Thursday, August 27, 1868. THE BOSECBANS MISSION.

Daily developments show that the Senat was egregiously deceived when it confirmed the nomination of General Rosecrans as Migister to Mexico. So far from the appointment being a proper one, his subsequent conduct proves that General Rosecrans is in full sympathy with Tammany Hall and its Southern branch, just now located at the White Sulphur Springs. Instead of busying himelf with the adjustment of our relations with Mexico. he is trying his hand, as a newledged diplomatist, in fixing up treaties with the rebel officers and politicians who are now plotting mischief at Greenbrier, Virginia. Alarmed at the fatal effects of Blair and Hampton's open avowal of the principles of the Democracy upon the minds of the people, it has been resolved at Washington that some antidote must be immedistely concocted, or Seymour and Blair's chances are gone forever. According, Rosecrans, who hates General Grant with a cordial hatred, gladly undertakes an extra mission. The idea is to get General Lee, General Beauregard, General Ewell, General Echols, Governor Pickens, Governor Walker, and others prominently connected with the rebellion to disavow these inflammatory utterances as representing the real sentiment of the South. It is proposed that the general since the morning stars sang together, and served in the Senate of Pennsylvania from 1821 Oh! how his bites tormented me! officers of the Confederate army and never will be until chaos comes again. other Southern representative men shall issue a manifesto, representing the views of the South in a light to do away with the impressions created at the North by the indiscreet speeches of Blair, Hampton, Forrest and other rebels. It is the organ an opinion as to who shall or who shall not be President of the United States, as it is for Wade Hampton, or Howell Cobb, or Jefferson Davis to do so. And so it will be found, when this precious Rosecrans plot is fairly placed before the public eye. It is a rather bunglingly-contrived piece of the old Democratic dodge of singing different tunes to different audiences, of being "all things to all men, if by all means they may save some." Lee and Beauregard and Stephens are to pipe notes of peace to the North, while Blair and Hampton are to raise their voices, "still for war," breathing out threatenings and slaughter, to fire the Southern heart, and terrify the timid into subjection. The trick is too old. The people of this country are not section. Many of the ancient dramas, such as Kotzebue's absurdly lugu-brious "Stranger," could also be laid upon the shelf without causing a sigh of regret. And indeed we could bear to have fewer representations of the finer old come-dies, provided some skilful dramatist should arise who could seize upon the salient peints of American social life and character, and weave them into worthy and reputable dramas. This Company, National in its character.offers. by reason of its Large Capital, Low Rates of Premium and New Tables, the most desirable means of insuring life yet presented to the public. The rates of premium, being largely reduced, are made as favorable to the Insurers as those of the best Mutual Companies, and avoid all the complications and uncertainties of Notes, Divi-dends and the misunderstandings which the latter are apt to cause the Policy-Holders.

Several new and attractive tables are now presented, which need only to be understood to prove acceptable to the public, such as the IN-COME-PRODUCING POLICY and RETURN. PREMIUM POLICY. In the former, the policyholder not only secures a life insurance, psyable. at death, but will receive, if living, after a period of a few years, an annual income equal to ten per cent. (10 per cent.) of the par of his policy. In the latter, the Company agrees to return to the assured the total amount of money he has paid in, in addition to the amount of his policy. The attention of persons contemplating insuring their lives or increasing the amount of insurance they already have, is called to the special adwantages offered by the National Life Insurance.
