America from me appeared to intensity his sociability. He was born on the 21st of December,

Off Meade on first ball of his over, and Jupp bullayed the other three balls in the most 1819, at Ellenburg, in Saxony. His father, a clergyman, and at the same time a musician of distinguished celebrity, had him educated at the renowned Thomas-Schule in Leipzig, where among preparatory studies for the learned professions, impense attention has ever been devoted to the preparatory studies for the learned professions, immense attention has ever been devoted to the "divine art." It was within this atmosphere that young Abt found his musical tendencies growing into a controlling passion; and, although, he subsequently entered upon a course of law; the musty tomes of jurisprudence were soon abandoned for an ardent cultivation of his predominant talent. After offering to the public a suite of contredanses for orchestra as the first fruits of his genius, a song entitled "Doch enne schoene Gegend," his initial effort in this walk of composition, found its way, and with popular applianse, into the salons of Germany. Nevertheless, the many obstacles and anneyances that beset the path of all pilgrims to the temple that beset the path of all pilgrims to the temple of fame lay thickly strewn before his footsteps as well; and it was only after the direction of a theatre in Zurich had been tendered him, that Abt of Newhall's over, Griffith drives him for one, noted something like a harvest from his sowing what though little promise of redundancy cheered his heart. Within ten months thereafter the management found itself constrained to close the house from want of patronage, and more days of doubt and adversity stared the young composer and his newly-married wife in the composer and his newly-married wife in the composer and his newly-married wife in the face. In this condition of his affairs he wrote several songs to the ballads of Heriossohn's "Book of Love," entitled severally "Pauline," "Agathe," "Irene" and "Alice," and of which the second named ("When the Swallows") proved destined to carry his name to Swallows") proved destined to carry his name to almost all parts of the globe, although Abt himposition. Despite his most assiduous efforts with the renowned publishers of Germany, none of the latter seemed inclined to venture upon either of the lovely songs just named, and with marked discouragement the venture composer described in the second of the latter seemed inclined to venture upon either of the lovely songs in the proposer described in the selection of the lovely songs in the lovel inst named, and with marked discouragement the young composer deposited them in a portfolio, where they might have passed entirely into oblivion; but for a singer of some celebrity—a certain Agathe Reuss—who descried them while in company with Franz Abt, at his own house. In requesting a song from the latter, for public use, she singled out "Agathe," because it bore her own name. Through this fortuitous circumstance the ambitious musician emerged from a long "night" of comparative obscurity into a noonday of unwonted brightness and noonday of unwonted brightness and holds a fine over to Griffith, and on second ball from Charley, R. Newhall catches and long "night" of comparative obscurity into his achievements, while few men of any age have tonched so many responsive chords within the human heart. I have read a statement that Wachtel, the famous German tenor, has declared himself to have intervocalized various songs of Franz Abt no less than eix hundred times, either between the acts or amid the incidents of divers operas; and we all know what superb usage Habelmann has made of "Sleep well, thou sweet angel" in our own country. So, too, all male-singing societies owe him a lasting debt of gratitude for the many exquisite four-part creations of his genius. The quartettes "Ave Maria" and "Holy Peace" may well be classed among the purest models of this class of composition.

Abt's parlor contains probably forty framed diplomas of his election as an honorary member of as many musical associations, and the writer of this article perform d the pleasing duty of adding another from the Philadelphia Society bearing his name. The testimonial was very hands as oncely framed, cugrossed and signed by the contested game. It was undoubtedly the finest display of cricket ever seen on this continent. The Eleven were the winners by two wickets.

Smoot, special Indian Agent, arrived in Washington yesterday from the Choctaw and Chickssaw country, eight days from Fort Gibson to the Cherokee nation, whither he went by direction of the Secretary of the Interior, for the purpose of paying to those tribes the sum of $250,000 due them as loyal Indians, for property destroyed during the rebellion.

8260,000 due them as loyal Indians, for property destroyed during the rebellion.

Colonel Smoot was escorted from Leavenworth to the Indian territory by a squad of United States soldiers. This was rendered necessary on account of the large sum of money in his possession.

The reason for sending a special agent to pay over this amount was because of a provision in the law requiring it to be paid to the claimants in person, and not through attorneys or assignees.

Colonel Smoot had an interview to-day with Secretary. Browning and Acting Commissioner Mix, on the subject of his mission. The loss to Licatenant Cusack's command was two soldiers severely, though not dangerously wounded, and two horses. Some government stock, stolen from Fort Lancaster and other points by the Iudians, is among that captured; also, some of the mail stock list a short time since. A large quantity of skins, robes and other plunder was taken. The command marched almost the entire distance by night, lying by in the day time in order to confuse the Indians, which he succeeded in doing. He speaks highly of the good conduct of his men, and makes special mention of the Diggenwiddie Citizen Volunteer and Vigilant Tanner Company and others, for

Baldwin, a civil engineer in the employ of the railroad company. Baldwin, who was suffering from de-lirium tremens, subsequently shot himself, and would probably die. Political affairs in Panama are still unsettled, and reports of coming revolution are current. Several arrests have been made. The President has issued a proclamation, stating that measures have been taken to keep the peace. The Republic of Colombia is quiet. A report of the anticipated return of Mosquera produced some alarm, but no serious effect.
