The Chinese Government having (through the Hon, Anson Burlingame) conceded to this Company the privilege of connecting the great scapports of the Em pire by submarine electric telegraph cable, we propose commencing operations in China, and laying down a line of 900 miles at once, between the following perts as everywhere clse, the communications of the gover ment, of business, and of social life, especially in China. She has no postal system, and her orly means now of communicating information is by courier on land, and by steamers on water.

The Western World knows that China is a very large country, in the main densely peopled; but few yet realize that she contains more than a third of the human race. The latest returns made to her central authorities for taxing purposes, by the local magistrates, make her population Four Hundred and Fourteen Millions, and this is more likely to be under than over the actual agcreate. Nearly all of these who are over the actual ag-create. Nearly all of these who are over ten years old not only can, but do read and write. Her civiliza-tion [is peculiar, but her literature is as exten-sive as that of Europe. China is a land of teachers and traders; and the latter are exceedingly quick to avail themselves of every proffered facility for procuring early information. It is observed in Califor-nia that the Chinese make great use of the televraph nia that the Chinese make great use of the telegraph, nia that the Chinese make great use of the telegraph, though it there transmits messages in English alone. Today, great numbers of fleet steamers are owned by Chinese merchants, and used by them exclusively for the transmission of early intelligence. If the telegraph we propose, connecting all their great seaports, were now in existence, it is believed that its business would pay its cost within the first two years of its successful operation. and would steadily increase thereafter.

No enterpise commends itself as in a greater degree remunerative to capitalists and to our whole people. It is of a vast national importance commercially, politically and evangelically.
