Packard's Monthly, an interesting peritype, is advancing rapidly into i favor by its liveliness and the sensational nature of the subjects it adobts. Its great hit of the "wickedest man in New York" (a title of first of the subject of the the subject of first-class ingenuity invented by Oliver Dyer, of Packard's staff) has been followed up in add that while in office his annual pay is the September number by an account of the Magdalens of New York, from the same pen -an intimate acquaintance with the habitat and haunts of this kind of city fauna appearng to the editors the most suitable and improving form of science for young male read-ers. Mr. Dyer, it appears, is the sage who answers correspondents in the New York Ledger ; and he promises an article of still deeper agony for the October num-ber of Packard's, entitled "What Sends Children to the Devil." Mr. Dyer, we are sure, has struck out a line of market able spasmodics which will pale the effect made a short time since by the virtuous Mr. Greenwood when he bathed in "muttonbroth" at a casual poor-house in London, as a consecration for his crusade against defect sanitary government. Mr. Dyer's selection of the Social Evil is as much more saleable as it is bolder, and Packard's is evidently def ined, on the strength of such spicy leading articles, to attain a favor with young men even beyond the Police Gazette and kindred weeklies.-We are happy to praise without weeklies.—We are happy to praise without reserve the selections which follow the sen- A Detective's Experience-A Touch of Romance. sation-article; an abridgement of Mr. Parton's "Will the Coming Man Drink Wine?" "The Health Habits of Young Men," by Dr. Hol-brook, "Industry," by Horace Greeley, and several other papers of practiced value by energetic men. Packard's Monthly is a pamphlet about the size of the Nation, neatly printed in three columns and stitched into cover. The publishing office of Mr. Packard is No. 937 Broadway, N. Y. ----Daniel Webster and the "National I

On one occasion, when Mr. Webster was in the Senate, he had, in company with a brother Senator, waited upon the editors of the National Intelligencer, and when the nterview terminated and the visitors were about entering their carriage, Mr. Webster was heard to make this remark: "Those r, are two of the wisest and best heads in this country; as to Mr. Gales, he knows more about the history of this Government than all the political writers of the day put ogether." Mr. Seaton had a special fundness for horticulture; and for a great many years he cultivated an extensive garden, which was ac knowledged to be the most elegant affair of the kind in .Washington; and in his delightful taste he enjoyed the hearty sympathy and co-operation of his accom-plished wife. Indeed, his love of nature in all its aspects, combined with a fondness fo sporting, constituted a leading feature of his

That he left not a stone unturned to make this garden interesting is proven by the fact that where he expended dollars he reaped only pennies, and also by the following circumstance. During one of his visits to New England, he tarried a day in Hartford for the ole purpose of obtaining a few acorns from rter oak, and having been successful, planted and nourished them with care; and one or two years before his death he had the pleasure of presenting to his friends a number of saplings from the famous tree. He was always fond of making little presents to those whom he esteemed, and his delicate manner of making them invariably enhanced their

Although the intimacy which existed by ween the editors of the Intelligencer and Webster was most cordial and of long standing, there was something like brotherly affection in that between Mr. Seaton and the each other in all their pleasures; read the same books, cherished the same friends, recalled to a great extent the same memories connected with public men and events, had their sporting moods in common. and probably enjoyed as many good dinners together as an other men of their time. During the twenty or thirty years of Mr. Webster's residence i Washington there was no private individual there with whom his relations of intimacy were so close as those with Mr. Seaton. might be added, too, that there was no person. out of his family, to whom he was so much with the ladies of his family, or tete a tete with him in winter at the fireside, or in evening strolls in summer.

The evening preceding the delivery of the speech in reply to Colonel Hayne by Mr. Webster, he spent with Mr. Seaton at his residence. When, near midnight, the governor was about to leave, the latter took his arm, and they had a pleasant walk to Louisiana avenue. On arriving at his home Mr. Webster took Mr. Seaton's arm. and insisted upon seeing him home. The scene was amusing, but Mr. Webster's object seemed to be to take exercise, enjoy the conversation of his friend, and look upon the star-studded sky, now discanting upon the wonders o astronomy and then repeating passages from the Bible, Virgil, Shakespeare and Milton, while not an allusion was made to the impending event of the morrow. -But as we are not writing a book, we mut put a curb upon our memory and bring these sonal recollections to a close. As Gales and Seaton spent their lives in writing for the public welfare, they had but little time to injulge in the pleasures of letter-writing, and yet a collection of their letters to personal ads would be read with great gratification; but when the correspondence addressed to them, on all sorts of subjects, by men of dis-are being put up, and new business agencies estinction from every part of the country, shall be collected and published, as it should and probably will be, the historical lore of the epublic will be enriched to a rare degree. ------

