AN INSIDE VIEW OF DEMOCRACY.

A certain Colonel William Brown has been freeing his mind lately, in a speech in Kentucky, and in several journals in Ohio, and the consequence is that the Democratic camp is filled with consternation and alarm. Col. Brown is a Democrat, and he was a member of the New York Convention; but being altogether too manly, he entertains a wholesome contempt for the miserable insincerity of the party, as well as for its refusal to meet the demands of the present crisis by coming up to a higher level. He has therefore become sick at its weakness, want of courage and incapacity of Mr. Horatio Seymour. He has therefore begun to disclose to the country the history of the earlier intrigues of the convention, giving an account of the so-called "Chase movement," and also of the platform which was at first prepared for presentation to the Democracy.

This interesting document forms the most important portion of his revelation. It proves beyond question that the representatives of the Democratic party, in convention assembled, had actually determined to present their candidate for the Presidency as an advocate of negro suffrage, and as an endorser of the reconstruction acts of Congress. Mr. Seymour and Mr. Chase both accepted and approved this platform. But because he was not the representative of the principles declared therein, Mr. Chase was thrown aside, for the Democracy finally determined to cling to their idols, and to come before the world again, as they had often done in the past, as the advocates of a bigoted, stupid, wicked conservatism. This was a fatal mistake. The authors of it were the Southern rebels in the convention. The liberal platform did not suit them, and the Northern leaders were in an agony of indecision, unable to choose between the loss of the white rebel vote and the loyal negro vote in the South. Treason won the day, and a platform was constructed differing in every important particular from that which had first been determined upon. Negro suffrage was denounced, and the old war cry of "negro supremacy" was given to the people, and the reconstruction acts of Congress were declared unconstitutional and void.

But the meanest thing about this concoction of Protean principles, was the conduct of Mr. Seymour, whose pliant conscience found righteousness in both of two platforms that are so widely separated as rank and falsehood. Like his party, he has no difficulty in accomodating himself to any circumstances which seem to promise success. Colonel Brown says, that Seymour "cried like an unweaned baby for three days after he had received his nomination. If he shed tears over his sacrifice of honesty, and, indeed, decent self-respect, his emotions might well have been deeper and longer continued. If over his conviction of certain defeat upon the wretched platform upon his feet, his tears were timely and not in vain.

To the intelligent and honorable people of this country, the revelation of these facts will be full of interest, and we believe it will also exercise an important influence upon the coming election. The spectacle of a great political party in a time like this, shifting from principle to principle, uncertain whether radicalism or conservatism, honesty or rascality, sober or anarchy, were the best to advocate, and wholly unable to select a leader from its ranks, is pitiable. It should instruct more clearly than ever the voters of this land, that the Democrats, having set their hearts upon the high prize of office, were willing to sacrifice everything to attain their object. It should teach them not to trust any declaration of patriotism from a party that has no fixed faith, and no creed; that is now busily denouncing in the Republican platform, principles upon which it had nearly succeeded to take its stand. More than all, it should open the eyes of deluded Democrats to the fact that their party is deceiving them, that it does not believe in its own teachings, or its denunciations of its opponents, and that it is asking them to vote for a weak, vacillating, cowardly candidate, who will be a mere tool in the hands of designing men.

ABYSSINIAN TRAVEL.

The English invasion of Abyssinia and the doings of King Theodorus have excited public curiosity on both sides of the Atlantic in everything relating to that country, and Mr. Murray, turning this feeling to account, has done wisely in bringing out a re-publication of Mansfield Parkyns's "Life in Abyssinia." This work is spoken of as probably the most full and complete picture of the country which has appeared since the time of Bruce. Mr. Parkyns secured for himself unusually good opportunities for observation, as he dwelt among the Abyssinians three years, dressing and living as a native. His picture of the people is far from being flattering, he represents them to be a cowardly, valgiorious, and profligate race, with all the vices and a few of all the virtues which belong to the mid stage between civilization and barbarism. Our business, just now, is to speak of the life of hardships and exposure led by Mr. Parkyns, and of the long correspondence which he enjoyed in full health and activity under circumstances apparently so adverse to both. His personal experience furnishes an instructive lesson, and one that might be turned to the same beneficial account by people in other and remote lands.

