A GEOLOGICAL FXUURSION TO THE CUAL REGIONS.

[Reported for the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.] MOUNT CARDON, Pa., Jane 11, 1868 .- This afternoon we found ourselves in company with the class of geological students of the University of Pennsylvania, and several members of the Academy of Natural Sciences of Philadelphia, who, under the direction of Prof. F. V. Hayden, of the Auxilliary Facalty of Medicine of the above College, were about to avail themselves of the liberality of Charles E. Smith, Esq., the President of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad. This gentleman had kindly furnished a special car for the transportation of the excursionists to the Pottsville coal fields. Pupctually at 3.30 P. M., in a cold northeaster, that failed to dampen the ardor of these students of nature, we moved out of the fine depot at Broad and Callowhill streets.

On the iron tails that appeared like cobwebs as On the iron tails that appeared like cobwebs as they stretched over the streets we skirted past the beautiful reservoir at Fairmount, the pride of Philadelphia, and the fresh green park that beau-tifics the shores of the poetical Schuylkill. The geological structure of the country here is com-paratively simple, the surface covered with a con-siderable deposit of diluvium or loose gravel; rest-ing mong gradistic rocks. remarkable physical events of the georgest history of the globe. Pasting over these gnelssic rocks and their debris to near Conshohocken, we came to a belt of crystalline limestone, called by Prof. H. D. Rogers the mathal limestone of the lower silu-rian, which extends to Norristown, being about rian, which extends to Norristown, being about three miles in breadth. Here (Norristown) we found the new red sandstone making its appear-ance, resting uncomfortably on the lower silurian. The whole surface of the coun-try-changes in color, assuming the red shade, which is due to the fact that the saperficial sonde, which is due to the tension of these red sondering derived from the erasion of these red sandstone rocks is permeated with the sesquioxide of iron, which the copious rains were washing of iron, which the copious rains were washing down, coloring the little brooks, and they, by pouring into the Schuylkill, have changed the water to the dingy red, which is so objectionable to our city laundresses. The upper stratum, composed of materials worn from the gnelssic rocks around Philadelphia, possessing gnegative rocks around Philadelphia, possessing compara-tively little fertility, is in strong contrast with the rich soll that is derived from the limestones the rich soil that is derived from the limestones of the lower siluriau and the sandstones of the mesozoic (or middle-life period of geologi-cal history). This red sandstone continues to Neversink, on the line of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, where it is terminated by a rock commonly called Corglomerate; this is pro-hably the same as the Potonac Conziomerate, of which the beautiful pillars of the House of Repre-sentatives, at Washington, are composed The new red sandstone forms the southern boundary pew red sandstone forms the southern boundary of the Lebanon valley, and runs parallel with the

In Reading we entered upon the lower Silu-rian rocks and continued on through the differ-cut stages of the Silurian and Devonian until we reachd the Carboniferous, or coal-bearing rocks at Mount Carbon. A most interesting chemical process, on a large (cole, occurs at Reading The Schuylkill river is charged with sulphuric acid, caused by the decomposition of the iron pyrites that is mixed with the coal, and is washed down by the little streams that lead from these mines. Flowing into this acid river are two smaller streams, Maiden and Tulpebocken creeks, which, traversing ex-tensive limestone valleys, have car-bonate of lime in solution; this, uniting with the sulphurle acid of the river, forms the sulphurle acid of the river, uniting with the sulphuric acid of the river, forms the sulphate of lime (gypsum) which, being insoluble, settles to the bottom, leaving the river clear and pure. The water, prior to this passage through Nature's laboratory, is destructive, not only to animal life, killing the fish which for-merly abounded in these streams prior to the opting of the mines, but rusting the iron pipes of the stream (ngine boiliers, water conduits, & co.)

third street above Coates, was arrested on Baturday by Sergeant Albertson, and taken before Ald Pancoast. The complainant was a young woman who has heretofore borne an unsulled reputation. She alleges that Kelley went out with her and enticed her into a saloon near Fair-mount Park. There she was induced to drink, and soon became much intoxicated. While in that condition, she charges, Kelley committed an outragcous assault upon her. When she recoonirageous assault upon her. Her attempt to com-mit wilde thus was unsuccessful, as she was soon taken out of the water through the efforts of the hands on the boat, assisted by some of the passengers. She did not despair of ending her existence, however, for soon afterwards she attempted to throw herself upon a cog-wheel in a foundry in the vicinity of Fairmount. She was prevented from accomplishing her purpose by me of the workmen, and was taken to the Ninth come of the working, and was taken to the Alinta District Station House, where she related her sad story. A warrant for the arrest of Kelley, the alleged cause of her misery, was issued, and he was taken into custody as above stated. After the hearing he was committed in default of $1,000 ball, for trial.

ANNIVERSARY OF THE TABERNACLE SUNDAY SCHOOL .--- The twentieth anniversary of the Sabbath Schools of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, bath Schools of the Inbernacie Baptist Church, Chestnut street west of Eighteenth, was held yes-terday afternoon. Although no effort had been made to make the holding of this anniversary known, the church edifice was crowded to ex-cess, doubtless in consequence of the attractions furnished by the beautiful singing of the scholars, who have been trained into almost unequaled ef-ficiency by J. M. Evans, Esq., one of the Super-intendents. The exercises were opened by fictency by J. M. Evans, Esq., one of the Super-intendents. The exercises were opened by chanting the 121st Psalm by the entire school, followed by prayer by the Pastor, Rev. G. A. Peltz, "Lambs of the Fold" was then sung by the school, after which the Superintendents' report was read, showing that the school is divided into three departments — the Infant School, conducted by Aaron E. Carpenter and William H. Van Ingen; the Juvenile School by J. M. Evans; and the Adult Bible School, by by William Syckelmoore, the total number in the three departments, being seven hundred and by whith by exclanation, being seven hundred and twenty. After further exercises an address was delivered by Rev. Dr. Stryker, of the North Broad Street Presbyterian Church, which was listened to with great attention. That beautiful retrain, "We are Waiting," was then sung, aft, r which the speakers and Superintendents, with some of the teachers, were presented with beautiful bouquets, when this happy occasion was closed by chanting and the benediction. "MR PHILLIP PHILLIPS, the musical editor of the Methodist Episcopal Church, sails for Europe in the Cubs, on the 17th. Since the days of the Wesleys, there has probably been no man in that Church who has been so poplar a leader and singer of sacred songs. He carries letters of commendation from the Bishop and leading men in the Methodist Episcopal Church, and proposes to compile, during his journey, a new book of song that will be adapted to the wants of both sides of the Atlantic, to be published by the Book Concern in New York."-New York Tribune. Before reaching Mouat Carbon we passed through three tunnels: the first, near Manayunk, called the Flat Rock Tunnel, penetrates the gneissic rock, and is 907 feet in length; these lie below the fossil-bearing rocks and are chiefly remarkable for the garnets they contain. The second tunnel, near Phoenixville, 1,932 feet in length, is cut in the black slate of the new red sandstone period, and is notable not only on account of its handsome dolomites or pears spars, but also for the fossils found there. These consist chiefly of reptilian remains, and a nucleu of copralities (the fossil excrement) of the suof copralites (the fossil excrement) of the sur-rians. Several of these, broken open by Mr Lorerz, disclosed imbedded within them the scales of ganoids (fishes like the gar or sturgeou) showing clearly the food upon which these huge reptiles susisted. The same gentleman slas found teeth of these reptiles, beautifuily furrowed or fluted along the sldes, and others dis-tinctly serrated at their edges.
