COLFAX IN THE WEST.

The Hon. Schuyler Colfax arrived in Mansfield, Ohio, on the evening of the 28th instant. His journey to Mansfield was one long ovation; not a town or station along the line of route omitted to turn out and give the heartiest expres-sion to sentiments of esteem and admiration for the future Vice-President. The depots were decornted, and nothing forgotten that could add to the heartiness of the welcomb. At Salem the entire population was in attend-ance upon his arrival. His appearance everywhere was the signal for the most, designing cheers. Mr. Colfax made a short address, which was listened to with the address, which was listened to with the deepest attention, and the sentiments contained therein applauded to the echo. As the train moved from the depot, the shouts of the concourse and the strains of music left a pleasant souvenir in the mind of the recipient of the honor. At Alliance, also, the greeting was no less vigorous and sincere. Although Mr. Colfax declined to speak here, owing to want of time, Congressmen Welker and Lawrence of Ohio, and Gen. men Welker and Lawrence of Ohlo, and Gen. Washburn of Indiana addressed the large crowd, by whom they were well received. Mansfield was reached by Mr. Colfax, in company with his mother and sister, at 9:28 in the evening. The Grant Club, headed by a band of music, together with a large number of citizens, were anxionsly expecting the coming of the train, and directly the enthusiasm had abated sufficiently to allow of a procession being formed, escorted the "welcome guest" to the Wiler House. The cheering and excitement of the citizens of Mansfield is almost beyond description. The entire street in which the Wiler House is situate was completely filled by an enormous assemblage. As soon as he was able to release himself from the overpewering attentions of his friends within the hotel, Mr. Colfax appeared upon the balcony, and when quiet was appeared upon the balcony, and when quiet was sufficiently restored to permit of oratory being audible, Judge M. W. Worden welcomed him in the following wors:

"This assembled multitude and your many

'This assembled multitude and your many thousand admiring friends in this city and country bid you welcome here to-night; and, sir, I assure you that it is a hearty welcome. Your course has been watched and noted by our people, and has been such as to win their entire confidence and approbation. We welcome you because of the courage of patriotism, the courage of statesmanship, and the courage of Christianity that has ever distinguished your career as a servant of the American people. During the war the loyal people of the land always knew where to find you. Your position was not uncertain or to find you. Your position was not uncertain or equivocal. I speak from personal knowledge when I say that our brave men at the front have been cheered and sustained by the generous aid, kind words, and heartfelt sympathy that ever erme from you. Many a sick and wounded soldier has been comforted and soothed by your presence and deeds of kindness. Since Lee surrendered to that great Captain who is still marching on to victory, your efforts in behalf of liberty, humanity and the good of the whole people have been unabated. It was left to another to propose and insist that loyalty should surrender to treason, and to characterize the heroic sacrifices and struggles of the Union Army as usurpations of the South, and to declare the work of the last seven years void and in vain. With your great associate you say let us have peace. So say the people, and this is their earnest desire and prayer. With this as their motto, the loyal millions of the land are rapidly wheeling into line, and when the political battle of November is fought, and the smoke cleared away, and the verdiet of the people is fleshed some the and the verdict of the people is flashed over the land, it will read as follows: 'U. S. Grant and SchuylerColfax overwhelmingly elected President and Vice President for four years from March 4, 1869, and now we will have peace.' Such is the welcome that awaits you. Fellow citizens, I have the pleasure of introducing to you the next Vice President of the United States." Mr. Colfax rerresident of the Unical States. Mr. Collar responded by saying that he heartily and cordially thanked the citizens of Mansfield for their welcome to him on this occasion. As he had endeavored to travel with as little publicity as possible, he was surprised to receive such a reception, not supposing that his arrival would be known to any little generations and response. supposing that his arrival would be known to any but the gentleman under whose roof he ex-pected to pass the night. He said that, occupy-ing the position he did at present, they would perceive that it would be improper for him to make a speech, much as he should like to talk to them about the political issues of the day. He had the kindliest recollections of Mansfield, from former visits, and with them remembered the friendship existing between the Hon. John Sher-man and himself, and which, after a lapse of man and himself, and which, after a lapse of twenty years, he was glad to say was stronger than ever. He proceeded to enlogize Generai Sherman, and said that Mansfield should be proud of having furnished such a man to the nation. Mr. Celfex also paid a high compli-ment to the Hon. John Beatty, Con-gressman from this district, with whom he had been on terms of intimate friendship in the been on terms of intimate friendship in the House, and that no man stood higher in that body for energy, inflexible honesty and willing-ness to work than Ger. Beatty. In regard to the political issues involved in the present campaign. e could only say that, in the words of the great Captain of the age, General Grant, he would say, "Let us have peace." He knew that the large crowd before him were with him in this desire. and he believed that this could only be accomplished by the success of the party which had been true to the nation through the dark hours of the country's trial, and which was the nation's hope in time of peace. He, with them, was proud to belong to this great Republican party, and if the people, he felt sure they would, ratified the nominations made at Chicago, he firmly believed that the country would have no cause to regret the choice. But whatever the result may be, the principles for which the nation fought were dear to him as the apple of his eye, and should ever be the polar star of his political action. Mr. Col-fax eloquently referred to the gallant deeds of the Union Army, the devotion of principle and the unselfish patriotism displayed by our soldiers throughout the contest, and concluded by again kindly and heartily thinking the vast audience for this manifestation of confidence and esteem.