Mr. Parkyns, during six years of travel, or from 1843 to 1849, never wore any article of European dress, nor indeed ever slept in a bed of any sort: the utmost extent of luxury which he indulged, even when almost dying of a pestilential fever which kept him five months on his back at Khartoum, was a coverlid under a rug. The only time he wore on leaving Masharva was soon borrowed of him, and the sandals, after a month, were given up, and so for more than three years, or until he reached Khartoum, he went bare covering on his head except a little butter when he could get it; nor had his feet any other protection than a horny one, during the few months rough usage placed under them. During the whole of this time he never had a headache, though exposed to the sun at all hours of the day, and was never foot sore, though he walked constantly in the roughest imaginable places. The traveler's fare was as simple and scant as his clothing, but it seems to have thoroughly agreed with him. On this point Mr. Parkyns confirms the experience of both medical and non-professional men, in saying that, as a general rule, abstinence does no harm in warm latitudes, but on the contrary is always a good thing, and others concurring, "I never felt," he continues, "lighter in my life or more free from the main ills that are humanity, than during this my long period of semi-starvation. Wounds of all kinds healed on me like magic, and I never knew what it was to feel lazy or fatigued." While we would not recommend emigrants from Europe, who come to the United States, nor those of our own northern people who settle in the South, to go hatless and shoeless, there can be no question of their having good health and escaping the worst forms of fever and other diseases, by their keeping the appetite in subjection, consuming only food of the common allowance of animal food, and abstaining entirely from strong drinks of every description.

BRIGHT SKIES.

The Vermont election has kindled a fresh enthusiasm in the Republican ranks, while it has fallen like a wet blanket upon the Democracy. There were many of the Democrats in Philadelphia, last week, who had exaced themselves into the belief that they were going to sweep every thing before them, even to the extent of carrying the city of Philadelphia. Betting and bragging were the order of the day, and high figures were named to indicate the majority by which Mr. Fox was to be created Chief Disorganizer of the Philadelphia Police.

Since that time, it has been thundering among the Green Mountains, and the loud talk about wonderful Democratic victories has dwindled away into melancholy notes of anxiety and discouragement. It is not the first time that the "rebel yell" has been hushed by the thunder of Union guns, nor yet the last. Malice speaks out, and she will repeat the verdict of Vermont. There is an inspiration about last week's victory that must communicate itself along the whole line, and as the shout comes down from loyal Maine to loyal Pennsylvania, it will come with a "whirling tide" of popular enthusiasm, that will sweep Sham Democracy "whirling up the valley" to the old tune that Sheridan taught that distinguished humorist, Jubal Early.

The Republican party is thoroughly aroused, and is perfecting a complete organization of all its forces, and the fight will be made in this city, with all the advantages of an unprocluable list of nominations and all the prestige of the victories in Vermont and Maine. In every Ward and precinct the enemy will be closely watched, and the schemes of colonization, fraudulent naturalization, ballot-box stuffing and all the favorite expedients of the demoralized Democracy will be exposed, defeated and punished. The Republican majority of Philadelphia is determined to declare itself in favor of maintaining a good and orderly municipal government for Philadelphia; of endorsing the faithful services of our tried and trusty Auditor and Surveyor Generals; and of doing full justice in the glorious national triumph of Grant, Colfax and Peace.

REDUCTION OF THE DEBT.

The simplest, surest and quickest way to begin a steady and rapid reduction of the National debt is to elect Grant and Colfax. The Johnson and McCulloch policy now is to avoid reducing the debt, or pretend to make it appear to be increasing. This they pretend to be owing to Congress, and the Democratic papers make a great parade of the Treasury figures, as reported monthly, with a view to influencing votes in favor of the repudiation candidates, Seymour and Blair.

Elect Grant and Colfax, and we shall have a President and Secretary of the Treasury in harmony with Congress, under whom a financial system can be adopted that will work smoothly and advantageously. We shall get rid of the hordes of corrupt officials that are growing rich at the expense of the people. Above all, we shall have peace—the peace that General Grant craves and promises us. It will be a peace under which industry will derive in all parts of the land; labor will become abundant and profitable; people will grow rich, revenue will increase and taxation fall diminish. All the delay in reducing the national debt is owing to Andrew Johnson and his Democratic Secretary of the Treasury. They are doing their best to add to Grant's labor in reducing the debt, but he will accomplish it, nevertheless.

The Age of this morning contains the following paragraph:

"Without any desire to interfere with any merited dispensation of mercy, we would respectfully ask whether, if Alfred Alexander, who is now under sentence of death for murder, but who was recalled by Governor Geary until Tuesday next, were a white man, would the Board of Pardons and other Radical shams manifest the same amount of interest in him?"

A number of years ago there was a member of the bar of Philadelphia, who had won for himself an unenviable reputation for ignorance in gross and indecent personalities, vile language and scandalous perversions and misrepresentations in his forensic oratorical efforts. On one occasion he had made a violently indecent speech, in which he attacked the motives of an honorable and high-minded gentleman, who was counsel upon the opposing side. The tirade of abuse being at length finished, the opposing counsel arose, and,after assuring the court and jury that he was unable to reply to the speech just made because, through inexperience in such a field, he did not understand it, the case would, therefore, have to go to the jury upon its own merits. The jury was not slow to render a verdict upon the side of decency. For a similar reason, and with entire confidence in the result, the BULLETIN declines to respond to the attack of the Age, and will submit the case to the great jury, the public, without further comment.

DEATH OF AN OLD CITIZEN.

