The 21st of Mey, 1868, is a day destined to be long remembered, for two important The most memorable of these is the fact that the wind has changed from the East the rigging of his ship: "Be of good cheer, together with the landscapes and street scenes of to the North-west. After a spell of such | we will stand by you." Captain Stouffer | the Kock-kocks, and interiors, with figures by weather as the memory of man goeth not and Captain Low in the same spirit "stood Lampe, Geyschinck, Leickert, &c. An omission back thereto, the sun has resumed its legitiby," and the Three Bells, the Antartic, and which we regret was that of the capital humorous mate functions, and there is a look in the sky the Kilby, all of them so injured by the subject, "The Tollet," by A. Stauch. This small, bighly-finished picture, painted with Germanmate functions, and there is a took in the say as if the sun-shine had not only come, but come to stey. The first five months of '1868 included, with about sixty-five pictures of included inc come to skey. The first five months of '1868 have been marked, in this latitude, by a consistency of weather rarely equalled. When it has not rained, it has been cloudy for a while, then it has rained. There have been days since New Year's day when the sun reported progress and asked to be constinued, but these have been so few and far between that the general impression is that the sun has not had a good, fair shine since last year. The money market continues very easy at 50% per cent, the It ading dealers in government securities being offered more tunds at the lower rate than they can make use of. The loamable resources of the banks are increasing under the drain of currency from the interior, and the demand for loans from the Stock Exchange is light in consequence of which the banks and private leaders have to seek other employment for their surplus. The applications for discounts are on a very limited reale, owing to the dulness of trade and the best grade of commercial paper passes at 60% per cent. on the street. The conversions of seven-thirty notes into bonds at the Sub-freasury are going forward very rapidity, the aggregate to day being $1.744,650, while $1.245,000 of compound interest notes were redeemed. In addition to the $2.257,000 of the latter which natured on the 16th inst, there will mature on August 1, $12.508,120, on September 15, $1.81,993; on October 1, $1.965,200, and on October 15, $2.90,050. More than half of the May compound notes have already been redeemed in three per cent. certificates day. Government securities were very largely dealt in during the day, the aggregate of transactions being even greater March next. The speaker retired and great upplause.
