The speaker than referred in elequent and touching words to the decoration of voldiers' graves—a ceremony performed over the whole nation upon the same day.

They fought, and fought well—the hation depended on them—still depends on them—covered all over, as they are; with homerable scare, received in those four years of conflict for the nation's life. They have done their work, and have done at well. They rest from their labors. The remainder is with you—with me—with all the rest of the freemen in this land, in the coming political contest at the ballotbox. If you elect men—sum, who, in the language of the hero who led your armies to victory through those four years of conflict, with a modest, becoming the greatness of his character, in response to the nomination which had been offered him by the united will of the pure freemen of this land—if we elect men who, in the 'language of your great here, General Grant at the trust of the people is committed to me, I have no wish to thwart the people's will, but consider it my duty to carry out that will." FORTICAL STATE AND ALLEY EVENING BUILDERING PHILADELIFEIA MONDAY, JUNE 1, 1888.

REPUBLICAN STATE OF THE PRINCIPLE OF THE PRI Ha closed his remarks by referring to General Grant. Whem he said might be trusted. He was the companion of Lincoln. (Great cheers.) Abrabam Lincoln lifted him from his humble position in lithicals, and put-him at the head of the army. He trusted him until the last gun was fired and laid down. If he trusted him, cannot we? He is just such a man as Mr. Lincoln-one who will remember its oath to protect and defend the constitution. And he will keep that oath. The speaker then alluded to the taints and jeers which the Democracy were fligging at this great man, and ead of them that the men who, during the war, said he was a great man, and now turned their backs upon him, were unworthy of having a defender.

The speaker retired amid loud applause. After Mr. Bingham had closed hir. William H. Ruddiman read the following resolutions, which were adopted amid great at plause; in the citizens of Philadelphia, in massusceting assembled, maintaining the principles onunciated as the platform of the National Republican party, and cordially approving and indersing the action of the representatives of that party in convention met, at Chicago on the 26th and 21st of May instant, bett.

It solved, That we adopt, as the full expression of our political faith and rule of action, the doctrines promulated by the Convention of the National Hepublican party.

It solved, That we recognize and applaud the wisdom which has placed upon our standard the illustrious names of Grant and Colfax.

Resolved, That in General Ulysses B. Grant, our choice for President of the United, States, we have the uniqueled soldier who led our armies to victory, and saved our luion from dismemberment and ruin; who in the conclusion of the states of the field, and fitted for its sternest demands, and who in the councils of State was the prudent, particulo and conscientious advisor; while against the overtures or intrigues of baseness and falsehood he presented the front of instinctive honor, and the protect of ins high and manly character. A particle against the overtures or intrigues of the loyal people for the highest office in their sift, was but prophelic of his sure election to that chair in which Washington first, and Lincoln last, sat with such pure whose loyalty has never faltered, and astacsman whose official consistency. In his country's struggles for existing the fall of the sure of the consideracy. In his country's struggles for cause; and his brilliant record in the past is the certain guarantee. After Mr. Bingham had closed Mr. William H. Ruddi-man read the following resolutions, which were adopted when the monthly of a control of the control of the
