Schator Van Winkle.

The Pittsburgh Commercial says, Senator Van Winkle, in company with those other recrea at Senators who went over body and soul to Audrew Johnson, are reaping the reward of their treachery in the just-indignation of their misrepresented and betrayed constituents. The Wheeling (West Virginia) Intelligencer devotes over a column to Senator Van Winkle, from which we extract the following:

"To all his other offences Mr. Van Winkle has added the blackest ingratitude. It was the party upholding the great cause, which he now stabs like an assassin, that gave West Virginia leave to place two men on the floor of the United States Senate: and the spokesman of that party who plead for us then and there was Benjamin F. Wade. Now our loyal Representatives at Washington are overwhelmed with the reproaches of Republicans in both Houses, whose confidence in West Virginia loyalty is almost destroyed. Butfor these men five years ago, West Virginia would to day be but an outlying province of rained old Virginia, governed, like her, by the sword. Yet Van Winkle had scarcely warmed his seat in the Senate before he began to show his antipathy to their principles, and his hatred to the men who alone have ever befriended us. But the crowning act of treachery and malignity was reserved for this crisis, chosen by him and his coadjutors with a belief that the life of the organization they sought to destroy might be taken at a single blow. Whatever men may say of Fessenden and Grimes, or any one else, their conduct is as fair as the sun compared with that of Van Winkle, who seems to have been dead to every sentiment of henor or gratitude or duty to his people and his friends."

HATE WIR. Wade Takes the Verdict.

How Mr. Wade Takes the Verdict. As for Mr. Wade, he has taken it very philosophically—more so than many of his friends. He has had only kind words and earnest expressions for the success of the party under its chosen leaders. He has called upon both, and assured them of his hearty support. With his labor for them in the coming campaign, his public career will close. Eighteen years of stern battle in the halls of Congress, and upon the stump, will be the crown of his old age. It has been one continuous conflict. In all those years its guns have not been silent, nor has the smoke lifted from the field where, with a constantly increasing army, the party of liberty was advancing its banners. The country knows his record, and even those whose ambition can not brook his success know and honor it. He has seen his party grow, from a little handful, upon As for Mr. Wade, he has taken it very philobrook his success know and honor it. He has seen his party grow, from a little handful, upon whom nearly every man's hand, every press and every pulpit was ready to do violence, and against which at last eight millions of people took up arms, till it has crushed its opponents and taken possession of a continent. Honest has he been through all, courageous through all, taking no istep backward, ancorrupted in the midst of corruption, blunt, unpolished as a lifetime hewer with the battle-axe would inevitably be, and yet for which rudeness so acquired some of the carfor which rudeness so acquired some of the car-pet knights of our latter day battles, who flash their dainty and bloodless swords so gracefully, might well exchange something of their elegant manners, and all of their cool, calculating, legal zreacheries. Well will it be for them if, when zhey are laid aside, the can hold up to their countrymen a record to pure, as honest, as honorable and as law in the sacred history of Freedom's wars as a family wade has won.—

Inauguration of the Benton Statue. Letter from Mrs. Fremont. Apropos of the inauguration of the Benton statue, the St. Louis papers publish the following letter from Mrs. Fremont, Thos. H. Benton's

Jaughter.

Dear Mr. Crow: Your no f the 27th ult. has just reached me, and I reply at once to the part asking for the names of the family. Time and the war have left but few.

It would be so acceptable to have the part the Commissioners gratify me by offering, that I would certainly come if I were guided only by the commissioners gratify me by offering that I would certainly come if I were guided only by the commissioners for the commissioners of my feelings. Some family arrangements for about the same time will require me to be here, but if you will let me defer my positive answer for two or three days, I can either reconcile them or give up what would be a great and lastthem or give up what would be a great and lasting pleasure to me. My father will receive an unusual honor in having his cherished work commemorated. Usually it is as Emerson says: "Columbus discovers the continent and the pickle-dealer Vespucius puts his name upon it." A wagon road to Oregon was held to be too visionary for a sane mind, as the telegraph and railway lines were later. All my younger life was passed in hearing these discussions—waiting for practical refutations. And, indeed, I was so much taken into the work, and in so was so much taken into the work, and in so many ways deeply interested in it, that I think I could have said of the Paclife what Mary said of Colais—for it was pressed into my heart for a long part of my life.

