OFENING OF A NEW ORGAN.-On Thursday evening next a new organ will be opened in the First Independent Church, when a concert will be given, in which several well-known musicians will participate. The organ was built by Messra. H. Knauff & Son. It contains three sets of manuals, each with a compass of fifty-eight notes, from CC to A; a set of pedals of full two octaves, twenty-five notes, from CCC to C; and three "composition pedals," operating upon the stops of the great organ. When completed in full accordance with its plan, it will include forty-four drawstops. The instrument has been constructed from the modern scales and improved methods of voicing, is supplied with all the valuable improvements in its various details, and is in every respect a first-class and thoroughly finished organ. It has a decided increase of power and volume of tone over those of the usual construction, whilst the individuality in the character of the various stops is well-smarked and prominent, and thus adapts any one of them for effective solo-playing as well as combinations. given, in which several well-known musicians of them for effective solo-playing as wen as continuations.

The case is bold and graceful in its proportions, from an original design, ornamental in its details, and presents a tasty and handsome appearance. Its front pipes are ornamented in gold and color, worked upon a white metallic ground, a style of finish original with the builders.

It will form a decided acquisition to the appearance and finish of the church in which it stands, will prove an acceptable and important addition to its public exercises, and will be increasingly valued with the labee of time.

Annual Discourse.—The sixth anniversary of the pastorate of Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, of of the pastorate of Kev. T. De Witt Lames, of the Second Reformed Church, Seventh street, above Brown, occurred on Sunday. A sermon adapted to the occasion was preached by this divine before a large audience. The speaker referred to the ministry as a calling of the highest honor, and one which should claim the attention of the young men of our large cities, possessing as it does claims which no other profession can boast of. From the college the graduate mostly enters at once into a salaried position, and is brought before the public, where, if he possesses any marked ability, he must assuredly advance in influence and command a handsome support. The discourse was continued at length reviewing the different inducements offered by a position of this kind and the happy results flowing from the faithful performance of its duties.

During the year just ended the church had been increased in membership, most of those joining being the fruits of the Sunday evening discourses. Nearly $11,000 have been contributed for benevolent purposes, besides other amounts raised for special objects. Exclusive of the regular discourses, the speaker had made upwards of 240 public addresses. His relationship with the congregation was represented to have been than the sunday of the handlest character, and at the Second Reformed Church, Seventh street,

The Assassination at Troy, N. Y. Troy, April 18.—A fearful assassination of a member of the Capital Police force of this district took place here at an early hour this morning. The Capital Police district is so organized is to include in the Fifth ward of the city a village is to include in the Fifth ward of the city a village heretofore known as Alba—a point about three miles from the heart of the city. It was in this village that at about four c'clock this morning a citizen named Vanderpool, in passing from his house to a distant barn, discovered the lifeless body of patrolman David Crandell lying upon the sidewalk directly in front of the house of John Davis. He was discovered to have been shot through the head, and his death must have been instantaneous. An alarm was the immediately given to neighbor-An slarm was the immediately given to neighborhood, and his wife and children were brought to the scene. An immediate investigation disclosed the fact that the store of McNeal & Pilling, in the vicinity of the murder, had been broken into, the vicinity of the murder, had been broken into, and an attempt made to enter the iron safe, while the wagon shop of Mr. Norris had also been forcibly entered and robbed of some tools, a large number of false keys being found in the street. The dead body of Policeman Crandell was found about two hundred feet from the store. He was last seen alive about balf-past one this morning, when he stepped off his beat to converse with a party attached to the stables of the Albia horse railway, passing from which it is thought he discovered the presence of burglars in the store above named, and was inhumanly shot down in the attempt to capture them. manly shot down in the attempt to capture them. it being believed that he recognized the assassin, or assassins, and was in turn recognized by them. Another theory is that the dead policeman reconnoitred the store, and seeing that there were too many men for him to handle alone, proceeded stealthly down the street to procure assistance, when he was shot down by a concealed accomplice and picket of the scoundrels firing from the opposite side of the street. This theory finds some defence from the character and position of Crandell's wounds. Three pistol shots were distinctly heard about this time by several persons, but the facts were not investigated at the time of the firing. The first shot lodged in a building, whence it has been extracted; the second grazed the bridge of the nose of the deceased, while the third and fatal shot entered his forchead about an inch over the nose, lodging in the brain. The assassins of course at once fled and only the morning light revealed the terrible crime that had been committed. Policeman Crandell, the deceased, was a brave man, about torty years of age, and at the time of the occurrence was wholly unarmed, the coldness of the night having induced him to enter his house and change his coat, leaving his revolver in the coat left behind.

This morning the police authorities, headed by Superintendent Landon and an accomplished detective (Mr. Kirk) arrested two men named Jones and McCooley, both of whom are notoriously bad men upon suspicion of being connected with the direful deed. Ed. Jones has once stood his trial for murder in this city, being acquitted of what is known in criminal annals here as the Shingle Hollow nurder, some months since.

Hollow murder, some months since.
Of course the greatest excitement prevails here, and it is firmly believed that the arrested parties were connected with the deed. The post mortem examination reveals the fact that the ball was fired from a Colt's revolver. I am informed by New York burglars, of whom Superintendent Landon says they will not spare the pistol, knife or bludgeon, and he therefore warns the community to be on guard.

CITY NOTICES.

A FAVORITE PHILADELPHIA DRY GOODS ESTABLISHMENT.—Among the best-established and most favorably known business houses of this city, the popular Dry Goods Emporium of Mr. John W. Thomas, Nos. 405 and 407 North Second street, has long held an enviable position. Its respected and highly successful proprietor early set out with a determination to create such a shopping resort for purchasers of Dry Goods, including all the richer departments of Silks and Dress Goods, as would command the counidence of his patrons. His best hopes in this regard have been fully achieved. His stock is quoted to-day not only in the most fashionable circles of our city, but throughout the land is the synonym of elegance, good taste and moderate prices. No one is ever disappointed in "going to Thomas's," unless it is in the way of agreeable surprise at inding at 405 and 407 North Second-street a magnificent stock of Silk Goods and Dress Material of every description, full equal in richners and variety to any stock offered on Chestnut street, Philadelphia, or Broadway, New York. We recommend all our lady readers who have not yet done so to make an early a quaintance with this elegant establishment.

Mr. S. S. Campbell, long and favorably known as an extensive manufacturer of candies, is now associated with this house, and we are earnest in the opinion that the connection cannot but prove eminently advantageous to the best interests of the new irm
