Parliament Prorogued. LONDON, July 31.—The session of Parliament prorogued to-day. The Queen was not present, ar er speech was read by royal commission. It speak friendly and satisfactory, and says there is no reaso fear war in Europe. No reference is made to th United States. The Abyrsinian expedition has yind cated the honor of the crown. The cessation of at tempts at rebellion in Ireland, renders the further u of exceptional powers granted by the two houser needless. The Queen thanks the House of Common for supplies voted, and congratulates them upon the passage of the Irish and Scotch reform bills; the pubic school bill; the bill for the purchase of telegraph ines throughout the kingdom, and other bills of less important character. The speech also announces the dissolution of Parliament will soon take place in order that the people may reap the advantages of a more e tended system of representation recently provided, confident of their fitness for their new duties, and hat their voice will be for the perpetuation of tha civil and religious freedom which is secured by the institutions of the nation, and settlement of the The London Times on the next Parliament.

LEAVENWORTH, July 31.—General Frank Blair addressed an immense meeting this evening. His speech was principally devoted to the action of the Radical party in the reconstruction of the South, and the record of General Grant. He charged that the Republicans, having lost confidence in the white people of the country, had resorted to the support of the blacks; that it was from no love of the negro race; that they enfranchised them, but only as a scheme to maintain themselves in power. He said he had nothing to say against General Grant personally; that his military services would ever be remembered with pride, but that since he had entered the iext annual report. 🛴 bered with pride, but that since he had entered the arena of politics, his acts, politically, were proper matters for public criticism; that Grant had changed bis views on the subject of reconstruction, inconsistently having at the close of the war urged the immediate admission of Senators and Representatives of the Southern States, chosen by the people of those States. He said the secret of the adherence of General Grant, Sheridan and other regular officers to the Radical party, is the tendency of that party, which has overthrown the prerogatives of the Supreme Court, and the Executive branch of the government, itoward military despotism, which being necessarily based upon military power would give consequence to prominent officers and the Executive branch of the government, and the Executive branch of the government, itoward military despotism, which being necessarily based upon military power would give consequence to prominent officers and the Executive Branch of the government, and the Executive Branch of the government of the gover his views on the subject of reconstruction, inconbeing necessarily based upon military powe would give consequence to prominent officers of the army. He said history shows no party pursuing the course and using the means adopted by the Radicals can live and receive the support of the people. He denied that the sentiments expressed in his letter or New York speech were revolutionary; that the people of the United States, at the last election, had repudiated negro suffrage, upon which was based the whole reconstruction secheme; that to overthrew by- proper constitutional means reconstruction acts is but carrying out the will of the people.