of the Wiler House for the purpose of greeting the next Vice President of the United States. GEN. BUTLER STRIKES BACK.

Three rousing cheers were then given for Grant and Colfax, and the meeting adjourned. Hundreds of our citizens afterwards visited the parlor

Another Rebel Slander Refuted.

Boston, July 29.—To the Editor of the Boston Journal: I see in your telegraphic column a notice that Charles W. Woolley and Kimberly Brothers brought suit against me in Baltimore; in other not less accounts to provide the succession of the succes thers brought suit against me in Baltimore; in other and less accurate papers that "I was arrested." The first is true, the latter not. The purpose of Woolley's suit is obvious. The telegram adds that the Kimberly suit is "for money extorted from them while I was in command at Fortress Monroe." Both suits were brought by John Surratt's attorney—the latter in order to give occasion for the telegram. Kimberly Brothers' claim is for rent paid by them for occupation of Government land. A Board of Survey reported that all the occupants of Government land for shopkeeping purposes should pay rent, the amount of which the Board fixed. My Provost Marshal collected of the Kimberlys (among others), and accounted for that cent for which I am sued, and it is telegraphed over the country, "for extorting money." This is a specimen of rebel slanders expenses. over the country, "for extorting money." This is a specimen of rebel slanders against me, and rebel claims against the Government. All respectable papers unwittingly giving currency to this calumny will, I doubt not, give place to the refutation. Respectfully.

BENJ. F. BUTLET.

Gen. Butler's Alleged "Extortion," To the Editor of the New York Tribune—Sir. Will you allow me enough of your space to present the facts in the matter of Gen. Butler's "Extortion" of money from Messra. Kimberley Brothers? K. & Bros. were Baltimore butchers and sutlers, who, up to the time of Gen. Butler's assuming command of the Department of Virginia and North Carolina, were in possession of the most valuable location on Old Point Comfort without having paid one penny of rent to the Government, whose property it was and is. Supplying the having paid one penny of rent to the Government, whose property it was and is. Supplying the garrison of Fort Monroe and the various bodies of troops passing up the Peninsula with some articles they wanted, and a great many more they did not want and would have been vastly better without, the Kimberleys had amassed a handsome fortune out of this important privilege Gen. Butler at once determined that an arrangement so unjust to the Government should cease, and to this end appointed a Board of Survey. and to this end appointed a Board of Survey, composed of officers and business men, to estimate the value of the franchise and assess accord-The bonus or rent decided upon was that which a number of merchants stood ready to give the moment the Messrs. Kimberley should conclude to abandon their enterprise, but which these gentlemen now claim was money "extorted." The other people doing business on the Point were assessed proportionally, but had not one word of complaint to make. It is only necessary to show the whole truth in this and the other charges and stories with which rebel malice asperses its most leared and hated enemy, to de-monstrate the fact that the army had no com-mander who more jealously guarded the interests of the Government, or who so economically adof the Government, or who so economical ministered its behests, as Gen. Butler.

It will not only lead to military despotism—it establishes military despotism. If it is upheld our liberties are overthrown. The safety of our persons, the security of our property will hereafter depend upon the arbitrary wills of such military rulers as may be placed over us, while our constitutional guarantees will be broken down." Vallandigham, the traitor, repaid that letter of Seymour's by proposing him as the Democratte nominee for President.

He it was who pulled the trigger of the Seymour gun, His recent letter will be a good lever for a Cabinet position in case of Seymour's election. He wants to be a Democratic candidate for Congress from Gen. Schenck's District, in which Schenck would take the kernel and leave Val. the shell.

