General Rosecrans's Visit...The Object of 14—His Interview with General Lee—Substance of their Conversation —Interview with Mr. Stuart—Proba-ble Promuigation of au Address by Southern Representative Men. Correspondence of the Richmond Whis.)

White Sulphus Springs, August 22.—The arrival of General Rosecrans yesterday created quite a stir among the male sofourners here, among them many who figured largely in other days in the councils of the nation. The object of his visit, before his arrival, was understood to be for the purpose of conferring with General Lee and others as to the best means of placing before the North a statement of the real feeling of the people of the South towards the Union. He had stopped in Staunton to see Mr. Stuart and compare views with him, but that gentleman was here at the time. General Rosecrans had, however, a long interview with the Hon. John B. Baldwin, which he states was very satisfactory to him.

he states was very satisfactory to him.

As soon as dinner was over, General Roscerans sought General Lee, and they conversed freely for some hours. There sat in the same room two general officers, who, early in the bloody drama not long closed, figured as the leaders of the opposing armies, talking of peace and conciliation and a restoration of the Government. And what Robert Lee said then and there the South said, for he is the embodiment of her sentiment, and she is the embodiment of her sentiment, and she is willing to confide her honor, her interest, and her all to his keep-ing, knowing that whatever he does is right. General Rosecrans, said that there were many honest, well-meaning men in the North and Vest who have been led to believe by the misrepresentations of the southern correspondents of the Radical press, as well as by the speeches of the leaders of that party, that the people of the South are just as hostile to the Union now as during the war, and as much embittered against the Northern people as they were when both were in arms; that they hate the negroes with a deadly hate because they have been freed. and but for the strong arm of the military would reduce them to a state of practical slavery, and perpetuate all manner of outrages upon them. He proposed, therefore, that the general officers of the Confederate army, representing as they do the valor, the chivalry and the truth of the South, units and law before the Northern received. unite and lay before the Northern people, in a tangible form that cannot be disputed, the true state of the feeling as he had found it everywhere in his travels 8 outh.

General Lee denied that the people of the South are inimical to the Union. They want peace, and long for it. This is their universal sentiment as far as he has been able to ascertain it and his open traiting here here. sentiment as far as he has been able to ascertain it, and his opportunities have been many, from frequent conversations and extensive correspondence with representative persons in all parts of the South. As to their animosity to the negronothing could be farther from the fact, and why should there be? Said he there is no rivalry between the rease but a region recognition that rease but a region recognition to the rease but a region region of the rease but a region recognition to the rease but a region region of the rease but a region region of the rease but a region region of the region of tween the races, but a reciprocal interest growing out of the fact that each is dependent upon the other to a great extent—one needing employment and the other employes. Apart from this, they had been reared together and there is a natural affection and sympathy between them. General Lee gave his cordial approval to the patriotic object which General Rosecrans has in view and is so zealously prosecuting.

At the close of this interesting interview, which lasted some hours, a number of gentlemen, including Hon. A. H. H. Stuart, General Echols, General J. R. Anderson, Major Sutherlin, of Danville, called on General Rosecrans and protested against his leaving this morning, as he announced he intended to do on his arrival. He referred to his meeting with General Lea in terms of great satisfaction, and readily consented to remain until Sunday. As they were leaving, he requested Mr. Stuart to remain and confer with him in the same frank, honest, soldier-like manner he had with our great captain in the afternoon. The views expressed by him were substantially the same as I have given in the abstract above. The conversation, however, took a wider range and embraced the political issues now before the country. Upon these General Rosecrans was not at all reticent as to his position, nor as to his preference between BABELIA MARIANNO, M. D., 255 N. TWELETH Street. Consultations free. mys-ly these General Rosecrans was not at all reticent as to his position, nor as to his preference between the Presidential tickets. Mr. Stuart gave him a full, frank and clear statement of the condition of things in the South, the feeling of the people as to the Union, their friendly regard for the negroes, their detestation of carpet-baggers, Radical emissaries, and their desire for speedy restoration to the Union in a constitutional way. Today General Rosecrans was inconversation with Children's Discases—Jodized Syrup of Rev Green Ginger, Prime and Good Order and Good Street. Children's Discases—Iodized Syrup of Horse-Radish.

Prepared by Grimsult's Co., Paris.

This syrup contains iodine combined with the juice of water cress, borre-radish, and scurvy-rass, in which iodine and subplur exist naturally, and for this reason it is an excellent substitute for cod liver oil, which is genorally supposed to owe its efficacy to the presence of iodine. The Iodized Syrup, of Horse-radish invariably produces most satisfactory results administered to children suffering from lymphatism, rachitism, congestion of the glands of the neck, or the various cruptions on the face so frequent during infancy. It is also the best remedy-for the inst stage of Consumptism. Being at once tonic and depurative, it excites the appetite, promotes digestion, and stores to the tissues their natural furnices and vigor.