Your note of invitation was the sound of old battle-fields with ignorance and prejudice, and hostile tribes and climates, and most of a seamost the sound of the long tribes. board policy that could spare nothing for Western interests. It is the victory over these that you embody in the statue.

A correspondent of the Chango Tribune says:

'I saw on the streets of Nazaville, yesterday, an attenuated and emaciated to m belonging to a man who filled quite a large space in the public eye during the war. It was note other than Clement C. Clay, one of the correlisioners of the rebels abroad, rad the communion of Mason and Slidell in their negociations with France and England. Clay was the man who was met by Horace Greeley, at Niagara Falls, towards the close of the war, the two ostensibly coming together for the purpose of arranging for some nort of peace. The negotiations were all futile, as will be remembered.

as will be remembered.

"Clement Clay was one of the most remarkable men in the South at the breaking out of the war. He had just been elected from the Huntsville, 'Alabama, district to the National Congress, and had only reached his majority a few months before. His family were wealthy and powerful, and Mr. Clay entered upon what seemed destined to prove a most brilliant career in public life.

By the war he lost all his property. By the war he lost all his property, and is now racked with asthma and consumption. Mysterious Affair in Portsmouth—A Philadelphian Found in the River. [From the Portsmouth Republican of the 20th inst.]
The remains of John W. McAvoy, of Philadelphia, were found floating in the river, this morphia, were found noting in the river, this morning, by Frank Purdum and William Booler, two boys, as is evidenced by papers found in his pocket. He seems to have belonged to company E, 191st regiment Pennsylvania Volunteers, and to have been in the water for some months. No money was found on his person, but blood was discovered on his handkerchief. The deceased was of medium height, we judge, with long black hair, a very white skin, and genteel appearance. He was well clothed with a fine blue coat, black ribbed pants, and had on two flannel shirts, with well-worn boots and foxed overshoes. One of the letters found seems to have been written by his cousin, Catharine A. Diamond, 1623 Race street, Philadelphia. The coroner's jury were continuing the examination as we left.

The following letter was found:

Philadelphia, July 31, 1867.—To the President of the City Railroad.—Dear Sir: The undersigned citizens cheerfully recommend the bearer, John W. McAvoy, to a situation as conductor on the cars. We believe him to be sober and reliable, and deserving of a situation in your employment.

ALLEGED SWINDLER .- Thomas Mears was be fore Alderman Toland this morning. It is alleged that he went to the clothing store of Bacharach that he went to the clothing store of Bacharaca & Bro., No. 402 North Second street, and represented himself as being connected with the establishment of W. C. Colburn, of Drummondtown, Va., and ordered clothing amounting to $500. He then selected the finest suit of clothes in the store and had the cost added to the other bill. Subsequently Mears returned to the store and asked a loan of $10. This led to inquiries and his arrest on the charge of being an impostor. and his arrest on the charge of being an impostor. He was committed in default of $1,500 bail to answer at Court.

FLAG PRESENTATION .- The handsome which was voted at the recent fair in aid of the German Polytechnic School, No. 928 Race street, was won by the Young Münnerchor, and was presented to that organization at the school building last evening. Dr. Kellner, of the Philadelphia Demokrat, President of the school, in presenting the flag, made a neat speech, which was approprintely responded to by Prof. Hoffmann, Vice Prosident of the Young Mannerchor. Several ladies who were present also made brief ad-dresses, and the presentation ceremonies were very pleasant.

RETURNED. - The Rev. A. Nevin, D. D. arrived in this city from the South early in this week. Doctor N. is much pleased with his visit in every respect. He represents many regions of the South as very inviting to Northern citizens. The column as very inviting to Northern cutizens. The climate of Florida, where he has spent the winter, proving with its summer heat damaging to Dr. Nevin's health, he has concluded to locate bimself with a colony of Pennsylvanians and Floridians in Central Virginia. He will take charge of the church of the new colony.

ORDERED TO THE PACIFIC.-Rear Admiral Thomas Turner, U. S. N., a resident of this city, has been ordered to command the South Pacific Squadron, and will sail for there early next week.
