These platéaux are exceedingly pretty when made of rice straw, with loops of black ribbon at the back, and black ribbon strings likewise tied at the back, the ends being allowed to float to the waist. As to the toquets, they defy description; the last invention is the Pourtalée, and it is a bijou. It is made of black straw; the crown is somewhat high, the brim that turns up is lined with black velvet, and coquilles of black lace almost entirely conceal the straw. Demus gets tired of its handsome and accomplished Alcibides, and next to the pleasure of seating himself on the throne is the pleasure of draging him off it.

Neither consent of credible witnesses nor zeal in his champion is able to display Byron in a uniform light. Those who were admitted to his intimacy concur in their accounts of his mutability. nevolent, he deemed no sacrifice for others too great; yet he delighted in teasing his friends, as children delight in teasing their pets; and his correspondence shows him parodying writers whom he highly esteemed, or penning lampoons on those whom he had praised in verse, and to whom he dedicated YABNALL & TRIMBLE, No. 418 South Delaware Avenue. His literary tastes were not more consistent than his personal likings. He was among the foremost innovators in Eaglish poetry, and yet a worshipper at the shrine of Pope. There is reason for thinking him indifferent to Shakespeare, and though the poem which made him formal and the property of t different to Shakespeare, and though the poem which made him famous between STEAM HAMMERS Namyth and Davy styles, and o different to Shakespeare, and though the poem which made him fiamous between bedtime and breakfast was written in the Spenserian measure, he could not endure the Spenserian measure, he could not endure the Faery Queen. Like Horace Walpole, he reviled kings, yet there are 'few symptoms of admiration in his writings for 'King Mobi," he often satirized his own order, and yet he was proud of his Norman blood. He was consistent in his love for Shelley and Moore, and the stockes he most severely felt were those caused by the early deaths of his school and college friends. Shelly, by his scholarship, his in aginative power and his metaphysical speculations, inspired him with a kind of awe, which did not, however, interfere with gonuine affection. Moore's society and correspondence afforded him unmixed and utidating delight. Neither was there any variableness in his dememon to dependents. He knew hat of the parasites who sunned themselves in his favor. To Fletcher and Tits he was a kind and equable master; he played with, according to their deserts, the Mcdwins and Polidores of his retired.