The American Ambassador Abroad. It is human nature the world over to have respect for and to be influenced by good manners, cultivation, social parts, and a gen-tlemanly dispensation of an intellectual hos-pitality. There is no country in the world where this is better understood or more practiced than in the United States. And yet a people which understands life and human re quite as well as any other, and at home bestows its hospitality more lavishly than any other, and with all this believes in its democ racy and is justly proud of its democracy, will send ministers resident to courts where third and fourth rate monarchies send their envoys extraordinary and ministers plenipotentiary-is content that its diplomats shall live or mean streets and in third rate houses, keeps them on a scale of pay that was fixed when living in Europe cost about one-half what it does now, and will have them walk when others ride, or ride in greasy street cabs when others ride in their own carriages. It may be stated, as a general rule, that American Diplomats either do not live and work and socially reciprocets move and socially reciprocate as would be advantageous to their Government, or, if they do, they lose money at it. The British diplomat has an outfit to begin with, which e American has not; he has an outfit every time he is changed to another post, which the American has not-indeed, the latter is seldom changed except when unceremo-niously jerked home; he has an infit when he retires, which the American has not; after a certain length of service and permanent re-tirement he has a pension, which the Ame-rican does not ask for; while in office he has from two to four times the help to do th work of the legation, and he has the reward of promotion constantly held up to him, which the American has not. These are about three times as large as that of his American colleague, and his grade of office al-ways higher, we can estimate the pecuniary ference between the two positions The American Ambassador should be e couraged to hope for permanence in office, and for promotion in the service, just in pro portion as his own discharge of duty is able xilful, and faithful, considered in connection with his present grade and the length of pas service. He should have removed from his contemplation the degrading spectacle of a basketful of bloody heads rushing at him for his own at every turn and whiff of the politial breeze. It either makes him a coward and a time-server or renders him stolidly in-different to the discharge of duty. What initement has a man so situated to the close study of the politics, the manners, the comnercial interests, the political growths, the lliances, and the national animosities of the people among whom he lives, and for making clear and compact statements of these in his despatches to his own government?-Nation

[From the New Orlcans Picayune.] "It was just before the war," said the de-tective, "that a queer trick was played

me by a young fellow accused of forgery. "How was it? Let me hear the story." "The Chief called me into the office one morning, and told me that a check for $4,000 had been drawn by the confidential clerk of a well-known commercial house, and had been cashed at the bank where their funds were deposited. It was a forgery, and the clerk had left as soon as the money was of tained. His name was Henry Harding; his parents lived in one of the interior parishes, and it was supposed he had gone there before setting out elsewhere. I could only learn that he was young and of rather effeminate appearance. I was soon on my way. I had found out, where the family of young Harding lived, and I hoped to reach the house before night, but in this I was disappointed. Long before dusk dark clouds began to form along the verge of the horizon, and climb rap idly to the zenith. The thunder and lightning came at intervals, and I was soon assured that one of those semi-tropic storms which are so frequent in the summer would ere long burst upon me in its fury. I hastened forward. therefore, looking eagerly around for some place of shelter. I had proceeded but a little distance when I saw just before me a woodman's hut. I got into this as soon as possible. I had hardly got comfortably sheltered before a gentleman and lady dashed up to the door and dismounted. Like myself they were seeking shelter from the storm. The man was middle-aged, and exhibited in his person the strong athletic frame, the open brow and genial, pleasant face of the Southern planter; but there was in his countenance now a touch of sadness, - a seemingly exquisite sense of sourow strangely. out keeping with what the man should have been. mpanion was a young girl of exquisite beauty, with dark, soulful eyes, and hair black as night. She looked, indeed, a daughter of the tropics, and the tall, splendid form was regal in its majesty. She was such a woman as a man could wish to live for, and, if need be, die for. They were both in traveling costume, and from their conversation I judged they were father and daughter, just setting out on a journey, and endeavoring to reach the river in time for an up-going steamer. Shortly after their arrival a negro boy drove ing, there was something like protheriy ion in that between Mr. Seaton and the statesman. They sympathized with other in all their pleasures; read the l would follow these people. I took n on the same steamer. I would not lose sigh of the girl. I could contain myself no longspent in the drawing-room of Mr. Seaton, with the ladies of his family, or tite, itte thing; I only asked to share her affections. She seemed greatly agitated, and asked that I would leave her unti asked that I would leave her until next day. This was the forenoon of Mondays Tuesday afternoon I called for my answer. The servant who answered my summons informed me that the young lady had left the evening previous on a steamer for the West Indies; but she had left a note. I tore open the letter eagerly. It contained these words: Sir: For your preference I am much obliged; but the laws forbid gentlemen mar-

