PHILADELPHIA, Friday, Oct. 23.—The artificial stringency noted in the money market for the ast two days shows some signs of abatement, and an easier state of affairs exists, as it is reported that many of the banks are temporarily sing their reserve funds. We hear of call loans being made as high as 6½ per cent. on government collaterals, and 8@9 per cent. on mixed securities. The offerings of mercantile paper at the banks are light, and the simited amount which finds its way on the street is taken at 8@9½ per

In trade circles there is less activity, but with relatively little change in prices. Cotton is dull and drooping. In Breadstuffs the movements are of a very restricted character and the tendency of prices, with the exception of Corn, is decidedly downward. The Provision market, in anticipation of a large crop, is weak, and in Groceries the transactions are small.

Oct. 22.—The stringency in the money market continues to be the absorbing topic on Wall street. The demand for money was exceedingly active until 2 P. M., and call loans were made chiefly at 7 per cent., gold, and in some cases 7 per cent. currency, with ½ per cent. commission, but after that hour the supply of money was more abundant, and loans were made at 7 per ct., gold and currency. There was a report circulated that the banks intended to use 15 per cent. of their reserve, but this is not, the case. Mrs. Southworth, in a private note to the editor of the New York Ledger, states that Messrs. Read and Bouckault, the authors of the above novel, have been helping themselves to a part of the plot of one of her stories published in the Ledger about two years ago. She says:

"By the way, Messrs-Charles Reade and Dion Bouckault are getting assailed on all hands for alleged plagiarism. A writer in the Mask, an English journal; accuses them of having copied the Forgery and Detective incidents in their novel from a French play which he quotes at length. Another writer charges them with copying a part of Cooper's Water Witch in the Sea Voyage, while I am forced to claim the shipwreck of the lovers and their isolated life on the Desert Island as my own."

The Harrisburg State Guard says:—A horrible accident occurred at Columbia yesterday morning by which Mr. Wm. Henry, foreman of what is technically known as the floating gang, was run over by a shifting engine and cut in two, being instantly killed. He was standing on the track at the time, and was knocked down, falling under the wheels with the result as described above. His remains were taken to Lancaster last evening for interment.

In addition to the drain of currency to the West for the pork packing season, and to the Souther Southen as the souther of southon and tobacco crops, it is well to bear in mind that the Southern States have few banks, and that a very large amount of currency will be absorbed and retained there in the hands of planters and others who were destitute of surplus money last year. This season the Southern crops will give that section a large surplus of money, to remain permanently there, and the New York market will be called on to supply this currency demand.
