The Speaker remarked that the objection would not lie.

Article SI confines the issue of commissions by brevet to the time of war or one year thereafter, and for inportant services in the presence of the enemy, not to take effect but when assigned to special command by the President, and then only when the command is equal to the brevet rank.

Article SI ranks volunteer or militta officers next after like grades in the regular forces, oven if their commissions be older. This distinction is not to exist when they have been in the United States service an equal length of time.

Article SI provides for punishment, by order of a court martial, of persons amenable to the rules and articles of war for offenses that are felonics at common law, committed in foreign countries, or in places within the United States declared by the President to be in insurrection.

Mr. Wilson, of Massachusetts, offered an amendment, as an additional section, providing for punishment by cashiering for conviction of gambling.

Mr. Joinson asked what the Senator meant by gambling whether he wished to cashier an officer or playing whist or euchre for twenty-five or afty masters, with large amounts of government money in their possession, should not be allowed to gamble.

Mr. Wilson replied that gambling is a disastrous vice in the army, and should be broken up. Paymasters, with large amounts of government money in their possession, should not be allowed to gamble.

Mr. Nyes suggested confining it to paymasters.

Mr. Connecs and gambling was the great bane of the service on the Western coast. A court martial would not punish a man for betting in the ordinary way.
