Another effort was here made in behalf of the female property owners, as regards their right to vote on appropriations; whereupon Mr. Phills Lucas, Jr., remarked that Mr. Ferguson had voted, and now his wife desired to vote on the same questions. The Chairman stated that he had looked into the matter, and guoted several sections of the village charter, and State laws on the subject, which clearly defined who were and who were not legal voters; and he therefore de-cided that the women, although property owners and tax-payers, were not entitled to vote at that meeting. The decision against the women was halled with applanes by almost the entire array of masculine voters present. Mr. Wingate here appealed from the deci-sion of the chair in behalf of four women, whom he claimed to represent as their attorney. Several citizens protested against Mr. Wingato's interference, contending that he was neither a tax-payer nor resident, of the village, and crice of "put him ont," "put him out," resounded from all parts of the crowded hall. (From the Cleveland (O.) Leader of Saturday.] A trightful accident occurred on Thursday af-ternoon on the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Rail-road, at a place called Industry. The regular passenger train, consisting of three passenger passenger train, consisting of three passenger cosches and the usual express and baggage cars, left Pittsburgh at 2 o'clock P. M. The cars were moderately illed with passengers, there being probably a hundred on the train. At the point above mentioned, while running at the ordinary rate of speed, a drove of cattle started across the track ingt in front of the snaple. Every notable track just in front of the engine. Every possible effort was made to stop the train, but before this could be accomplished the engine plunged into the animals, throwing one to the left, another to the right, and a third directly ahead upon the track

The engine leaped from the rails, became disconnected from the train, and with a clear bound landed at the bot-tom of the bank, "right side up with care." the engineer and fireman being but slightly bruised. The tender turned completely around, and the express car was dashed against it with fearful violence, crushing in the whole side of the car. All the coaches rolled to the bottom of the em-bankment, tambling their occupants from side to side in the most promiscnous manner imagina-ble. Wondrous to relate none were killed, and it is thought none were injured. A large number, however, received ugly cuts and bruises, and very few escaped unharmed. Our informant, G. F. Thomas, Esq., of New York, editor of Ap-pleton's Raitway Guide, was in the rear car and was one of the fortunate few who escaped with-out injury. The scene at the wreck was one of wildest terror and confusion. Several ladles re-ceived very severe wounds, but we were unable to learn any names. The night train from this city, returned from the wreck with a portion of the passengers, reaching this city at half-past two o'clock, Friday morning. The track was torn up for a considerable distance.

These beams are of immense weight, requiring the combined strength of the whole force of fourteen men to place one in position. While attempt-ing to raise one of these rafters this morning, the scaffolding on which the men were standing gave scaffolding on which the men were standing gave way and precipitated the whole party, together with a section of the iron roof, a distance of 20 feet to the bottom of the tank, injuring all more or less; and crushing two terribly, and probably fatally.