Supporters of Seymour—Beauregard, Forrest, Hampton, Semmes, Toombs, and nine-tenths of the rebels who fought under the Stars and Bars. This fact needs no comment.

-The papers announce the portrait of Frank Blair taken in fitteen different positions. There is one characteristic common to them all, says the New York Sun—in every position he is in pursuit of office. The gallant General is the same in every shape.

It is said that when Seymour made speeches in Pennsylvania in 1860, he was twice challenged by Daniel Dougherty of Philadelphia, to a public discussion, but discretion proved the better part of his valor, and he evaded the invitation.

Why Don't They Ratify?

People here and elsewhere are asking what is the matter with the Boston Democracy that they don't ratify the nomination of Seymour and Blair. Two or three ovenings have been assigned for a meeting, but the "grand gathering" does not come off. Last night it was expected sure, but there was no call for it and the last rumor is that these was no call for it, and the last rumor is that it has been postponed until the middle of August. We hardly know how the "enthusiastic Democracy" will be able to contain themselves until that time. Perhaps the leaders have come to the sensible conclusion which the presiding officer at the South Boston meeting, Tuesday evening, said he did when he heard of the nominations. First, he was "surprised;" then he was "alarmed," (that was probably when he heard of Blair's nomination!) and finally, like a wise man he boundaries and many, like a wise man, like a wise man, like the bemocratic party has whipped itself!" There are thousands of Democrats who agree with him in this conclusion, and probably they do not care

A Village in Ohio Burned Down-De-tailed Account. We extract the following from the Cleveland

Herald:
"The fire on Saturday merning at Chardon was discovered about 2 o'clock, breaking out in two places—one in the rear of J. O. Teed's harness shop, and the other in the rear of Carlin & Parker's grocery store.

When the alarm was given of course the village was astir and in a state of excitement that can only be imagined. Men, women and children, many of them in bare feet, rushed to the scene, and at once taking in the situation as to the fruitlessness of attempting to stop the flames, directed their energies to the saving of the mov-able property. The wind was blowing stiff from the northwest when the fire burst out, and had on the south side of the square would have gone, and had that been burned there is no telling where the flames would have stopped. The hotel was saved by the exertions of the clitzens. In particular were the women cool, sensible and engaging mounting the roof of the brildies and ergetic, mounting the roof of the building and spreading wet carpets and blankets to the very spreading wet carpets and blankets to the very caves.

'The most strenuous efforts were made to save the court house, the people feeling that in case of its loes the question of the county seat would be more complicated, and Chardon's chances be less in the contest. During the fire the wind moved to the southeast, and when the flames reached the court house, the wet carpets, blankets, &c., which had been spread upon the roof, were licked up like tissue paper, and in about half an hour after the fire reached the bullding the roof fell in. The safe was removed, and previous to that the records, papers, &c., of the clerk's, treasurer's, auditor's and recorder's offices were all saved. The jail was also under the same roof, but, as a criminal is rara avis in Geauga county, there was no prisoner to escape.

the same roof, but, as a criminal is rara avis in Geauga county, there was no prisoner to escape. The loss of the court house was very deeply felt, as the prosperity of the village very much depends upon having the public offices there.

"There was very little insurance upon the property; most of the buildings were wooden, and the rates of insurance had been raised to ten per cent. premium, so that most policles had expired, and it is probable there were not twenty thouse and it is probable there were not twenty thousand dollars insured on the property. The whole loss has been estimated at $100,000, exclusive of the Court House.

"The fire swept all the business portion of the village except one store. The heat was intense—so great that people could not pass in the street in front of the flames. And here let us say that, so far as it is known, not an article of property or a dime in money was stolen, and yet goods were lying around, and every house in or near the village was open to receive all comers. Can that case be paralleled?

"The stocks have been moved into house. the Court House.

"The stocks have been moved into houses, barns, &c., and re-building will commence immediately, arrangements having been made for a brick-park to go into operation. a brickyard to go into operation, so that the burnt district shall be built up of brick."

But the law of England and the widow's inclination are both in the way. —Mr. Fuller, a Methodist preacher, found it necessary to eke out a scanty living by selling sermons. He called on a lady in a parish where he occlabored. As he annoanced his errand, the lady expressed her horror and surprise. "What! Mr. Fuller, I thought you labored for souls and not for money." Mr. Fuller replied: "A minister can't live on souls; and if he could, he'd soon depondate such a region as this!" he'd soon depopulate such a region as this!'