The annual convention of the American Pharmateutical Association commenced its sixteenth session yesterday at the hall. Tenth street near Cherry. In the absence of Dr. Milbaw, of New York, the President, Dr. Robert G Brown took the chair. A committee on credentials was ap-pointed, who reported a number of delegates from additional associations. The new members were then balloted for and elected unanimously. The report of the secretary, which was read, showed the total expenditures during the past year to have been $25513. There being a delegation from the Montreal Che-mists' Association present, a resolution of wel-come was adopted, which drew forth complimen-tary remarks from the various members of the delegation. The annual address of the President was then read. He spoke of the success which has attended the Association in the past, and re-commended certain measures by which, in the future, it would increase in usefulness. A com-mittie was then appointed to mominate officers for the ensuing year, when the Convention ad-journed to meet this morning. ceutical Association commenced its sixteenth ourned to meet this morning. TEMPERANCE MEETING. - The monthly temperance meeting of the Young Men's Christian Association was held last evening, at their Hall, Chesinut street, above Twelfth. A large and attentive audience was present, composed princi-pally of young men. Rev. John Chambers made an address on the subject of tempe-rance, after which Hiram Ward, Esq., gave an interesting account of the progress of the temperance cause during the past year at the Rev. Dr. Shepherd's Church, Buttonwood street. Temperance meetings are held at this church every Friday evening, and 700 persons signed the pledge last year. Mr. Geo. H. Stuart, Jr., followed in a very able address, in which the moral and scientific reasons why man should abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors were plainly and truthfully exhibited. An interesting feature of this meeting was the recitation of Longfellow's description of the famine, from Hiawatha, by Prof. Philip Lawrence. After the adjournment, many present signed the pledge.

CHARITABLE BEQUESTS. - The will of Francis Lamb was admitted to probate vesterday. After the payment of several private bequests, the income of the estate of the deceased is to be given to the General Synod of the Reformed Presbyte-rian Church. for the endowment fund of the Theological Seminary of the said church. Wm. Warner, deceased, bequeaths half or about $10,000 of his estate, after the decease of his wife, to the following six Beards of Charities of the Old School Presbyterian Church of the United States: To the Trustees of the Boards of Foreign Missions, Dumestic Missions, of Education, of Publication, of Church Extension, and to the Trustees of the General Assembly for the use of disabled Ministers and their families. MEETING OF OYSTER DEALERS .- A meeting of yster dealers was held last night for the purpose forming an association and the transaction of other business. Benjamin Harvey was elected President; Charles Ogden, Vice President, and Richard Singleton, Secretary. The association have secured a lease of Pier 18, South Wharves, formerly occupied by the Southern Steamshin formerly occupied by the Southern Steamship Company. So hereafter Dock street wharf will At the meeting last evening a committee was appointed to prepare a constitution and by-laws. Another meeting will be held on Saturday after-noon next to perfect the organization. Thomas Lumbert is Treasurer of the association. SERIOUS FALL.-M. Donohue, forty-five years old, while working yesterday on the Shiffler Hose bouse, on Moyamensing avenue, above Greenwich street, fell from the height of about thirty eet and was badly bruised. PASSENGER RAILWAY ACCIDENT.-Frederick Bush, nine years old, was run over yesterday by a passenger car at Norris and Sepviva streets, and was severely injured. He was taken to the Episcopal Hospital. REPUBLICAN NOMINATION .--- John B. Parker was last evening nominated for Common Councilman by the Republicans of the Twenty-sixth Ward. ------The Trial of Whalen for the Murder of UNITED FIREMEN'S INSURANCE COMPANY OF D'Arcy McGeo. D'Arcy McCiece. . OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—The trial of Whalen was re-sumed to-day. Constables Jordan and Pennard stated how their attention was first directed to La Croix. They brought him to town, and he pointed ont the place where he saw a man shot, and described the particulars of the tragedy. La Croix is an ignorant Frenchman, and showed he was extremely unwilling or afraid to come forward in the matter, but that his first statement of ward in the matter, but that his first statement of the circumstances connected with the murder closely agreed with his evidence given yesterday. Witnesses testified to Whalen's mysterious and suspicious movements in the Parliament House on the night of the murder. J. McGee testified to Whalen's visits to his ther's house, on Monday, January 2, under Buckley, the messenger of the House, gave evi-ence tending to shield Whalen. He said he sus-
