The Coal Crade.

The Wilkesbarre (Pa.) Record of the Times has the following summary of the present condition of the coal trade:

"The Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company shares, but the bulk liques show considerable boldness in of the coal trade:
"The Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company has been compelled to expend vast sums of money on its railroads to replace its navigation and to secure coal, creating a heavy indebtedness, the interest upon which must be met before ness, the interest upon white must be net to determine the dividends can be expected on stock, and the depressed condition of the coal trade is not encouraging for high rates of toll and transportation. The natural growth of the trade must soon overcome the difficulty of overproduction, and then fortunes will be made until new roads are completed to again glut the market.
"The Pine Ridge shaft has been passing coal through the breakers, and may be deemed in opetaking some part in its supervision.

"Mr. Swoyer thinks he has opened the mammoth vein of coal near his new slope east of the plank road in Plains township. We have not plank road in Plains township. We have not seen it yet. The Baltimore mine running east from the foot of the new slope towards Mr. Parsons' land on Laurel Run, divided, a middle slate sens' land on Laurel Run, divided, a middle slate increasing from a few inches to many teet, seeming to prove that the theory which we have never fully believed—that the two veins known as the Wilcox mine, now the Union Comoth seam divided by from fourteen to six-Mammoth seam, divided by from fourteen to sixteen feet of elate rock. The elate has thinned out in the Baltimore slope to a few inches again. At least it is so reported, and leaves the question still involved in doubt. The Mineral Spring Coal Company, which works the property of Parsons and Elick, have two seams which may be the Mammoth and Wilcox, but this union of the Baltimore coal, if properly reported, approaching the Mineral Spring, would throw doubt on the theory."
