.

PICKING POCKETS.—Daniel McCarty has been committed by Ald. Senix to answer the charge of baving picked the pocket of the steward of a vessel lying at Otia street wharf, of a pocket book containing $15.

JOVENILE THIEF. For sometime past various articles, principally iron, were missed from Kater Hall, on South street, above Fifteenth. On Saturday Mr. Kater. street, above Fifteenth. On Saturday Mr. Kater, the proprietor, went into the stable attached to the building, and there found a bag filled with iron, which had been stolen and packed up ready for removal. Upon going up into the hall he found a boy, named James Cahill, 14 years of age, who was arrested on suspiction of having committed the different depredations. The accused was taken before Alderman Dallas, and was held in $800.

ATTEMPTED MURDER. - Two young colored men, who had been out together, got into a quarrel at Fifteenth and Jones streets, on Saturday afternoon. One of the men drew a razor, and made a furious attack on the other. The latter received a severe cut on the side of the neck. The assailant was arrested. His name is Charles Green. He was committed by Alderman Jones.

RECEIVING STOLEN GOODS -Geo. Willis was before Ald. Mink upon the charge of receiving stolen goods. It is alleged that he purchased a lot of stolen garden hose at a price much below its value. He was held for a further hearing.
