MORTON McMICHAEL, The mandate travels down the spins the motor fibres of the nerve to the muscles, which immediately act, and the finger is at once removed. The researches of Helmholtz, a distinguished German physiologist, have shown with great exacticord to the anterior root, and thence through great rapidity, but yet with nothing like the celerity once imagined. The researches of Helmholtz, a distinguished German physiologist, have shown with great exactified the rate of speed with which the nerve fluid travels; and other observers have given a great deal of time and patience to this and kindred questions. As the result of many deliberations, it was ascertained that the nervous fluid moves at the rate of about ninety-seven and one-tenth feet in a second. Now electricity travels with a speed exceeding the content of Common Council.

the favor of the profession is the protoxide of nitrogen. An American physician named Colton is now among us exhibiting a scroll which bears the autographs of 27,000 persons who have inhaled with benefit and something more than satisfaction, protoxide of nitrogen, being the so-called laughing gas. The British Medical Journal, in saying very fairly a good word for the new agent, states that more persons are dying under the effect of chloroform than the public has an opportunity of knowing. Fatal mishaps take place and are not recorded; inquests are not held because in the coroner's opinion the case is not very clear, the drug has been properly administered, with due care and judgment, and death has risen from pure misadventure.

Two such deaths, it is stated, have occurred in London quite recently, and nothing has the favor of the profession is the protoxide of in London quite recently, and nothing has been publicly said of them. This is not right, the public are entitled to know the risks they run by submitting to chloroform, and to have the means of comparing the mortality attending the use of the several ancesthetics. The America patients who have signed the scroll before mentioned, speak rapturously of the effects of the gas; but then it is to be remembered that only those who were likely to do so were asked to sign. On the other hand, according to our scientific contemporary, the pallor and blueness of skin attending its administration show it to be an agent of terrible power. The dentists in this country are beginning to use it, one being named who has administered it a hundred gimes with success. The Medical Times says that the insensibility produced depends.
