Arrest of a Mail Robber. (From the Richmond (Va.) Dispatch.] For nearly two months past the authorities at For nearly two months past the authorities at Washington have had reason to believe that ex-tensive robberies of the mail were being perpe-trated somewhere between that city and Rich-mond on the Fredericksburg route. About six weeks ago a farmer living on the banks of the Potomac found a large number of opened letters washed ashore on his land, and, suspecting some-thing wrong, prudently took them to the Depart-ment at Washington. ment at Washington. The dreumstances were quickly soized upon by Mr. McDevitt, the detective who had been seected to forret out the suspected robberies, lead-ing him to the conclusion that the criminal was their fraternity, and to bring them to trial for neglect of duty, or on conviction of any crime, religious or moral. These officials, being ap-prised that a grave suspicion attached to one of their order, placed a spy over his conduct. Having selected for the purpose one of the most tried and sagacious amongst themselves, he began his task by studying closely the movements and actions of the supposed de-linquent.