Joseph B. Mitchell, Esq., an old and highly esteemed citizen of Philadelphia, died at his residence in Germantown, on Saturday last, at the advanced age of 75 years. Mr. Mitchell was a native of Philadelphia and has spent the long life in an unbroken connection with the Mechanics' Bank.

He was elected book-keeper of the Mechanics' Banking Association, in the nineteenth year of his age, and was subsequently elected Teller of the present Mechanics' National Bank. Passing through the several grades of book-keeper, teller and cashier, Mr. Mitchell was elected President of the bank in November, 1846, and has continued to fill that post up to the time of his death. Universally known and respected in the mercantile community of Philadelphia, Mr. Mitchell's death, at the end of a long and honorable a career, will be sincerely regretted by multitudes of friends and business acquaintances.

Philadelphia and Reading Railroad.

We notice in our advertising columns that Messrs. Drexel & Co., of this city, have disposed of the greater part of the new bonds of the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad which they have been offering. This we regard as one of the best investments offered on the market—a home company, which stands in a financial position equalled by few of the great railroad lines of the country. For the benefit of any of our readers who desire a good investment, we give the following statement in regard to the condition as detailed in their last report. Capital stock of road, $23,856,000. Bonded debt, $6,500,000, which, with the amount of their new loan—$10,000—makes only $6,500,000 bonded, and no floating debt.

CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD CO.

We have just received in detail the statement of the operations of the CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY for the first six months of the current year. The statement is as follows:

Gross Earnings. Operating Expenses. Net Earnings.
$607,634 29 gold, $217,253 43 gold. $389,650 66 gold.

At the first train passed over the mountains on the 10th of June the road was not fairly open for the legitimate traffic until July 1st. The above is practically the business on 30 miles to Cisco; although 3 to 5 miles of disconnected road were worked on the slope it was no source of profit; moreover much of the freight would naturally be held back for the continuous rail.

The gross earnings for July were $260,000 00 Gold.

We suppose the expenses during that time not to exceed Thirty-five per cent.

Thousands of people walked the streets all night, and this morning the excitement is increased, and seems deserted. A feeling of terror prevails that there will be a general crash. Many fear that if there should be another earthquake to-day, affairs would be dangerous. Ships are torn and battered, and the sea at the present writing is calm and tranquil, like the whirlpool. Things look doubtful.

The American ships S. Curling and Kendrick Ecendick Fish, doing considerable business at the port of Callao, are having away her after-rails, steamer coming to Callao and she reported by a ship, breaking the iron jib-boom of the Peruvian men-of-war lying here, steamed up and went after her. She succeeded in getting a tow line on board and towed her into Callao.

SOUTH AMERICA.

Frightful Natural Convulsions—Earthquake in Peru—Singular Phenomena at Callao.

CALLAO, Thursday, Aug. 13, 1868.—This evening, just as I was seated to write this letter for the steamer of to-morrow morning, at about 6 o'clock, the three most terrible and appalling shocks of an earthquake which has visited this section for many years manifested themselves. For full five minutes, the heavy, rolling, tumbling motion of the earth threw every furniture, and even the houses themselves, with such violence that the people could not keep their feet, and an instantaneous rush was made for the streets. Here the scene was indescribable. The shrieks of the affrighted people, kneeling and praying in the streets, mingled with the crashing, falling in masonry, cut off, as with one blow, the sacred sound cracked as if every particle of mortar had given up and crush the affrighted masses. As far as the eye could see, not a house, barrow standing, the very street itself rose and fell in long billowy undulations, like the waves of the sea. Houses rose up and down under the violence of the tremendous internal jar. Many barrow standing, the very poor, ignorant natives, Cholos, &c., are on foot and walking with all speed they can muster, and the cars are so packed with human beings that a special train left the station on Saturday evening, filled with people going to Lima. The reason of this is the absurd report that has been given out by the ignorant people that the sea is coming in. As the city of Callao is built on a ground opening, but by the sea springing like a mighty mountain and overwhelming the people and people, so the horror and fright among the people is the greatest magnitude of the sea. Had the shock been as severe as it was protracted the loss of life and property would have been beyond computation. The weather has been very hot for the last few days, and the earthquake that has just shaken the earth for the last few days, and the earthquake is the most terrible one that has visited the place in its severe years, and never one of such long continuance.

A Night of Horrors—Rising of the Sea.

CALLAO, Friday, 2 A. M., Aug. 14, 1868.—Last night was the most fearful night of horrors that Peru has ever known. The sea was rising at midnight, and seemed to rise in fifty feet over the mole, and submerged all the first floors of the stores and houses. Those on the streets nearest the water. Ships lying at anchor in the harbor moored and drifted into each other. The American man-of-war Powhatan, which was run into by a ship, breaking the iron jib-boom of the Peruvian men-of-war lying here, steamed up and went after her. She succeeded in getting a towline on board and towed her into Callao.

These lands will be settled this fall
