he settled in this country when he lays down the principle that the nation is divided bethose who sustained the Government definite, and those who labor to obliterate it too hastily do so at the risk of sacrificing verything that victory won for the Union. Daily evidences are afforded which show that the spirit of the Rebellion dies hard and very slowly. Here and there, throughout the accepting the legitimate conclusions of the war, and striving to cultivate in themselves and their neighbors a spirit of loyalty which it to apply to Government employes only, the present generation has not been taught by and what then? those that went before it. But these are exceptions, and the majority of the prominent actors in the Rebellion are never so happy as the navy, the customs department, the mints sent.—Ballly's figure of Washington, the interwhen they can get together in some corner of and post offices throughout the country. By that time they had lost their exuberance of foil, and were in a meck and quiet frame of mind. Schoppin was particularly quieted by the Ciscovery of his person of a pair of iron knuckles of the villsinous pattern, and the information given him by the Justice that the carrying of such an instrument was a criminal offence, for which many persons had been sent to the Pentientlary. Finally complaints of disorderly conduct were made by Mr. Bateman against Miss Berthiot, and by Officer Young against the men, and the party were fined $10 cach.

Among the parting gifts received by Ristori is a photograph album, presented by the American Dramatic Fund Society. The book was made by Messrs. Tiffany & Co. of this city. It is a quarto volume, fitted to contain 500 card portraits. It is bound in Russia leather, and is richly embosed with solid gold. On a gold plate, on one of its sides, is the following inscription: "Presented to Adelaide Ristori. A tribute of esteem and gratitude from the American Dramatic. Fund Association, June 25, 1868." Upon smaller plates—made to harmonize in shape with the design of the covers, and sheed mon both sides of the book—are in-DREXEL & CO.,

CMASE STOCK DECLINING.

The Richmond Enquirer has come out squarely against the nomination of Chief Justice Chase at the New York Convention, on account of his "abolition proclivities," which it says can never receive the support of conservative Virginians. This indicates clearly that Chase stands no chance with the Virginia delegation at New York, as the Enquirer is the exponent of the Democratic sentiment of that State.

A prominent Democrat, of the Ohio delegation in Congress, to-day declared that Chase would not get a single vote in the New York delegation from that State, as all repudiate him. On all aldes it is conceded that Chase's chances for the Gazette.

tion is very plain. Florence, some years ago, controlled the nary yard employes, when he represented the First District, and with "two sloops" to build periodically every two years, managed to keep himself in power for several terms. The Navy Yard is now situated in the Second District, and Florence calculates upon being elected through its influence, as a large number of voters will be put to work about election time, who he expects will do for him what they did in years gone by. The parties to this arrangement claimthat Randall's majority in the 1st District is smilledently large to make his election sure without the aid of the Navy Yard influence, which is to be thrown into the Florence scale. The expectation is that before fall efforts will be made to fit up the new yard at League Island, or what will answer the same purpose, to put large gangs of men at work there, so as to vote them at the elections, and in this way the Democracy expect to carry the Second District.
